Nürnberg. Die Vorerhebungen wegen Einverleibung sämmtlicher um die Stadt herumliegenden 12 Gemeinden in den Stadtbezirk sind nun so weit vorgeschritten, daß jetzt die Berathungen wegen Erfüllung der Bedingungen beginnen, so daß vielleicht schon bald, etwa vom 1. Januar 1899 ab, die Einverleibungen stattfinden können. Es handelt sich um nachstehende Gemeinden: Schweinau, Großreuth hinter der Veste, Höfen, Wegendorf, Schnigling-Doos, Thon, Großreuth bei Schweinau, Kleinreuth hinter der Veste. Schoppershof, Mögeldorf, Glaishammer, Lichtenhof-Gibitzenhof.

Pfaffau. Bischof Dr. Michael v. Rampf hat dieser Tage in der von Landleuten und Bewohnern der Stadt überfüllten Domkirche 27 Alumnen zu Priestern geweiht. Es ist dies seit vielen Jahren die stärkste Zahl von Neugeweihten, welche dem Priestermangel in der Diözese erheblich zu steuern in der Lage sind.

CASTLES OF SPAIN.

THEY HAVE BEEN RUTHLESSLY APPROPRIATED BY THE CHURCH.

She Has No Such Historic Family Residences as are in England, or as Can be Seen Along the German Banks of the Rhine.

As very few Americans will travel in Spain this summer it is possible that one great benefit the country will derive from the present war is that the average American will read more about Spain than ever he cared to know before. And some of these interesting things which we may have to learn in case it is necessary to proceed for a war indemnity, will be all about the famous castles of Spain.

We have all heard some time or other about the castles of Spain, not those fortified strongholds which belong to the Moors, but castles which the poets have raised in song and story. Even our own Longfellow has made them the subject of his charming rhapsody:

How much of my young heart O Spain
Went out to thee in days of yore!
What dreams romantic filled my brain
And summoned back to life again
The Paladins of Charlemagne
The Cid Campeador?

But softer Andalusian skies
Dispelled the darkness and the gloom
There Cadiz by the seaside lies
And Seville's orange orchards rise
Making the land a paradise
Of beauty and of bloom.

And there the Alhambra still recalls
Aladdins palace of delight;
Allah il Allah through its halls
Whispers the fountain as it falls
The Dairo darts beneath the walls
The hills with snow are white.

Castles of Spain not built of stone
But of white summer clouds and blown
Into this little mist of rhyme.

Such palaces of luxury every mind at some time or other has built in imagination beside bright lakes and pleasant places—

A fantastic Alhambra-like villa
With terrace and fountain and lawn;
A balcony where one's Manilla
May be smoked when the dinner cloth's drawn.

Light wines on one's table to sparkle—
New books every day by the train
Which we'll read under trees patriarchal
That are grouped round our castle in Spain.

"I am the owner of great estates," wrote the late George W. Curtis, expressing in prose the same pardonable admiration of these castles "not built of stone"—"Many of them lie in the West, but the greater part are in Spain. It is a country famously romantic, and my castles are all of perfect proportions and appropriately set in the most picturesque situations." Spanish castles, with few exceptions, are thus the standing jokes of the poets and of fiction writers.

The truth is that while Spain has some real castles, she has no such historic family residences as are in England, or as can be seen along the German banks of the Rhine. Spain's castles have been appropriated by the church, with about the same ruthless disregard as the Abbeys were after the confiscations in England by Henry VIII converted into palatial dwellings by the British nobility. The most majestic of these genuine castles is the Chateau De Billegorde where according to Froissart's Chronicles the Counts of Foix used to live in great splendor, getting up at noon and supping at midnight. When the Count left his chamber to go to table before him were borne through its gloomy halls twelve lighted torches by twelve attendants, each attendant holding his lighted torch while the Count dined, knights and squires sitting admiringly around. It is situated on the edge of a steep ravine surrounded by a triple wall, and approached by a narrow driveway. It used to be a place of immense strength but is now a monastery for the monks of Navarre.

The Giralde has also been converted into a cathedral, the tower of which provided the architectural model of Madison Square Garden tower, of New York. It ranks with Giotto's famous Camanilla in Florence, and is the most perfect example of a true tower of Islam in Europe.

It rises in square form to a height of 250 feet and was built in 1196, but was renovated by the Christians and crowned with a graceful figure called "La Fe" (The Faith), which turns with the wind and which looks over the fertile valley of the Guadalquiver, and over scenes made famous by the memories of Pedro the Cruel.

The next is the famous castle of Burgos. It was in the castle of Burgos that the Cid was born, whose exploits in peace and war make up so much of the legendary history of Spain. It is now the Puerta di Santa Maria, or Church of St. Mary. From the center of a quadrangular court flanked on each side with stately minarets there rise two immense spires which eloquently tell that this once powerful stronghold has ceased to be of military importance, though it still continues to be an object of deep veneration to the Spaniards. The strong works of a formidable fortress, of which trenches and the ruined and blackened walls remain intact, tell that the home of the Cid and of Don Sancho was no ordinary place. It is stated as a miraculous instance of divine interposition, that when the castle of Burgos was blown up by the French, on the occasion of the evacuation of Spain, these spires, with their seemingly fragile towers remained uninjured to greet the eyes of the superstitious Spaniards in all integrity as the shock passed by, while two hundred Frenchmen were buried under the ruins. As a combination of castle and of Cathedral it is one of the most remarkable structures in the world; and it shows more completely than would a volume of writing, how thoroughly the Church has reared its influence upon the ruins of the once proud Empire of Philip II and of Charles V. There are other great castles like the Puerto del Sol at Toledo, the Alhambra and the Castle of Simancas, in which latter was preserved for centuries the archives of Castile. The palatial residence which the Duke de Montpensier's grand and soaring wonder of utilitarian architecture, with something of a fancy that it was never made, and that it has stood there since the morning of the world. It has the lightness and the strength, the absence of ornament, and essential beauty, the vastness and the perfection of a world of nature. As family still retain, also overlooks the slopes of the city of Seville, in which place was born the bull fight. Then there is the castle of La Grampa, situated in a wrinkle of the Gandarrama Mountains, which Philip V erected upon a crag when he came from his exile in France to the Spanish throne. This is literally the castle in the air and is more inaccessible than even the Chateau de Bellegorde. It has been the Spanish eminence house of all the Bourbon Kings. When the sun is calcining the plains of Castile, and the streets of Madrid are white with a hot light of midsummer this castle in the clouds is as cool and shadowy as a northwestern breeze after passing over a valley of drifted snow. Viewed from the little squalid hamlet of Segovia below, the castle high above looks like a gull's nest on the edge of a soaring cliff. "You raise your eyes," writes Ambassador John Hay in his "Castilian Days," "from the market place, with its sickening, swarthy crowd to this tradition has eaten into the very life of Spain, and tainted the judgment of its people, the peasantry of the hamlet would hoot anyone who attributed any mortal paternity to this castle in the air or the aqueduct by which it is approached. Yet both belong to the gigantic works of the Emperor Trajan. The people call the aqueduct the Devil's bridge and the castle itself the "Devil's Nest," and from it has arisen the saying,—"Build castles in the air," which is only another form of the folly ascribed to those who look for "Castles in Spain."

Spain had castles, but she now has churches. Hence the bon mot.

In A Sulphur Mine.

"There are but few who admire the collection of beautiful sulphur crystals in the National Museum," remarked the gentleman who collected them from the famed sulphur mines in Sicily "who have any idea in relation to the same except their beauty. I don't think," he said, "there is another spot on earth where such abominable treatment, such fiendish cruelty, is inflicted on the laborer as in the sulphur mines of Sicily. They are paid barely enough to provide themselves with a scant supply of the coarsest, cheapest food, and a good portion of the time they are in a state of chronic starvation. The work is of the hardest and most exhausting character. Very few of the mines have hoisting apparatus, and the sulphur ore (sulphur and limestone combined) is brought up from the depths below on the backs of men and boys. Long, sloping, narrow tunnels lead from the surface down to the sulphur beds 200 to 600 feet or more below. Miners dig the stuff out and it is carried up in stout sacks or flat baskets. Many of the laborers, especially the boys, work naked. On their backs they wear a piece of matting, or something of the sort, held by a string around the neck. This is to protect the flesh from being torn from their bones by the jaggtd corners of the ore they carry. No one can imagine a more heartrending sight than to see the wretched creatures toiling up the long, steep slopes in the mine with their enormous loads. Every step they take wrings a groan from their tortured frames. Most pitiful to me was the sight of the poor, bent, broken and emaciated old men, mere battered wrecks; and the young lads of 10 and 12 years, who have just begun this life of cruel toil.

The Emperor of Japan.

Mutsu Hito, Emperor of Japan, came to the throne when he was a boy under sixteen. He was the first Mikado to appear in person at a State Council, and presented himself in national costume before the nobles and daimios to take the oath to become actual ruler of his people, and to foster learning and art in his empire. He wore his hair brushed up on the top and hidden in a head-dress fastened with bands, with two black top-knots protruding outwards from it; white and red garments, long polished shoes, and a chain of State. After the ceremoney he journeyed from Kioto to Tokio, the new capital, in a gold-lacquered norimon, or closed litter, borne by relays of coolies on their uplifted palms—a method of travelling reserved exclusively for Royalty, as ordinary people had to be carried in litters on the shoulders of the bearers.

Problem of Law.

"He sent me a million kisses," asserted the plaintiff in the breach of promise case.

"Did you count them?" asked the counsel for the defendant.

"Count them!" exclaimed the plaintiff. "Of course not."

"Your lordship," cried the counsel for the defendant earnestly, "I object to the admission of this testimony as being indefinite and unreliable. In these days of automatic counting machines it is preposterous for any girl to come into a court of law——"

But it is needless to go on. The humiliation of the thoughtless girl who had failed to keep pace with the times was, of course, complete.

RATS ENDED THE STRIKE.

A Combination Against Striking Miners Which They Could Not Resist.

"Not one of the biggest, but one of the most stubborn strikes that ever occurred in the Pennsylvania coal regions," said a former mining engineer, "was ended by rats. The rats that infest coal mines are of enormous size and as ravenous as they are big. The miners not only tolerate them, but stand in awe of them, for it is a firm belief with the coal miner that these rats can foretell disaster and give warning to the miners of their danger by scurrying out of the threatened mine in droves in ample time to enable the miners to make their escape also. So careful are the workmen of these great hungry rats that it is not an uncommon sight to see a miner feeding half a dozen or more from his dinner pail. They sometimes become so tame that they will climb on a miner's lap as he sits at his underground meal and crowd around him to receive such portions of his meal as he chooses to toss to them.

"These rats never leave the mines so long as work is going on. The food of the mine mules is kept in the mines, and on this the rats largely subsist. They swarm about when the mules are eating, and sometimes the mules have to fight the rats to save their food. Often scores of dead rats will be found in a mule's stall in the mines where they have been trampled to death in efforts to secure a portion of the mule's feed. When a mine lies idle any length of time and the mules are taken out, the rats abandon it and become a great pest in the mining villages.

"The strike I refer to was caused by the refusal of a mine boss to reinstate a miner he had discharged. The men quit work. The mine owners declared they would let grass grow and choke the mouth of the slope before they would give in to the men, and the men swore that they would eat the coal and eat it, if necessary, before they would yield their point. The mules were taken from the mine and turned out to pasture. The rats, being thus deprived of their sustenance, abandoned the mine and took up their quarters about the miners' shanties, where they soon became a terror to the families. The strike continued, and the supplies of the men became exhausted. Miners at neighboring collieries who were at work responded to the requests of their striking brothers for aid and sent two wagon loads of provisions and supplies of various kinds. These were taken in charge by a committee appointed for the purpose and were stored in a building, from which they were to be distributed to the families of the miners. The very first night the supplies were in the building it was raided by a horde of rats and everything was devoured or carried away. Four different loads of provisions were contributed by the sympathetic working miners, but it was impossible to save more than one third of them from the rats. Some of the miners kept cows at that time, there being plenty of free pasturage, but soon after the strike began the cows began to fall short in their yield of milk. This was a mystery until one morning a miner discovered half a dozen big rats sucking the milk from his cow as she lay on the ground complacently chewing her cud. These combinations against them at last forced the miners to weaken, and they were compelled by and by to resume work on such terms as they could obtain, absolutely beaten by the devouring horde of rats.

BANANA RAISING IN COSTA RICA.

The Average Yield is Thirty Bunches a Month from Each Manzana.

By timing the planting, a banana plantation may be made to yield fruit constantly throughout the entire year. The average yield is thirty bunches a month from each manzana, which would be at the rate of from fifteen to eighteen bunches a month from an acre. There is no expense for transportation, for the men carry them to the railroad nearby, and the present market price for each bunch, at the railroad, is from 20 to 30 cents, gold. At the rate, then, of say 25 cents, gold, a bunch, and a yield of thirty bunches a month from each manzana, the amount received annually for the product of each manzana would be $90. The contractor's usual charge for running the plantation, covering all expenses, being $30 a manzana, it leaves a pretty good profit. Stories are often told of the bunches of bananas which have to be thrown overboard because they spoil while the ships are on their way to Northern ports, but as a matter of fact these are usually much exaggerated.—New York Tribune.

A Natural Bridge in Utah.

The greatest known natural bridge in the world has just been discovered in Utah, within four miles of the little town of Moab, in Grand county. If the spectator has ever seen the natural limestone bridge of Rockbridge county, Va., he will likely make comparisons that will greatly dwarf the latter, for it is only a little more than one-third the size of the Utah bridge. The Virginia structure, if placed beneath the Utah arch, would appear at remarkably poor advantage. The Utah bridge while about the same height as the one in Virginia—200 feet—is wider and has a thickness of 75 feet, while the same measurement on the Virginia arch is 40 feet. Then the span of the Utah bridge, from abutment to abutment, is 250 feet, while that of the Virginia structure measures only 93 feet.—Boston Herald.

The Difference.

COST OF MEAL $500 000,000.

Where the Material Came From and the Investment Necessary for a Meal

Recently, a man, who is fond of arithmetic, made up his mind that he would find out how much a dinner really cost. He first ascertained that the dinner he was eating cost seventy-five cents, presumably. He contradicted this, and then made out the following statement about the cost of that simple little dinner:

The pepper, he said, came from ten thousand miles away. It grew on a little bush about eight feet high, which must have had a growth of at least five years. The pepper was picked green; it had to be dried in the sun, and this meant employing women. It took one ship and one thousand miles of railroad to bring the pepper to the United States. The flour of which the bread was made came from Dakota; some one owned the land, and that meant the investing of capital, and then he had also to pay wages to workingmen. The flour had to be ground, and the building of the mill, and the plant, or machinery, meant more money invested. The millers had to be paid, coopers had to be paid for making the barrels, and, of course, the wood of which the barrels were made had to be cut and sawed and shaped, and this meant the employing of more men. Then the flour had to be shipped over the railroad and handled again by cartmen before it came into the house.

The tea on the table came from China and the coffee from South America. The codfish had to be brought from Maine. Men had to be employed to catch the fish; then other men and women were employed in drying, packing and boxing it, and it, too, had to make a long railroad journey. The salt came from the northwestern part of New York State. The spices in the cake came from the Spice Islands, over in the Indian Archipelago. The canned peaches came from California, and they, too, represented the employment of capital and labor. The simple little dinner represented, directly or indirectly, the employment of $500,000,000 of capital and 5,000,000 men.

Warning to Young Men.

The bicycle face is old. The bargain-counter face, the quick-lunch face and the war-bulletin face are more recent. The newest discovery in this line is the pipe face, which is grown by men who smoke pipes. The staid old Medical Record saw it first and said this of it:

THE PIPE FACE.

"The habit of smoking the pipe has a perceptible effect upon the face. The pressure of the lips to hold the pipe in position increases the curvature of the lips round the stem, and the muscles become more rigid here than in other parts. Thus the lips at a certain point become stronger and the pipe is unconsciously held in the same habitual position. After long continuation of the habit small circular wrinkles form parallel with the curvature of the lips around the stem. These are crossed by finer lines caused by the pressure of the lips to retain the pipe in position. In the case of old men who have smoked a pipe for years the effect upon the lips is very marked."

An Historic Carriage.

An historic carriage owned by the late Dr. Evans has been offered for sale at the Paris Tattersall establishment, but it was decided at the last moment to retain the vehicle as an item of the estate. In it the doctor left Paris with the Empress Eugenie on Sept. 4, 1870, when he was assisting her to reach England. It is intended by the heirs of the noted dentist to transfer the carriage to the Evans Museum, which is to be founded in America under the clauses of the doctor's will.

The vehicle will be temporarily handed over to the care of the old coachman who drove the Empress, her attendants and the doctor to the coast in 1870, when she was about to embark for England in Sir John Burgoynee's yacht. The vehicle is a landau with accommodations for four persons, and was built in 1867 for the Exhibition. About ten years since Dr. Evans had it recleaned and reembellished, in order to make a journey to Granville over the same ground as that traversed by him with the Empress in 1870. During that long drive he stopped at the same places en route as those selected on the memorable journey.

A Good Disposition.

Some day it will be found that to bring up a man with a genial nature, a good temper, and a happy frame of mind, is a greater effort than to perfect him in many accomplishments.

"How is it that your baby drops asleep at such a regular time? What do you give her?" "Nothing. Her father just stops singing to her."

SMOKELESS POWDER.

A Remarkable Compound Soon to be Used in Our Navy.

It has been remarked that gunpowder is to the gun what the soul is to the body. It gives it life and makes it of some account. It is the means to an end. Gunpowder drives the shot that the man behind the gun aims at the enemy, and enables him, if he be as skilful as most of the marksmen in the United States Navy are, to demolish his target, whether it be a bird or a man or a ship or a fort.

Ordinary gunpowder, the kind one buys in a store, is a mechanical mixture of 75 parts of saltpetre, 15 parts of charcoal and 10 parts of sulphur. The properties such a mixture possesses may be altered to any desired extent by changing these proportions; the method of treatment also modifies the character of the resulting powder, and the size and shape of the grain likewise influence the action of gunpowder.

To manufacture gunpowder quantities of each ingredient are thoroughly mixed in the proper proportions, in a machine called a mixer; the composition resulting from this is known as green powder. Green powder must be subjected to the incorporation process, an extremely dangerous one, for it is in the incorporating room that nearly all powder mill explosions occur.

The green powder is put into a tub, where heavy runners of three or four tons weight grind it into a homogeneous mixture. After incorporation the "mill cake," as it is called, is crushed between gun metal rollers, then it is subjected to different treatment, according to the kind of powder to be produced, whether grain, pebble or prismatic. Granulated powder is the ordinary grain gunpowder of commerce. Pebble powder, or giant powder, or blasting powder—for all three are practically the same—is quite like grain powder, except that each grain is of the average size of a pebble. Prismatic powder is the kind used in our service to drive shot home, therefore a short description of it may not be uninteresting.

The powder charges for guns of the United States Navy are made up of hexagonal prisms of brown gunpowder. Brown gunpowder contains usually about 82 parts of nitre, three parts of sulphur and fifteen parts of underburned charcoal, which accounts for the chocolate color of the powder. Prismatic powder passes through the same process as other powders, only the grains are pressed into prisms by hydraulic machinery instead of being separated and glazed. The prisms thus formed are one inch high and three-quarters of an inch on the sides; there is a round hole, half an inch in diameter, through the middle of each hexagon.

Smokeless powder is so called because when exploded it produces no smoke. As a matter of fact, however, a light, thin, transparent vapor is usually seen, but it quickly disappears. Smokeless powders, from the nature of the ingredients employed in making them, leave no residue when exploded, the products of the combustion being gaseous, whereas in ordinary gun powders, whether black or brown, the products are partly gaseous and partly solid, the solid parts being visible in the deposit left in the bore of the gun, in the bits of fire blown out of the muzzle at the time of discharge and in the thick, heavy smoke that hangs about, obscuring the view.

Japanese Babies.

When a boy baby comes to a Japanese family it is the invariable custom to put a huge paper fish, resembling a carp, on a bamboo pole outside the door. This is done in the first month of May after the boy's birth. The carp is the chosen emblem, because it is strong and hardy and is typical of good luck. When the baby is a month old it is presented at the temple and a first name given it, the choosing of which is novel. The father writes on three slips of paper different names. The priest prays, tosses the slips in the air and the one first striking the floor is supposed to be especially favored by the god of the temple, and is chosen.

When the Japanese baby is 3 years old he begins to wear the obi or girdle, which confines the loose robe worn by all Japanese and commonly called a kimono. When the boy is 15 he is considered of age, and a feast is held by his relatives, another name is given him and his head no longer shaved on top. He is now a man and his relatives, even the nearest, in addressing him, must now affix "San" to his name. San corresponds to our "Mr." If his name is Omi he will hereafter be addressed as Omi-san.

Even the tiniest villages have their toy shops, for Japanese children are all liberally supplied with playthings. The business of amusing children is a recognized industry, and the street jugglers, acrobats, singers and story-tellers make comfortable livings. In the family the children are amused by the father, who tells them stories of Japanese heroes and warriors, or they play cards. Sometimes they play a game like checkers, in moves, but requiring 360 pieces instead of twenty-four. Backgammon, theatricals and kite-flying are also popular among children. When there is snow the youngsters play just as our own children do. Football, stilt-walking and contests with tops are in vogue.

New Soldering Liquid.

A German has brought out a soldering liquid which is acid free. It is made by dissolving 500 parts of zinc in 1000 parts of hydrochloric acid and 500 parts of water. When the solution is complete the remaining free acid is neutralized by the addition of ammonia water.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Despite the heavy rain last Friday evening the streets about town were in remarkable good condition yesterday, making cycling a pleasure.

The Eldridge Bicycle Company have sold wheels to the following: Miss Negley, Henry Dencklau, Lester A. Walton, H. S. Phillips and George Webb.

It is hoped that Ray Poole and Peter Simmonds will meet in Lister's next road race. They should both start from the same mark and then an exciting contest may be looked for.

An armature in W. H. Rogers' machine shop burned out early this week, and until yesterday wheelmen have been obliged to pump their own air. The repairs have been made, and now "free air" is on tap again.

Harry K. Lister is now preparing for another 15-mile road race, in which the fast men of local fame can again try conclusions with each other. He has announced it for Thursday evening, August 4th, to begin promptly at 7 o'clock. Entry blanks can be secured from him. Entries close Aug. 1st. There will be prizes for the first six men to finish and for the two men who make the fastest time.

Last evening Robert Angleman and Henry Angerbauer managed some races on East Front street which were participated in by several young riders. Fred Dunavan won the 2-mile race, Matthew Sweeney came in second and A. Utzinger third. L. Sutterlein won the one mile, Sweeney got second and John Callahan third. Wednesday night A. Marsh won a five-mile race managed by the same two. Sweeney came in second and Callahan third. Prizes were awarded to the winners, having been purchased with the entrance fees.

More amateur bicycle races are booked for Wednesday evening next at Maltby's track, towards South Plainfield. The races are open to amateur riders only, and are to be held at 5 o'clock. G. H. Kenyon, of West Front street, is getting up the races, and they will be run under his management. There are to be four races: A five-mile handicap; two-mile handicap; one-mile open, and one mile open for boys under sixteen. Suitable prizes are offered. In the five-mile handicap the winner will get an electro bicycle lamp; the second man, a racing suit; third, L. A. W. gold watch charm. Two-mile handicap prizes are silver medal, gold cuff buttons, silver scarf pin. One-mile open, wool sweater, bicycle shoes, cyclometer. Boys' race, cyclometer, bicycle stockings, pocket knife. The time prize is six silver spoons. In case of rain Wednesday evening the races will be postponed for one week.

ROD AND GUN.

Albert J. Leader, of Duer street, spent yesterday fishing at the fishing banks. He reports having made a big catch.

CHANGE IN A TROLLEY ROUTE.

Mr. Gaddis Expects to Secure Franchises Through to Elizabeth.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Cranford, July 23—At the meeting of the Township Committee last evening, when the vote was to be taken upon granting a right of way to the Elizabeth and Westfield Trolley Company, the Committee was much surprised at the request of the company for permission to withdraw the application and present an entirely new one, with a change of route at Garwood, where the company had been opposed by the Garwood Land Improvement Company, whose consent had, however, been obtained to a route from Centre street, through Spruce street to South avenue.

This change will necessitate the withdrawal of the application pending before the Westfield Township Committee. Mr. Gaddis who represents the trolley company, stated last night that there would now be clear sailing, and that applications would be made to the Borough Council of Roselle at their next meeting for right of way through that place, which will make the last link in the chain necessary to reach Elizabeth.

Will F. Williams, manager for Mulford Estil, and Mrs. Williams started today on their annual vacation, which will be spent in Philadelphia with relatives.

LONG FINGER NAILS.

Indicate Rank and Good Breeding in Many Oriental Countries.

The countries where the long finger nail is most affected are Siam, Assam, Cochin China and China. The approved length varies from three or four to twenty-three inches. A Siamese exquisite permits the nails on his fingers to grow to such an extent that his hands are practically useless. The aristocrats who affect these nails cannot write, dress themselves or even feed themselves.

The Siamese hold the long finger nail in the same reverence we hold the family tree. Many of them never have had their nails cut from the day of their birth. On the first finger the nail is of moderate length—three or four inches—while on the other fingers the nails grow occasionally to two feet. The thumb nail, which is also allowed to grow long, after reaching a certain length curves around like a corkscrew.

In both China and Siam the owners of long nails wear metal cases over them to preserve them, made of gold or silver, and jeweled. While long nails are not regarded as singular in China, they are rarely met with except on fanatics and pedantic scholars.

Among the fakirs in Hindoostan, a peculiar custom is that of holding the hand tightly clinched and in one position so long that at last the nails grow through the palm, emerging at the back of the hand and growing thence almost to the wrist. When the wasted muscles refuse to support the arm any longer it is bound in position with cords.

In Nubia the long naisl is regarded as indicative of good breeding. The aristocrats constantly subject their finger tips to cedar wood fire to insure a good growth.

The inhabitants of the Marquesa Islands are among the most expert tattooers on earth, and not even the crown of the head, the fingers and the toes are exempt from the needle. The hands are ornamented with utmost care, all the fingers having their own pattern, so the hand would look as though incased in a tight-fitting glove were it not for the finger nails of enormous length which complete the hand adornment of the wealthier natives.—Chicago News.

ABOUT ROYAL FEET.

Queen Victoria Wears a No. 8—The Empress of Germany Splay Footed.

Though it is an accepted fact of Spanish etiquette that "the Queen of Spain has no feet," so much cannot be said of Victoria, Empress of India, Queen of Great Britain and Ireland. Short and pudgy as she is—something under five feet—the royal lady wears a No. 8 as do all her daughters. Therein she shows her German blood—as does Maria Christina, Spain's Queen Regent, who is by birth an Austrian archduchess. Her predecessor, Mercedes, a true Spanish Bourbon albeit the daughter of the French Duc de Montpensier, had, it is said, the foot of a fairy. Therein she resembled her aunt and mother-in-law, ex-Queen Isabella, who, though of most unwieldy figure, possessed in her youth royally delicate extremities. It was one of her great-grandmothers whose beautifully slender foot, trim ankle and highly arched instep, drew from a foreign Ambassador a compliment, which the Spanish Minister to whom it was spoken, answered so crushingly, "Senor, the Queen of Spain has no feet."

Germany's Empress, it is irreverently whispered, inclines to be splay-footed, though otherwise she is a well made woman. Princess Alix of Hesse now Czarina, treads upon a foot long and slender, as becomes one of her height. Rumor saeth not as to the feet of Italy's Queen Margherite, "the pearl of Savoy"—but it does tell how [illegible] as the collection of ancient royal [illegible] gear.—New York World.

Dewey Got Even with Farragut.

When Dewey was first lieutenant of one of the gunboats which Farragut used as a dispatch boat the admiral used often to come aboard and steam up near the levee to reconnoitre. The Southerners had a way of rushing a field piece to the top of the high bank, firing point blank at the gunboat and then backing down again. Upon one such occasion Farragut saw Dewey dodge. "Why don't you stand firm, lieutenant?" said he; "don't you know you can't jump quick enough?" A day or so after the admiral dodged a shot. The lieutenant smiled and held his tongue, but the admiral had a guilty conscience. He cleared his throat once or twice, shifted his attitude and finally declared: "Why, sir, you can't help it, sir. It's human nature, and there's an end of it!"—Argonaut.

Love Makes Cowards.

Willie—Ma, I'm not afraid of policemen any longer.

Mrs. Williams—You're not, Willie?

Willie—No; there was a policeman in the kitchen with cook last night, and when I walked in on them I could see that he was frightened half to death.—New York Herald.

A Bond of Friendship.

Cholly Softley (concluding the interview)—And if you refuse me your daughter I shall kill myself, sir.

Colonel Fireater (warmly grasping his hand)—And I will nevah forget it of you, suh, and I beg to thank you kindly, suh, for taking the job off my hands, suh.—Judge.

Lady (engaging a new cook) Can you clean bicycles?

Cook—No, lady, but I can give you the address where I have mine cleaned.—Fliegende Blatter.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—Mr. Marclay, of New street, will address the 4 o'clock meeting in Reform Hall tomorrow.

—The memorial drinking fountain on West Second street, having been out of repair several days, is all right again and invites the public to bring their horses and have a drink.

—The chief objection against the use of fly paper is that somebody is always likely to sit on it, put their hand in it or some way become entangled in its stickiness. L. W. Randolph, the West Front street pharmacist, has a method of successfully overcoming that unpleasantness. It is a wire frame work in which the paper rests that is convenient, neat and very effectual at keeping everything except flies off the paper. They are sold at a very low price.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

F. H. Smith, of Madison avenue, is sojourning at Noyes Beach, R. I.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. MacClymont, of Washington avenue, are summering at Fairport, N. Y.

Rev. J. B. Taylor and family, of Park avenue, are stopping at the Victoria, Asbury Park.

Mrs. G. T. Rhoades and son, of Grove street, have returned from a short stay at Asbury Park.

Miss Eva Jenkins, of East Sixth street, is entertaining Miss Ida Van-Middlesworth, of New Brunswick.

"FLORA'S" NEW DANCES.

Nothing Approaching Them Ever Before Witnessed on the Stage.

"Flora" will catch Plainfielders in the meshes of some startling new dances and set the town awhirl. With new music by Charles L. Hamer, additional electrical effects, startling rainbow colorings, and specially imported costumes. Commencing with Monday's performance, the queen of color and light dances promises to give something that will as far excel anything in which she has hitherto been seen, as her present act is in advance of all others who have attempted to imitate her. "Flora" will appear at every performance both afternoon and evening with the "Sullivan Troubadours."

Human Nature.

It's a frailty of human nature that we will go miles and undergo great expense to see or obtain that which when at our doors we daily pass by with indifference. The lesson of this should prove beneficial to sufferers from weak eyes. Don't wait until long suffering has made a cure remote and expensive, but seek at once the relief which is at your very door at Collier's, where such relief at a trifling expense is guaranteed you.

HIS DUTY FOLLOWS THE MAUSER BULLETS

Daniel C. Main Is With Shafter's Ambulance Train.

SPANISH FIRE ON RED CROSS

THE WAY THE AMERICANS FOUGHT WAS HEROIC.

The Work of the Hospital Corps is Dangerous—Dr. Main Gives an Interesting and Thrilling Description of His Work Among the Wounded—Helping the Women and Children.

Daniel C. Main, son of Rev. A. H. Main, of this city, a member of the ambulance train with Gen. Shafter's army, has written as follows to his father:

On Board Transport Louisiana,
Monday, June 27.

We pulled out from Port Tampa this morning. There are on board two pack trains of mules, about 100 recruits for the Second infantry, a lot of ammunition and rations, besides our outfit, which consists of ten ambulances, ten civilian drivers, forty mules, about ten horses and twenty-one hospital corps men. We have two rooms to ourselves, one of twelve, the other of six bunks, in the steerage, and consider ourselves lucky. It is very pleasant and cool. We think we are bound for Santiago.

You ought to have seen us leading unruly mules aboard. I believe now I could stop a train if I had a rope around the smoke stack.

(Later, at anchor in a Cuban harbor twelve miles from Santiago.)

We came a roundabout way to avoid Spanish boats, for we had no convoy.

As we were nearing the Cuban coast a gunboat came in sight and fired a solid shot across our bow. There was great excitement until we learned that it was an American vessel; and then it guided us into a harbor. The men are having great times getting the mules ashore. They are shoved overboard by twos and towed close to shore, and then turned loose to swim by themselves.

Wednesday and Wednesday night it was pretty rough and many were sick. Their sentiment was, "Oh, Mr. Chaplain, stop the ship, I want to get off and walk!"

Cuba must be a beautiful country if what is before us is a sample, with its mountains and green valleys.

We can see our ships engaged in some bombardment, and the noise of battle on land can be heard.

We reached the coast of Cuba June 30th, landing July 1. Probably the fiercest fighting history has ever known raged here July 1st, 2d and 3d. We drove eighteen miles and went right to work between the battlefield and the hospital. You have no doubt read of the fighting done by the Ninth Cavalry, the Thirteenth Infantry, and the Seventy-first N. Y. Volunteers. The official report here is 2,200 lost and wounded.

Landing in the forenoon, and before getting anything to eat, I was sent to the front with an ambulance. I went to a dressing station at the foot of a hill on the top of which was a block-house which our boys had taken that morning. The bullets came over the hill and struck all around the station, and often a shell would come over, sometimes exploding in the air, sometimes often striking the ground.

In the afternoon I carrid canteens of water from the creek up to the soldiers in the trenches around the block house. There I saw men fall, and it was terrible. That night I went in with three army wagon loads of wounded men, and on the road we passed through some fighting. Some of our soldiers lay in the road shooting at, and being shot by Spanish sharpshooters. Foreign officers say they never saw or heard of such fighting as our boys have done.

The Spanish have been shooting at our Red Cross men; but English and German officers went into Santiago under flag of truce and made a vigorous protest.

Our ambulances went into the city under flag of truce and help to care for and carry from the city to Caney, women and children, as we expected to bombard the town.

AIMED AT LIVE BIRDS.

TRAP SHOOTERS CONTESTED AT DUNELLEN SATURDAY.

The Principal Event Was the Team Shoot Between the Bound Brook and Dunellen Teams — The Scores.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, July 25.—There was a gathering of the trap shooters from this section at the grounds of the Dunellen Gun Club Saturday afternoon when the club held a shoot at live birds, the first since the formal organization of the Central New Jersey Trap Shooting League. Despite the threatening weather, the afternoon's sport was excellent and some fine scores were recorded. There was little wind and no sun to bother the shooters. The birds were a well-chosen lot and flew well despite the fine mist that occasionally fell. Neaf Apgar pulled the traps.

The event of the afternoon was the match between the teams from the Bound Brook Gun Club and the Dunellen Gun Club. A week before the Climax Gun Club, of Plainfield, had defeated the Dunellen team and the latter was anxious to recover their lost laurels by winning a victory. The Bound Brookites were shooting in fine form, however, and won out in the match by just two birds.

Then followed a special match between Lindzey and Cramer, of Dunellen, against Lair and Tingley, of Bound Brook. The Dunellen cracks made a clean score and won. Then there were several sweepstakes of lesser importance. Adam Dealman was scorekeeper.

The scores of the matches were as follows:

Team event. Five-men teams. Ten birds.

TO EDUCATE COLORED ORPHANS.

A Colored Preacher Solicits Alms in the Baptist Churches.

Rev. R. H. Johnson, an aged colored preacher from Brooklyn, was present in the First and the Park Avenue Baptist churches yesterday morning soliciting alms for the running expenses of a home in Brooklyn for the care and education of colored orphan children. At the First Baptist church he made his plea at the session of the Sunday-school and received about $4. At the Park Avenue church church he was given an opportunity to present his cause after the morning sermon, and received a generous contribution from the congregation.

Rev. Mr. Johnson was familiar to many members of both churches, as he has been in this city several times on a similar mission. The institution which he represents is a worthy one and Plainfield people seemed anxious to help him.

COMMANDER BOOTH HERE.

The American Volunteer Leader to to Speak This Evening.

Commander Ballington Booth and Staff Band are expected in Plainfield at 6 o'clock this evening. The Commander will go to Francis Woods for dinner while the band will march down Somerset street to the officers quarters where they will be entertained. Notices were given out in all the churches yesterday and a good attendance is looked for. Doors will be open at 7 o'clock and those wishing good seats should come early.

A Losing Excursion.

The report of the excursion committee of the First Presbyterian and other Sunday schools shows that a deficit of $104.94 exists as the rusult of the excursion to Asbury Park Thursday. This is considered as remarkable for so dull a season, and divided between the Sunday-schools of the four churches that joined in the excursion will make a small proportion for each one to bear.

In the White Mountains.

In the chronicle of White Mountain visitors is reported the arrival of Mrs. Pliny Fisk, Miss Edith Fisk and Miss Dorothy Fisk, of West Seventh street, as guests at the cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Chares J. Fisk at Onaway, near the Waumbeck. The grand hop at Waumbeck is also reported and the presence of Miss Louise Fisk and Messrs. Charles J. Fisk, Augustus Fisk and Harvey Fisk.

To Hold a Camp Meeting.

The members of St. Peter's A. M. E. Mt. Zion church are preparing to hold a camp meeting in Charles Hyde's grove beginning July 30th. The church was organized eighteen months ago as a mission, but at the general conference held in Paterson, April 29th, the mission was recognized as a church by the assembly.

ARE GLAD TO SURRENDER.

Spanish Are Willing to Stop Fighting.

LIEUT. MILEY REPORTS.

SURRENDER OF GUANTANAMO IS IMPORTANT.

Outlying Spanish Garrisons Are Glad To Give Up Their Arms and Make No Objections To the Terms.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Santiago de Cuba, July 24, via Playa del Este, July 25, 1:20 p. m—With the exception of those at Guantanamo, all the Spanish troops within the area of territory indicated in Gen. Toral's capitulation have given up their arms and surrendered to the authority of the United States.

Lieutenant Miley, of Gen. Shafter's staff, who was designated as the head of the commission to receive the surrender of the Spanish troops in the outlying districts, has just returned from an expedition with that end in view.

He reports that he had not the least trouble in obtaining the surrender of the various garrisons of the Spanish. The Spanish soldiers gave up their arms, not only without reluctance but with a feeling of relief at the termination of hostilities that the surrender assured.

Three thousand stands of arms were turned over to the Americans and have just arrived here. The rich and influential plantation owners declare that the Spanish volunteers and guerillas are ready and willing to work as zealously as they fought.

They are of the opinion that prosperity will quickly come to the country with peace under the American flag.

The surrender of Guantanamo is of greater importance than was first believed. Over seven thousand troops, the greater part of whom are seasoned regulars of the Spanish army.

The commission left yesterday on their return from Guantanamo. It is said that the surrender of the troops there will be accomplished without the slightest difficulty. The reports of fighting between the Cubans and the Spaniards have proved to be untrue.

A Soldier's Complaint.

Rutherford Hayes Daley, of Manning avenue, who recently enlisted and is now located at Fort Hancock, spent Sunday with his wife on Manning avenue. While at home Mr. Daley related some incidents in connection with affairs at Fort Hancock. He says the soldiers are fed exceedingly poor. The morning breakfast, he says, consists of a piece of fat pork the size of a business card, a cup of black coffee, without milk, and a piece of hardtack.

Couldn't Survive the Operation.

Yesterday morning occurred the death of Pearl Amermen, nine-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Amermen, of 17 Stone street, in the borough, and the parents have the sympathy of a host of friends and acquaintances in their severe loss and bereavement. An operation was performed on the daughter a few days ago which proved to be unsuccessful. The end came quietly and peaceful yesterday morning.

A Small Bone Broken.

Victor Clemens, aged 6 years old, of Washingtonville, fell off the porch at his home yesterday and sustained a fracture of a small bone of the leg. The little fellow was taken to the hospital this morning and received proper treatment, after which he was able to be taken home. The injury is not a serious one.

FOUGHT LIKE FIENDS DID THREE BROTHERS.

A Disgraceful Row That Occurred at Westfield.

SHOTGUN A PEACEMAKER.

W. H. BURTON THREATENED TO MAIM THE SCRAPPERS.

The Brothers Got Into a Wordy Argument Which Ended in Blows—They Fought in a Ferocious Manner Until the Firearm Was Aimed at Them—Where Was the Constabulary Force?

[Special to The Daily Press.]

Westfield, July 25—One of the most disgraceful fights that has ever happened in Westfield occurred at 10 o'clock last night in front of W. H. Burton's livery stable at the corner of North avenue and Prospect street. Hugh, Gus and John McGilvey, brothers, and Hank McGilvey, a nephew, were concerned in it, and, until the proprietor of the livery stable appeared on the scene of the battle with a shotgun and threatened to shoot if the scrap was not stopped in front of his property, the men fought each other in a ferocious manner.

The three brothers met and got into an argument over some trivial matter which soon resolved itself into a battle royal. The brothers were fighting like fiends when the nephew, who is employed in the livery stable, rushed pell-mell into the fighting men and commenced to kick the combatants with his feet. Two of them were knocked down and received serious gashes and bruises about their head and shoulders. Curses and yells accompanied the blows and served to arouse the whole neighborhood.

Bartle heard the fighting and yelling, and getting out of bed he dressed himself hurriedly, and grabbing a shotgun, which he has handy in case of burglars, he rushed down stairs. Bartle put on a bold front, and pointing his gun at the fighters threatened to shoot into them if they did not stop fighting and disperse. The sight of the shotgun had a pacifying effect upon their pugnacious dispositions, and they hastily assumed a peaceable attitude.

The residents of the neighborhood tried to find some officers, but they all seemed to have suddenly disappeared, and no arrests were made. The residents are considerably incensed over the inactivity of the constabulary force.

WORK AMONG SOLDIERS

SCOTCH EVANGELIST TELLS OF LIFE AT SANDY HOOK.

Several of the Recruits Have Experienced Religion Since Joining the Army—Many of Them Patronize the Canteen.

Thomas Graham, the Scotch evangelist, who is engaged in Y. M. C. A. work among the 1,300 soldiers stationed at Sandy Hook, addressed the 4:15 o'clock meeting at the association in this city yesterday afternoon upon the work being done there.

Mr. Graham and a companion began to hold their meetings in a coal shed on the Hook, but are now in posession of a Y. M. C. A. tent, fitted up with the necessary stationery, reading matter, ice water coolers, chairs, settees, etc.

The religious services, he says, are well attended, and many of the boys have been converted during their stay on the Hook. The boys are much impressed with the care which the Y. M. C. A. men takes of them, and often want to know who "puts up" for all the conveniences, and one man, who said he had never been in a church before in his life, attended one of these services in a gospel chapel and was converted.

Last Wednesday, the speaker said, the soldier boys were all paid off, and with the State and regular pay received about $36. Many of them went over to the canteen at once and began spending it for drink while others were prevailed upon by Mr. Graham to send a part of their money home.

The soldiers are housed in small tents, the largest ones holding thirteen and the smaller ones four men. Their beds are bundles of straw and in the morning they come out of the tents shaking the straw off their clothing, and proceed to dress in the camp streets, for there is not room enough inside. At night the tents are so warm that the men can hardly breath, yet with all these discomforts the boys do not complain, and rather enjoy soldiering.

MILES IS AT PORTO RICO.

So The Officials at Washington are Confident.

NO WORD FROM HIM YET.

CORBIN DOES NOT EXPECT IT FOR SEVERAL DAYS.

Meanwhile the Preparations For the Expedition Are Going Forward and Troops Are Moving For Embarkation.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Washington, July 25, 1:47 p.m. —It is considered that Gen. Miles has arrived at the point of debarkation decided upon on the coast of Porto Rico, although no definite information to that effect has been received.

Adjutant General Corbin says, however, that the administration does not expect to hear from him for several days owing to the distance he will have to send to reach the nearest cable station.

He is expected to effect a landing with his present troops under cover of the guns of the war ships in the convoy. The Panama and Senaca will shortly prepare to join him with more troops.

Washington, July 25, 12:58 p. m.—As soon as the transports arrive from Santiago all the remaining troops at Tampa will be embarked for Porto Rico.

Orders have been issued to the First Florida, Second Georgia and Fifth Maryland Volunteers to prepare for embarkation.

Chattanooga, July 25, 1 p. m.—Four batteries of artillery have departed for Newport News to embark as part of the expedition against Porto Rico.

The second division of the First Corps is not expected to leave for the coast for at least a week. The third brigade is still at Camp Thomas, but is expected to leave Wednesday.

THE PEACE QUESTION.

High Spanish Official Talks Hopefully on the Subject—His Views.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Madrid, July 25, 1:32 p. m—A prominent official who stands high in the Spanish Government stated today that the quarrel between the United States and Spain is much easier of adjustment than is generally believed.

He says that the Queen Regent endeavored to avoid war and now desires an honorable peace. He also intimated that the present government would not initiate the peace movement but that a modified cabinet, headed by Senor Gamezo, will conclude the negotiations and then retire.

Then Senor Pelavieja, with a combination including Silvella and Gen. Campos, will reorganize the country and place it on a firmer basis than it now stands.

Everybody here considers that Spain should treat directly with the United States in settling the terms of peace and in the accompanying negotiations.

HOBSON IN NEW YORK.

Is Now Busily Conferring With Wrecking Company About Raising the Colon.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

New York, July 25, 1:32 p.m—Lieut. Hobson returned to this city this morning from Washington.

Upon his arrival, he went immediately to the office of the wrecking company to complete the preparations

KEPT THE BOSS'S MONEY

THAT IS THE CHARGE MADE AGAINST FRED WILLIBALD.

Formal Complaint Made by His Sister, Mrs. Steven MacIntyre, of Bayonne, for Whom He Formerly Worked.

Fred Willibald, formerly of this city, was arrested Saturday night by Sergeant Kiely charged by his sister, Mrs. Steven MacIntyre, of Bayonne, with embezzlement. The warrant was endorsed by Justice Nash, and Willibald was turned over to the Bayonne authorities who took him to that place last night.

MacIntyre is a boss plumber doing business in Bayonne. Willibald has been working for him for several months, and has lately been collecting MacIntyre's bills. MacIntyre claims that Willibald has not turned the money over. Just how much the alleged shortage is cannot be ascertained, but it is undersood to be about $75. MacIntyre says that he discovered the alleged embezzlement when customers to whom he sent bills came in and showed receipts for payment in full signed by Willibald.

Willibald was discharged and came here. Last Sunday Mrs. MacIntyre saw Chief Grant and asked him to have her brother arrested which he promised to do, providing she made out a complaint before a Bayonne magistrate in the proper form. This request was complied with, and Saturday the Chief received word from police headquarters in Bayonne to arrest Willibald.

PEACEMAKER IN JAIL.

He Escaped Without Fine, While the Others Paid for Their Fun.

They quarreled. Ed. Corrigan tried to soothe their ruffled spirits. The police came and took them all away. The combatants and peacemaker languished in jail Saturday night. Yesterday morning City Judge DeMeza gave them a hearing. Thomas F. Keenan and James Smith were given a choice between a fine of $3 and ten days in the county jail. Although the times are hard, freedom had its attractions. Corrigan escaped punishment, for the Judge suspended sentence.

Patrick O'Connor would not harm anybody except himself. He partook too freely and did the borough. Then he came over into Plainfield with a like intent. He soon ran afoul of the police, however. He kept the other three company amid the creeping and crawling things that hold carnival at the rookery. Yesterday morning the City Judge supended sentence on him.

Quick Payment of Insurance.

A short time ago the Rev. F. W. Raikes, a member of Erie Lodge, No. 736, Knights of Honor, died at Dunkirk, N. Y., and in ten days from the time of death Mrs. Raikes, who since moved to North Plainfield, received a check from Senate Lodge, No. 3,542, Knights of Honor, of this city. Immediately after death the matter was referred to the Supreme Lodge at St. Louis, and they in turn communicated with the Plainfield lodge. The committee from the Plainfield lodge, consisting of T. C. Smith, J. R. Phillips, J. H. VanMiddlesworth and R. A. Frey, having the matter in charge duly turned over to Mrs. Raikes the $2,000, who was much pleased at the quickness in which the business was transacted.

Another Picnic.

The postponed picnic of Miantonomo tribe of Red Men was held again Saturday evening with much success. This is the second time it has been held and the promoters are so much satisfied with the general results that they are considering the advisibility of postponing it again and holding another picnic. Financially, it was a decided success and so prompts further efforts. There were nearly four hundred present at Mountain Park Grove where it was held and all enjoyed a pleasant evening. The same committee as before was in charge.

In Trinity's Pulpit.

Rev. Carlos Martyn, D. D., of New York, who last August so ably supplied the pulpit of Trinity Reformed church during the vacation of Rev. Dr. Schenck, has again been secured by Elder J. P. Laire, chairman of the supply committee, to preach both morning and evening next month, during the absence of the pastor, Rev. Dr. Schenck.

Great Temperance Man Coming.

Rev. Albert G. Lawton, the Most Worthy Patriarch of the Sons of Temperance of North America and Great Britain, will speak in Reform Hall, Wednesday evening under the auspices of Howell Division. There will also be musical and literary features.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. A. Bauersachs, of the borough, entertained relatives from Newark over Sunday.

RELIGIOUS CANTATA BY A CHURCH CHOIR.

"The Vision of St. John" Heard in First Baptist Church.

A FINISHED RENDITION.

LARGE MUSIC-LOVING AUDIENCE WAS PRESENT.

C. W. McCutchen, Director, and Howard Case, Organist, Deserve Great Credit for the Presentation of the Sacred Music—Solo Work of Miss Harris was a Feature—Choir Will Rest.

A thorough music-loving audience gathered at the First Baptist church last evening to listen to the rendition of a cantata, "The Vision of St. John," by C. W. Coombs, which was given by the church choir under the direction of Howard Case, organist. The choir was also assisted by Miss Carroll, alto, and L. H. Biglow, Jr., tenor. The solo parts were taken by Miss Harris, soprano; Mrs. Ward, contralto; G. W. Smith and L. H. Biglow, Jr., tenors.

The presentation of the cantata was perfect. Each part, as well as the chorus, was given with a finish that was delightful. The solo work of Miss Harris was a feature, her rich, sweet voice adding greatly to the rendition. Mrs. Ward's singing was equally enjoyed, as was that also of Mr. Smith and Mr. Biglow. There was a trio by Miss Harris, Mrs. Ward and Miss Blair, and a quartette by Miss Harris, Mrs. Ward, Miss Blair and Miss Randolph. The parts were well taken and the voices blended in sweetest harmony. Another part by Miss Harris, Mrs. Ward and G. W. Smith was a feature.

The cantata is a beautiful composition, highly religious, and it being its first rendition in this city, was a rare musical treat. After the musical service Rev. Dr. Yerkes, pastor, delivered a short discourse, taking for his subject the Book of Revelation. The talk was listened to with interest. In conclusion Miss Harris sang a beautiful solo while the offertory was being taken. This will conclude the work of the choir until next fall and the members will now have their usual vacation.

REPAIRING STORM'S DAMAGE.

Street Commissioner's Men Are Kept Busy—Culverts Being Completed.

Street Commissioner Gavett's men have been kept busy since Thursday night repairing the mischief done to the streets by the heavy storm. Many culverts were choked with an accumulation of mud and dirt, particularly the culverts on the corner of Front and Washington streets and on West Eighth street and Plainfield avenue.

The men are getting the streets and gutters in shape again very fast. Patsy Christmas, the contractor, will finish the drain on East Second street today, and tomorrow expects to take up the Plainfield avenue culvert.

CONDUCTORS LAID OFF.

Central Men Take an Unexpected Vacation—Cause of it Unknown.

Some changes were made last Saturday by the Central Railroad Company in the conductors on the passenger trains. Bert Hyser, who had charge of an Easton train, was laid off, while Mr. Jeffery, conductor on a Philadelphia train, and Mr. Brokaw, who had a Somerville run, has been treated the same way. Reasons for this action have not yet been learned. All three men were popular and have been in the service for some time.

The Hobson Grip.

E. E. Anthony, of 444 West Front street, is probably the only person in Plainfield who can give the "Hobson grip," as he had the pleasure of shaking hands with Lieut. Hobson Saturday during his call at the office of the Merritt Wrecking Co., 49 Wall street, New York.

To Pray for Brave Boys.

The Royal Santiago Circle, Mothers of American Protectors, will hold a prayer and praise service this evening at 8 o'clock at the home of Mrs. W. J. Ford, 222 East Fourth street, near Watchung avenue. The subject will be "Consolation," and Mrs. Seeley Edsall will lead the meeting.

Dissolution of Partnership.

Walter Overbaugh and Daniel L. Dodge, who have been carrying on a lunch and soda water business on North avenue under the firm name of Dodge & Overbaugh, dissolved partnership Saturday night, the business continuing to be run by Mr. Dodge.

M. D. Brown, of 404 East Fourth street, has returned from a two months' visit in New York, Brooklyn and Connecticut.

MILES TO DEBARK SUNDAY

Porto Rico Troops That Have Gone and Are Going. The Krag Jorgensen Rifles and Smokeless Powder to Be Supplied. The Invading Army Will Be Large. Troops Sighted off Haytien Coast.

Washington, July 25.--Major General Miles has not reported to the war department his arrival at Porto Rico. The officials expect, however, that he reached his destination some time Sunday.

Miles's army was expected to arrive off the coast Saturday night. The original plan was that he should leave Guantanamo at 3 p. m. on Thursday, which would bring him off Porto Rico Saturday at 3 p. m. He was delayed, however, at Mole St. Nicholas, by the non-arrival there of his tugs, lighters, barges and snap boats. He waited there to get news of them and from the fact that the war vessels passed Cape Haytien only Friday night, it is calculated that he was delayed about four hours at Mole St. Nicholas.

One of the navigation bureau officials stated that if General Miles intended to land so small a force as 3,400 men, he had selected a place where very little opposition was anticipated. In that event he would not be embarrassed by the absence of tugs and lighters. He could at least land his infantry in the barges of the convoy, as was partly done at Baiquiri.

The plan appears to contemplate a bombardment by the monitors and Massachusetts of San Juan at the approximate time of Miles's landing and a feint at one or more places, as was done at Aguadores and Cabanites when Shafter was landing. The places named for the landing are Guanica on the south coast and Fajardo on the east coast, and also at Vieques.

Troops A and C of the New York volunteer cavalry and three troops of the Pennsylvania cavalry left Camp Alger shortly after two o'clock Friday morning for Newport News. These troops left for Porto Rico last evening with Major General Brooke and the brigade commanded by General Haines.

The troops now under orders for Porto Rico or en route to that island form what is known as the first detachment of the Porto Rican expedition. There will be one and possibly two more expeditions.

The soldiers who are with General Miles are the Sixth Illinois, Sixth Massachusetts, Batteries C and F of the Third artillery, B and F of the Fourth, B of the Fifth and 275 recruits.

The troops embarked from Tampa are the Nineteenth and Eleventh regular infantryq, Troop B of the Second United States cavalry and Batteries C and M of the Seventh artillery.

The remainder of the first detachment consists of Troop H of the Sixth United States cavalry, Company F of the Eighth infantry, General Ernst's brigade, which is made up of the Second and Third Missouri and the Sixteenth Pennsylvania; General Hains's brigade, consisting of the Fourth Ohio, Fourth Pennsylvania and Third Illinois; General Grant's brigade, organized to have the First and Third Kentucky, and the Fifth Illinois; the five troops ordered from Camp Alger, which are A and C of New York and three troops from Pennsylvania.

These troops are all either on their way to Porto Rico or under orders to proceed as soon as transportation can be furnished.

An official of the war department who stands high in authority says that the entire Porto Rican army of infantry would be supplied with Krag-Jorgensen rifles and smokeless powder. These rifles will be sent to Porto Rico immediately.

Owing to the wish of every regiment to go to the front, the president will send a larger army to Porto Rico than is considered absolutely necessary. He is desirous to give every regiment service at the front.

Orders have been sent to Major General Shafter directing him to immediately send to Tampa transport ships sufficient in number to carry 6,000 men. He was further directed to send all other transports under his command to large body of troops will embark from New York for Porto Rico.

New York city. This indicates that a

It was stated in the dispatch to General Shafter that the government intended to bring the entire Fifth army corps from Santiago to the United States for rest as soon as it was considered safe.

Major General Coppinger, commanding the Fourth army corps, has been directed to send the Fifth Maryland, First Florida and the Second Georgia regiments to Santiago de Cuba. These regiments will assist the immunes in keeping order in the territory surrendered by General Toral.

General Shafter has cabled Secretary Alger that he can send three transports each day to the United States. This was in answer to the order directing General Shafter to send all the transports under his command to Tampa and New York city.

Seen Passing to the North of Hayti.

Washington, July 25.--General Miles and his troops are now off the coast of Porto Rico, unless the ships conveying them have met with delay. This cablegram from Cape Haytien, Hayti, dated yesterday, shows that the fleet of transports was making good time when last signalled.

"Four large American warships were sighted off the harbor at six o'clock last evening. They were going in the direction of Porto Rico.

"The German bark Carl, Captain Vols, arrived here to-day. Her commander reports that he saw eight American warships last night at nine o'clock off the coast of Hayti.

"He had a searchlight on his ship and tried to make out the names of the Americans, but they were too far away."

The following table of distances shows upon what basis the statement that the fleet is off Porto Rico is made:

Santiago de Cuba to San Juan, Porto Rico	575
Key West, Fla., to San Juan, Porto Rico	1,000
Tampa, Fla., to San Juan, Porto Rico	1,200
Charleston, S. C., to San Juan, Porto Rico	1,190
Newport News, Va., to San Juan, Porto Rico	1,280
New York to San Juan, Porto Rico	1,420

The quantity of artillery taken to Porto Rico by General Miles and the character of materials called for by him strongly suggest the kind of campaign that will be carried out in Porto Rico.

It is to be an artillery fight, and the plan outlined by the war department is that the artillery be put on the many hills commanding the city, the fortifications and the harbor. This will be done at leisure and effectively.

Miles Has Begun Blockade.

St. Thomas, D. W. I., July 25.--The German steamer Croatia, which arrived here to-day, reports that she was fired upon thrice last night, about eight miles from San Juan de Porto Rico, by a ship said to form part of theAmerican invading squadron.

The Croatia was boarded by an officer, understood to be from the United States cruiser New York. She was allowed to proceed to St. Thomas.

The Croatia had no intention of entering San Juan, her captain says.

Oarsmen at Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, July 25.--The second and last day of the annual regatta of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen saw what were probably the finest series of races ever seen at a national regatta. In three of the events only a few feet separated the first and second crews. The most sensational race of Saturday, the closing day, was the eight-oared shell race which the Pennsylvania Barge Club's champion eight captured from the Argonauts of Toronto by a few feet, after a grand struggle.

Between 30,000 and 40,000 persons congregated along the river to watch the races. Two of the championships were captured by Philadelphia crews. Ten Eyck won the senior singles championship, while the Western Rowing Club of St. Louis carried off the honors in the intermediate four-oared shell race. The Argonauts captured the senior international four-oared shell event, and Amos Kubic of Springfield, Mass., won the intermediate single scull race. In the intermediate four-oared shell race the Seawanhaka crew of New York was ruled out for not properly turning the three-quarter flag.

The President Takes an Outing.

Washington, July 25.--Secretary Long gave an excursion Saturday evening to the president and several of his official associates and members of their families.

They left the Washington navy yard on the United States tug Triton, ran down the Potomac to Mount Vernon and returned to the yard at 7.30, when dinner was served in the house of Admiral C. S. Norton, the commandant.

Object of Hobson's Visit.

Washington, July 25.--Lieutenant Hobson's visit is expected to bring about an enlargement of the plans for saving the wrecked Spanish cruiser Cristobal Colon and some of the other stranded ships of the Cervera squadron.

The department already had acted on the recommendations of Admiral Sampson, but these, coming by mail and telegraph, necessarily were limited, while the complete information brought by Lieutenant Hobson, based on personal observations and an expert knowledge of conditions, enables the department to get a much more thorough idea of the scope of this wrecking project and the possibilities of saving the ships.

To Pay for His Son's Plunge.

Chicago, July 25.--Seven mortgages, aggregating $2,000,000, were filed for record Saturday by Levi Z. Leiter. They run to the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company, for ten years, with 4 per cent. interest. The properties mortgaged are in the heart of the down town district, among them the Grand Pacific hotel. Revenue stamps to the amount of $996 were on the papers.

This is to secure the heavy loan consummated by Mr. Leiter in order to carry his son, Joseph Leiter, through his disastrous wheat speculation.

Jimmy Michael Redeems Himself.

New York, July 25.--Jimmy Michael, the little Welch cyclist, met Tom Linton of Wales on the Manhattan Beach cycle track Saturday afternoon in a twenty-five mile paced race and redeemed himself by beating his opponent in the presence of more than 15,000 people.

Polavieja Sees the Queen.

Madrid, July 25.--General Polavieja had a long conference yesterday with the queen regent. The strictest reserve is maintained as to its purport.

Honesty Not the Best Policy.

He was an honest young man, unused to the ways of society and making a call on one of the most stunning young ladies of the city. "How I love beauty," she said. "It seems to me I would give almost any other worldly possession in exchange for beauty."

"Don't mind if you're not handsome," he replied. "It's much better to be kind and good."

Then he went home wondering what had given him a chill.—Detroit Free Press.

Following Instructions.

"Mother," sighed the young wife, "I regard Tom as the most inconsistent man that ever lived."

"You put it very strongly, my dear."

"But I mean it. He told me the other day to be more observant, to keep posted as to what we would need, and to do my buying when things were cheapest. I went right down and laid in a big supply of Christmas presents, and he has scarcely spoken to me since."—Detroit Free Press.

"Why did you leave your last place?"

"The missus called me names."

"What did she call you?"

"She said I were a domestic, mum; and me as hard-workin' and honest a woman as ever lived!"

SHAFTER TO GARCIA

The American Commander Writes a Courteous Letter.

THANKS THE CUBAN ALLIES

President's Proclamation Well Received at Santiago. Cubans Want No Spanish Office Holders. Gen. Wood Has Entered Upon His Duties as Military Governor. Business Generally Picking Up. Troops Will Retire to Honguin Hills.

Santiago, July 23, via Kingston, Jamaica, July 24.--General Shafter has sent the following letter in reply to the communication addressed to him by General Garcia, in which the Cuban leader complained of the treatment accorded to the Cubans and announced the withdrawal of his troops from further co-operation with the Americans.

"I must say that I was very much surprised at the receipt of your letter this morning, and regret exceedingly that you should regard yourself as in any way slighted or aggrieved.

"You will remember the fact that I invited you to accompany me into the town of Santiago to witness the surrender, which you declined.

"This war, as you know, is between the United States and Spain, and it is out of the question for me to take any action in regard to your forces in connection with the surrender, which was made solely to the American army.

"The policy of my government in continuing in power temporarily the persons occupying the offices is one which I am, of course, unable to discuss. To show you the views held by my government I inclose a copy of the instructions received by me yesterday from the president, which appear to cover everything that can possibly arise in the government of this territory while it is held by the United States.

"Full credit has been given to you and your valiant men in my report to my government, and I wish to acknowledge to you the great and valuable assistance you rendered during the campaign.

"I regret very much to know of your determination to withdraw yourself from this vicinity. I remain yours very sincerely,

SHAFTER,
Major General.

General Garcia has withdrawn his troops from the vicinity of the city. Moderate Cubans dread the accession to power of the Cubans as much as the Spaniards do. President McKinley's proclamation announcing that property rights would be respected and the law enforced has produced a feeling of relief among the Spaniards, who feared the confiscation of their property. A great many Spaniards will remain in Santiago instead of returning to Spain.

The Cuban non-combatants are preparing a petition to President McKinley asking the removal of the Spanish office holders. They say that the Cubans were struggling for liberty when the Americans intervened to expel the Spaniards. Hence all of the Spanish authorities should be excluded.

Brigadier General Leonard Wood formerly of the Rough Riders, has entered upon his duties as military governor of Santiago, and is giving great satisfaction.

With the exception of a few encounters in the suburbs the city is quiet. Shops are opening, and business generally is picking up. The Spaniards, both the soldiery and the civilians, bear no animosity toward the Americans, but they speak very bitterly of the Cubans. The Ninth regular infantry are the only troops in the city, and they have not the slightest difficulty in maintaining order. The Spanish soldiers are anxious to leave for Spain at the earliest possible moment. General Toral has notified the First division to prepare for embarkation on July 24.

The Red Cross supplies have all been landed from the steamer State of Texas and are piled up in the customs shed. Relief stations and cook houses have been established, where all comers are fed, women and children having preference. The poor gather in crowds at these places daily to get their allowance of soup and bread. Food is scarce in the city and the prices for the same are very high.

No definite plans for the disposition of the troops have been given out. All that is known is that they will retire to the hills in the direction of Holguin, which place may be attacked. In the event of an attack upon the place it is expected that the Spaniards there will make a stubborn resistance. The soldiers who are accustomed to Indian warfare are to be retained in Cuba until the trouble is finally settled.

Shipload of Troops for Manila.

San Francisco, July 25.--The transport Rio de Janeiro, carrying two battalions of the First South Dakota volunteers, recruits for the Utah light artillery and a detachment of the Signal Corps, with General Otis, passed out through the Golden Gate Saturday morning on the way to Manila.

The steamer St. Paul may get away in five days and she will be followed by the Scandia and Arizona. No troops have been chosen for these ships, but, following the policy of General Otis, recruits of the different regiments already at Manila will be sent first.

First New York to Sail for Honolulu.

Washington, July 25.--The war department expects that the troops destined for garrison duty in Honolulu will sail from San Francisco early next week. The preparations for departure have been nearly completed. In all probability General Merriam will go to Hawaii, either with the troops or on another vessel, a little later. The military force bound for Hawaii consists of the First New York volunteers.

Returning to Santiago.

Kingston, Jamaica, July 25.--The Royal Mail steamship Dee, which sailed from this port yesterday with a large number of refugees on board returning to Santiago.

This is the first batch of refugees that have returned since the capitulation of Santiago, but there are thousands of others who will follow as soon as they are able to do so.

MORE SPANISH PRISONERS.

6,000 at Guatanamo Very Glad to Accept the Terms of Surrender.

Washington, July 25.--This dispatch has been received at the war department:

Santiago de Cuba, July 23.
Adjutant General Washington:

Colonel of engineers, Spanish army, just arrived from Guantanamo. He heard from French consul that Santiago had surrendered and that they had been included. Not crediting it, he was sent here to verify the fact. They will be glad to accept terms of surrender; very short of rations, and I shall have to begin feeding them at once. He tells me there are 6,000 men at that place. Am now feeding 6,600 well prisoners here and 1,600 sick in hospital. Expect 2,000 men in to-morrow from San Luis and Palmas.

Will send an officer to-morrow or next day, with one of General Toral's, to receive surrender at Guantanamo, and then go to Sagua and Barracoa and receive the surrender there. Think the number of prisoners will be fully up to the estimate, 22,000 or 23,000.

W. R. SHAFTER,
Major General Commanding.

More Spanish Prisoners.

Washington, July 25.--The war department at midnight posted the following:

Santiago by way of Hayti, July 24.
Adjutant General of the Army, Washington:

Lieutenant Miley has returned from San Luis and Palma Soriano, where he went four days ago to receive the surrender of Spanish troops.

The number surrendered was larger than General Toral reported--3,005 Spanish troops and 350 volunteer guerillas. Volunteers gave up their arms and gave parole and have gone back to work.

Three thousand stands of arms were turned in, loaded on ox carts and started to the railroads. Spanish troops accompanied him to San Luis, and all, apparently greatly delighted at prospects of returning home.

They were on the verge of starvation and I have to send them rations to-morrow. If the numbers keep up as they have there will be about 24,000 to ship away--nearly 12,000 here, 3,000 from San Luis, 6,000 from Guantanamo and over 2,000 at Sagua and Baracoa.

SHAFTER,
Major General Commanding.

THE RELIEF ARRIVES

She Brought Some of the Worst Cases Among the Wounded at Santiago

New York, July 25.--That finest of hospital ships, the Relief, arrived at quarantine Saturday at 4 p. m., bearing 125 wounded officers and men from Santiago. She left Cuba at 7 p. m. on July 19 and made a speedy and pleasant trip, lasting three days and twenty-one hours. Dr. Doty, health officer of the port, went on board at once upon her arrival and expressed himself as much pleased with the condition of affairs on the ship.

"Plenty of everything," said he, "was to be found there. Clean linen, clean beds, doctors and nurses in attendance, and every comfort that human ingenuity could devise for invalids was there in abundance. Surgeon General Sternberg is to be complimented on his work in fitting out such a floating hospital."

The Relief left this port three weeks ago. She arrived off Siboney on July 2, just when the need for her was greatest, and since that day her corps of ten surgeons, six women nurses and twenty-nine hospital corps attendants, has been constantly busy. They have received on board in that time 265 wounded soldiers. Of this number only thirteen have died. Others were transferred to the transports Seneca, the Hudson and to the navy hospital ship Solace.

Only the worst cases were retained. Therefore it is that the Relief's burden of wounded is the heaviest that has come out of Cuba. Every kind of complicated injury that a Mauser bullet, a bit of shrapnel shell or the more destructive bullets of the machine guns can inflict, so as to bring the poor victims to the very threshold of eternity, is on the Relief.

HAVANA IN NOVEMBER

A Vigorous Campaign is Being Prepared to Capture That Stronghold.

Washington, D. C., July 25.--Although it is hoped by the administration that Spain will sue for peace after the surrender of Porto Rico, the officials are planning a most aggressive land and naval campaign against the Spanish.

If no overtures for peace are made after the fall of Porto Rico an army will be prepared for Cuba and Havana.

This army will not, however, begin its campaign before the last of October or the first of November.

In the meanwhile the war will be carried on upon the high seas by the fleet commanded by Commodore Watson.

Tampa Troops Sail.

Tampa, July 25.--The Porto Rico expedition sailed Saturday. It consisted of five troopships and carried about 4,000 men and immense quantities of all kinds of stores. It is doubtful if the expedition would have sailed for several days had it not been for the peremptory orders received from Washington Friday night to start at once. The long delay in the preparation of the expedition seems to have exasperated the officials at the capital.

Americans About to Begin Attack.

London, July 25.--A special dispatch from Madrid says that General Augustin, captain general of the Philippines, has telegraphed to the government as follows:

"The Americans are about to attack Manila. Grave events are impending."

Although the dispatch is indefinite and comes in a round about way, there is probably some truth in it. The last advices from Dewey were that our troops had taken the field, some having moved to Peranaque, two miles from the citadel. General Greene was in command.

Will Be There to See.

Tangier, July 25.--It is expected that warships of the various nations will congregate here to observe the movements of Admiral Watson's American squadron.

THE VICTORY AT NIPE

The Fight Was Short, Sharp and Decisive.

FOUR SMALL SHIPS DID ALL

Full Details of Thursdays Battle. Everything Went Our Way as Usual. The Fine Cuban Harbor of Nipe Now Open to Our Fleet. The Forts Fired and Mines Were Exploded but No Damage Was Done to Our Ships.

Key West, July 24.--The cruiser Topeka arrived here Saturday morning from Nipe, Santiago province, with details of the fight of Thursday, July 21, in which four small American warships entered the bay, took three forts and sank a Spanish gunboat.

The Wasp, Leyden, Topeka and Annapolis had been blockading the coast about Nipe for a week or more. Admiral Sampson for some time had had his eye on the harbor, which is ten miles long and four deep, has deep water and will make an admirable base for colliers and warships. On Thursday he issued orders to take the harbor.

The entrance is narrow and protected on the western side by a small fort, where there is a signal station, from which it was believed mines laid across the channel were to be operated. On the eastern side was another small fort.

The Leyden led the way, followed by the Wasp, Topeka and Annapolis. As she passed through the narrow channel entrance into the harbor two mines were exploded near the Topeka. One blew up a column of water one hundred yards ahead of her and the other was two hundred yards on the port quarter.

As soon as the forts at the entrance were in range the ships opened on them with all guns. They replied, but their shots were wild and ten minutes of American gunnery drove the men from the batteries. They could be seen scampering in all directions to get out of range. Both forts were deserted by the time the American ships were in the channel, and the little squadron passed into the harbor safely.

Once in the broad bay they saw the Spanish cruiser Jorge Juan lying off Mangle Point, on the eastern side of the harbor. The American ships circled around the western shore, and when within 4,000 yards range, opened on her. She replied wildly for a few minutes, but her crew were unable to stand the rain of shot and took to their boats after a battle of fifteen minutes' duration.

Their ship was then settling in the water, and seeing that she was abandoned, each of the American vessels sent boats out to her. By the time they reached her the cruiser was on the bottom, with only her upper works above water. The Wasp's men got the Spanish colors. The sunken cruiser was a vessel of 960 tons and carried three 4.7-inch guns, two 2.8-inch guns and two small rapid fire rifles. She was 203 feet long. Her whole bow had been torn away by the American fire, but whether her sinking was due to her injuries or to scuttling is not now known.

Beyond Mangle Point is Point de la Mercedes, on which are a small town and a fort. Having finished with the cruiser, the Topeka landed two shells in this fort, and the shots were answered by a white flag. The work was now done, except for a search for two small gunboats, mounting one gun each, which the Cubans said were in the harbor. The Wasp and Leyden went in search of them in the inlet. The Topeka left for Key West at 3 o'clock, and up to that time the gunboats had not been found. It is probable that they ran up the Mayora river.

According to the Cubans the harbor forts were garrisoned by 500 soldiers.

Our loss was nothing. How many Spaniards were killed is not known.

On the way to Key West the Topeka passed the Puritan, Terror, Cincinnati and Montgomery. These vessels signalled that they were going to Nipe.

After the fight it was found that the channel was well sown with mines. The Wasp and Leyden are now at work taking them up to allow of the entrance of the other vessels without danger.

While about the Jorge Juan the American jackies dived to the cabin and brought up a number of souvenirs. One was a board on which was painted the motto "Be brave and you will get back to Spain."

Thirty Tons of Gold Moved.

New York, July 25.--One of the largest transfers of gold ever made in this city took place Saturday, when $9,000,000 in gold was transferred from the vaults of the clearing house into the strong boxes of the sub-treasury.

This transfer was made by the clearing house as the representative of the associated banks, and was the final payment of deposits aggregating $16,000,000, representing in weight thirty tons of the precious metal. These deposits were all made during the week.

Where to Land Prisoners.

Washington, July 25.--The following dispatch has been received from General Shafter:

Santiago de Cuba, July 22.
H. C. Corbin, Adjutant General, Washington, D. C.:

I am just in receipt of a letter from General Toral, saying the Spanish secretary of war desires the troops landed at Vigo, Coruna, on the Atlantic and at Santandar, in the bay of Biscay.

SHAFTER,
Major General Commanding.

Garcia Never Wrote It.

Santiago de Cuba, July 25.--It now turns out that the letter addressed by General Garcia to General Shafter complaining of the treatment accorded the Cubans and advising General Shafter of General Garcia's resignation, was prepared by a newspaper correspondent named Arms, who has been acting on the staff of General Castillo.

It is not clear that General Garcia ever saw the letter.

THE PRESIDENT TO GEN. GORDON

Acknowledgment of Resolutions Passed by Confederate Veterans.

Washington, July 25.--President McKinley has sent the following letter to General John B. Gordon in response to resolutions adopted by the Confederate Veteran association in session at Atlanta, Ga.:

Executive Mansion,
Washington, D. C., July 23, 1898.

Hon. J. B. Gordon, Commander-in-Chief, U. S. C. V., Atlanta, Ga.:

Dear General Gordon: Your recent telegram in behalf of the United States Confederate Veterans was very welcome, and I would have written to you before in acknowledgement excepting for the unusual demands upon my time.

The present war has certainly served one very useful purpose in completely obliterating the sectional lines drawn in the last one. The response to the nation's call to arms has been equally spontaneous and patriotic in all parts of the country. Veterans of the gray as well as of the blue are now fighting side by side, winning equal renown. Their brave deeds and the unequalled triumphs of our army and navy have received the gratitude of the people of the United States.

To have such a hearty commendation from yourself and your colleagues of the work of this administration in the conduct of the war, and the pledge of whatever support may be needed to help in bringing it to a successful completion, is, indeed, most gratifying, and I thank you, and especially for the frank and cordial expression of resolutions passed and forwarded to me.

With very kind regards I am, sincerely yours,

WILLIAM McKINLEY.

YELLOW FEVER AT SANTIAGO.

Three Deaths Yesterday and Three on the 21st. 1,500 Sick, but Only 150 of Fever.

Washington, July 25.--This dispatch from General Shafter was given out by the war department yesterday:

Santiago, Cuba, July 23.
Adjutant General, Washington:

The following men died at the yellow fever hospital at Siboney to-day: Jack Dongan, civilian, Bert Louis, band, Seventh infantry; Private Fred A. Percival, Company F, Thirty-third Michigan. On the 21st inst., Sergeant J. Britton, Troop G, First cavalry; William J. Howe, teamster; Patrick Sullivan, Company E, Seventh infantry.

No deaths at the front have been reported as yet. Complete report will be sent in the morning. The situation is not alarming, though there are many sick with fever, about 1,500 (exact number will be given in the morning). Only a small part of those sick are down with the fever, about 10 per cent., 150 in all. Slight changes of all the troops have been made to get them on fresh ground, and the artillery and cavalry have been moved about three miles.

SHAFTER,
Major General Commanding.

THE ST. PAUL SAILS TO-DAY.

She Lacks Forty Men. Will Carry Small Boats for the Navy.

New York, July 25.--The auxiliary cruiser St. Paul took on coal and water yesterday from barges and sailed for Santiago this morning. Captain Sigsbee said yesterday that he had made a request for forty new men and that he thought they would be sent over from the Brooklyn navy yard.

The St. Paul had been short handed for a long time. She had to leave eight men at Santiago because they accidentally took a yellow fever patient as a passenger in a boat they were rowing and yesterday Captain Sigsbee dismissed eight more men because of general unfitness for duty.

The St. Paul will carry a big cargo of medicines and stores to Santiago and will also take some large cutters and whale boats for the navy, which may be used in landing troops at Porto Rico.

A Big Ship Ready to Launch.

Bath, Me., July 25.--The large ship Erskine M. Phelps will be launched from the yard of her builders, Arthur Sewall and Company, at 5 p. m. to-morrow afternoon. The dimensions of the ship are as follows: Length over all, 330 feet; length of hull, 312 feet; breadth, 44 feet 2 inches; depth, 25 feet 6 inches; gross tonnage, 3,000; carrying capacity, 4,600 tons. The ship has four steel masts, finely finished cabins and all modern improvements. She will be ready in one month to enter the Atlantic and Pacific trade. Captain Robert J. Graham, formerly commander of the William F. Babcock, will be the commander of the new ship.

ANOTHER PRIZE CAPTURED

The Cruiser Mangrove Has Been Lively Among Blockade Runners.

Key West, Fla., July 25.--The armed tug Uncas, which has been cruising along the eastern end of Cuba, arrived yesterday morning. She had landed seven couriers and an expedition under Captain Pereg, at Cayo Confites, with arms, ammunition, clothes and food for the insurgents.

She brought in tow the Spanish sloop Acudita, captured by the cruiser Mangrove off Cardenas while en route to Santiago with dispatches mentioned in yesterday's dispatches. The Spanish prize Acudita is in charge of Mate Peterson of the Mangrove.

Don Carlos Starts for Spain.

London, July 25.--A telegram from Brussels has been received here announcing that Don Carlos and his suite had mysteriously vanished.

It is believed that they have gone to the Spanish frontier to direct the Carlist forces now rapidly drawing to a head.

During their sojourn in Brussels Spanish detectives have swarmed on their track and every move made was immediately telegraphed to Madrid.

An Invasion of Horseflies.

Plainfield, N. J., July 25.--Horseflies of a size hitherto believed to pertain only to queen bees or the mosquito monster of the Hackensack marshes, have invaded the farming country lying back of the Watchung mountains.

Spain Sees Hope.

Madrid, July 25.--The news of the friction between the Americans and the insurgents in Cuba is received here with great satisfaction and those who hope for peace with honor regard it with joyful anticipation.

Trading Stamp Problem.

The trading stamp question, since Governor Voorhees vetoed the measure seeking to make the business illegal, is an omnipresent one with Plainfield merchants. Those who have thought it policy to offer their customers the advantages of the trading stamp scheme have done so regretting that the plan had ever been devised. A Louisville merchant has written to Charles F. Jones, who conducts a special department in Printers' Ink, asking: "Is there any way that you know of that the trading stamp nuisance could be driven out of a town after it has once started?" Mr. Jones was the man who originated the advertising of Siegel Cooper & Company when they started business in New York and may be considered an expert in successfully grappling with great business problems. What he says about the matter will be interesting to every Plainfield merchant. It is as follows:

A great many people look at the trading stamp question a good deal differently from what I do. I believe to a great extent it is a legitimate business, and I do not at present know of any way that it can be legally driven out of a town. As long as the trading stamp privileges are confined to a few stores, I think it is really a good thing for those few stores, but of course, correspondingly a poor thing for the other stores. Where it is confined and not allowed to spread to everybody, it will no doubt to a certain extent help the business of those who have it. The difficulty is that it usually spreads too far, for when it is generally used by everybody or by a large number of people it does not do any of them very much good, but is simply a tax on the merchant which the trading stamp people collect. I think after it spreads a good ways that the merchants who have it themselves will soon catch on to this and be very glad to give it up; but as long as the trading stamp people confine it to a few it will probably be popular with these for a long time. If in Mr. Peterson's city the trading stamp plan is confined to the right number of people, and if the other merchants who are not in it wish to break up the arrangement, I believe the best thing they could do would be to start a trading stamp system of their own in competition with the one already established. A trading stamp system run by the merchants themselves could be originated which would not conflict with the rights of the original trading stamp men, and by getting all the merchants in it, it would very soon cause those who are in the first trading stamp system to cry "enough." The merchants could run their trading stamp system with less expense, because they would themselves share in the profits which the trading stamp people are supposed to make in their system. As soon as everybody was in the system, or as soon as a large percentage of the stores were in the system, it would naturally be unprofitable to all, and make it hard for the trading stamp people to carry on their plan. I understand that a plan somewhat similar to this has been tried in some of the southern cities, and that it accomplished the results of causing the trading stamp people to very soon leave the town.

Kodak Fiend's Opportunity.

The Ladies Home Journal offers $500 in prizes for photographs of the prettiest suburban homes. It is an acknowledged fact that Plainfield has the most attractive suburban homes in the metropolitan district—homes that make it a residential elysium for all who seek the salubrious climate that here abounds.

Now here is a chance for the public pride of some of the "push the button-and-we-do-the-rest" fiends to take form in a practical shape. Let them take a snap shot of the beautiful structures and surroundings in the residential districts and forward them to the Home Journal as competitors for the liberal prizes that are offered.

From what we know of suburban homes in other places than Plainfield we have no fear but that views from the Eldorado of the East will capture some of the prizes. Thus will Plainfield be advertised inestimably and the kodak fiend get his or her reward in the receipt of a substantial check.

A Great Social Problem.

At a recent convention held in New York expert authorities of long experience discussed the problems connected with the existence of imbeciles and epileptics. It is a far cry back to the ages and the so called civilizations when society with a savagely selfish thought for its own perpetuity looked on these unfortunate creatures as burdens simply to be dropped in the race of life. Today they are guarded with care and tenderness, and asylums and training schools are amply provided. Coequal with this urgent need society should guard itself rigidly against a rapid increase of this wretched class. It is said that there are 10,000 imbeciles in the country outside of those secluded in public and private institutions, and that the whole number augments at the rate of 2,000 a year.

The causes which produce imbecile offspring are various. Among them are vice and crime in the parents. Imbecile births are far the more common among the criminal classes, a fact which intensifies danger, as it is apt to associate feebleness of mind with abnormal and depraved instincts. There is a reciprocal effect. Aside from the progeny of vicious parents there is a large increase from the legitimate or illegitimate sex relations of the imbeciles themselves. Here lies a great peril, and it is here that society can interfere to good purpose by legislation. There can be no doubt that imbeciles should be segregated as much as possible under conditions favorable to their physical, moral and intellectual training. But where this is impracticable they should be prevented from marriage. Here is a problem of personal liberty where the state rightfully interferes, for the imbecile is in the nature of things a ward of the state. On this point the convention was of one voice. The most rigid prohibitive measures should be taken against this class increasing by force of natural instinct. The other causes which tend to imbecile births can be left to themselves, for society will use its best wisdom in ameliorating the factors which produce vice and crime.

No nation has shown greater shrewdness in colonial management of alien races than the Dutch in Java. The governors have studied carefully the weaknesses, good qualities, prejudices and tastes of the governed and suited the methods of administration, leaving the different tribes to manage themselves locally as far as possible. The result is one of the most prosperous colonies in the world. Should we retain the Philippines it would be a good model to study.

American naval marksmanship with big guns has been the most notable feature of the present war in the eyes of foreign critics. While it is the result of specialized practice it is also the evolution of that pride in shooting straight which from earliest times prompted our pioneers to afflict their offspring with many stripes who failed to bring in their squirrels drilled through the eye.

The saving fact is saving the pennies. The most successful secretary of treasury for a poor household generally wears petticoats. Even rich women count the pennies in bargaining; even poor men never do.

Our English cousins have been so eager to keep au courant with war news that a number of Sunday newspapers, some addenda of the dailies, some independent, have been started. Great wails in consequence have arisen from the nonconformist clergy at this imitation of bad American ways.

England is in a furor of excitement over her new naval estimate. The American spectacle has made her effervesce. The new shipbuilding scheme involves the use of every government and private yard—1898-9 will be a year of unprecedented activity in strengthening naval armaments.

The Red Cross society is as zealous in saving life as our soldiers and sailors are in destroying it. Many wealthy and fashionable women are showing their war enthusiasm by entering its ranks as nurses.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Somerset County Freeholders, having prevented Middlesex capitalists from sending a trolley branch over the bridge that spans the Raritan at Bound Brook, might place rails on the bridge as a county franchise, and charge the trolley company a fractional percentage for toll, thus winning a constant revenue and doing something in the way of progress.—New York Press.

A couple of cases of punishment for using profane language are reported, one in Plainfield. The circumstances in each case were somewhat peculiar, and do not especially indicate a determination by the officers of the law to stop swearing. No doubt some of them are inclined that way themselves. But while there is no desire to interfere with persons who get relief by using big words, and while a good many "oh dears" are of swearing intent, it would certainly be a satisfaction to the general public if swearing in public places could be abated. No man has the right to use language that revolts the unwilling listener, any more than he has a right to offend the nostrils. A decent regard for other folk is all that is desired, but this should be required.—Newark Call.

There is fun galore in store for the boys who attend the public schools of Plainfield. The Board of Education of that progressive city, alive to the dangers which lurke in the school drinking cup, have adopted a new style of drinking, by which the water is conveyed directly to the mouth without the intervention of any receptacle. The thirsty individual places his or her mouth above a small hole and then by the manipulation of a knob a small stream of water is forced vertically into the aperture prepared by nature for its reception. If anything were needed to make life for the Plainfield school boy one unutterable joy, it is just such a drinking fountain as this. There never was a boy yet who would not rather hold his hand under a pump nozzle and gulp down the water as it spurted from a small hole bored in the spout than imbibe nectar from a silver goblet. But whether the innovation will tend to the promotion of order and discipline among the pupils is another question—Newark News.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

This is the season of excursions to Asbury Park. Already there have been three from this city and many more are promised. Camera fiends and even those who sometimes spend an idle hour in the use of the fasinating camera want to remember one thing. If they take their camera to Asbury Park, it is necessary to get a permit before using it on the beach or boardwalk. The permit may be had merely for the asking at the Bradley pavilion from the officer in charge. The object of this regulation is to keep professionals off the boardwalk. Only amateurs are allowed the privileges.

The other day a Plainfielder visited Glen Island. Knowing of the beauties of the place, he took along his Kodak with the intention of taking a number of views. He selected some of the prettiest and was rapidly making a collection of views of the island when he was accosted by a policeman and informed that it was against the rules of the establishment to allow a camera to be used there. The Plainfielder was disgusted. After the departure of the policeman, he rallied, however, and continued his harmless amusement. Another policeman came along and ordered him to cease. Now the officer was not thoroughly acquainted with the manipulation of one of the Kodaks and he did not realize that the amateur photographer was adding his own picture to the collection. That collection of photographs is one of the most highly prized of any in the possession of this Plainfield enthusiast.

Frank C Langhorne, of Clinton avenue, has received word from his nephew, James Allen Lowe, Jr., of 109 West Eleventh street, New York, a member of Co. F, Seventy-first Regiment of the New York Volunteers, who was in the desperate engagement which carried the assault of San Juan hill before Santiago the first of the month. He says it was a terrible battle, but that he came out without a scratch. When he wrote the letter he was sitting in a shelter tent where there was two inches of water to slush around in every time they stirred a foot. His comrade, a fellow by the name of Post, was sleeping in a puddle of the water. He spoke especially of the bravery of Roosevelt's Rough Riders, and said that the way they advanced in the face of death was one of the bravest acts he ever expects to witness. The Cuban army he describes as a collection of rags, but possessing many valorous men. The sight of strings of starving women and children was terrible. His army life has reduced his flesh, but made his muscles stronger.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Dunellen, July 25.—Mr. Clark, of Fanwood, was the guest of friends Saturday last.

A number of the members of the Middlesex Bowling Green Club met at the home of Mr. Schepflin last Saturday afternoon and enjoyed a game of bowls. The weather was not pleasant, but some good sport was indulged in.

It is to be hoped that during this week the trolley tracks will be put in good shape so that traveling will be less difficult. There is at present a very small part of the roadway left for wagon and cycle travel.

Miss Ethel Pursell has returned to her home at Whitehouse, Hunterdon county, after spending a week with the Misses Jamison.

The Misses Jamison, of Church street, left town today for the seashore to spend their vacation.

Mrs. Carpenter, of Washington avenue, has returned from a visit with friends at Pennington.

Master Russell Runyon, of North avenue, has returned from an outing in the country.

Rockview Council, Daughters of Liberty, will hold a regular meeting this evening.

Miss Charlotte Messersmith, of Plainfield, has been visiting friends in the borough.

Mrs. Oakley, of New Brunswick, who has been visiting relatives, has returned home.

W. H. Terry, of Church street, has returned from a visit with out-of-town friends.

Mrs. Theodore Day, of Front street, is visiting relatives at East Millstone.

Miss Staats, of North avenue, is entertaining company from out of town.

Charles Coriell has shipped another load of car fenders to New York.

Mr. Slape, of Plainfield, was a visitor in town Saturday last.

NEW MARKET.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

New Market, July 25—Miss Bertha Giles, of Plainfield, has been visiting relatives in town.

Today the members of the Seventh-Day Baptist church and Sunday-school are enjoying themselves at Boynton Beach.

Rev. Frank Fletcher occupied his pulpit yesterday and delivered two good sermons to large congregations.

Tomorrow evening there will be a regular meeting of Lakeside Council, Daughters of Liberty.

Mr. and Mrs. Maxson Dunham have been visiting Plainfield relatives.

The work on the extension of the schoolhouse is about completed.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Scotch Plains, July 25—Frederick Haberle visited friends in town Friday evening.

One of the largest and most impressive funerals Scotch Plains has witnessed was that of Mrs. Loftus Hollingsworth, which was held from her late home yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Known as she was through all Scotch Plains and by many residents of Plainfield, there was a very large gathering at the house, which could scarcely accommodate them. Rev. Mr. Seers, a former pastor of Mrs. Hollingsworth, officiated, assisted by Rev. J. H. Parks, of Scotch Plains. Rev. Mr. Seers made the address, speaking very tenderly of the departed one and the loving recollections she left behind. He touched feelingly on good work she had done and drew comforting thoughts from the Christian life now ended. The floral tributes were beautiful and very numerous, hiding the casket. The interment was at Hillside cemetery in Plainfield after the funeral services.

Ernest Marsh has signed to play with the Westfield B. B. team and played his first game Saturday. Ernest aided materially in defeating the New York team, making three of the nine runs scored by Westfield.

The heavy showers of last week washed out the roadbed in several places through the village. A light top dressing of gravel or crushed stone would be a great improvement.

Larry Wallace enjoyed a short furlough Friday and visited his mother. Camp life at Sea Girt seems to agree with Larry.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Grant, of Plainfield, were the guest Sunday, of Mrs. Grant's, parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Paff, Sr.

Miss May Browning, of Camden, who has been visiting Miss Lulu Robinson, has returned to her home.

J. E. Flannery, of Plainfield, spent Sunday with his daughter, Mrs. George Johnston.

John Bornman has the contract for resetting the fence around the Baptist cemetery.

Mr. Virtue, of Newark, spent Sunday with his family at Mrs. Hoeinger's.

WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Westfield, July 25—A new paper to be known as the Westfield Republican came out Saturday with Dr. Morse, formerly editor of the Leader, as the editor and business manager. The new publication is supposed to be for the use of the Republican leaders of the town, as the Standard is a strictly independent paper.

While Dr. R. R. Sinclair was driving along the Boulevard Friday afternoon his horse broke through the sewer and fell. The doctor and driver were thrown to the street, but luckily were not hurt. The horse was badly cut about the legs and had a gash cut in its side which required ten stitches.

LINCOLN.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Lincoln, July 25—The Steel Tool Works, after being idle for three weeks, will begin taking on the old hands as the different departments receive their work during next week. The full number required will be 200, an increase of 130.

Smart Traveling Gowns.

The navy and army blue serges, foulards, mohairs, and light-weight costume cloths are made into stylish tailor-costumes for traveling and general wear, that hold their own against all the endless smart and novel gowns which the present season has produced.

A Clever Ruse.

At Scotch weddings, some years ago, it used to be the custom to batter the hat of the bridegroom at he was leaving the house in which the ceremony took place. On one of those occasions a newly married couple—relatives of the bridegroom—determined to carry out the observances of this custom to the letter.

The bridegroom heard them discussing their plans, and despatched a messenger to the carriage—which stood waiting—with his hat some time previous to his departure. Then donning the hat of a male relative who had plotted against him—a new silk chimney pot of the latest style—he prepared to go out to the carriage.

No sooner had he got to the door than his hat was furiously assaulted, and almost destroyed. He walked out of the house amid the laughter of the bystanders and entered the vehicle; then, taking the battered hat from his head, he threw it into the hands of its proper owner, exclaiming:—

"Hey, McDougall, there's your hat!" and donned his own, amid the cheers of all present.

Fancy Grenadines.

The fancy grenadines are lovely this year, as indeed are all the new grenadines, for never was there such a wonderful and beautiful variety. Very elegant, also, are the silk nets, and different importing houses show different treatment of these handsome textiles. At one establishment the black net is in princesses form, over a sheath-shaped slip of cherry-red moire. At another noted house the beautiful black net has a foundation of ivory satin with bodice trimmings of white lisse almost covered with black guipure lace sprays and insertions. A third gown is decorated all over with cut jet bow-knots, garlands, arabesques, and scrolls. This gown is made up over nasturtium satin, and the collar and girdle are of brillant orange velvet.

For Slender Women.

Less of the opaque white fabrics are shown among the season's patterned transparents than those in cream, canary, and Spanish yellow, willow green, ciel blue, reseda, rose, and violet in exquisite tintings. In making up these textiles the greater portion show an airy overdress, loose from its gored underskirt, but united at the top, one belt holding both skirts. Less diaphanous looking toilets for rather stout women show the outside skirt sewed in with each gored breadth of the underskirt. The very popular frills and flounces must likewise be eschewed and the narrow ruche substituted; for none but tall, slender women look well in frilled skirts.

Rain Water for Blankets.

A city housekeeper contrives to have rain water to wash her blankets before putting them away for the summer. She does this by tapping the eaves-pipe, using a large clean barrel to hold the water. It should not be put under during a shower, but after a steady rain has washed the soot and dirt from the roof, and the water is flowing clean. Nothing is better than this kind of water for the blankets. It is easy to manage their washing at home with a little care. Some housekeepers put them in a pair a week, but if an odd day towards the latter end of the week is taken, it can all be done at once.

The Wasp Pest.

This is the moment when in country homes a little preventive action will be productive of much comfort in relation to the wasp pest. These belligerent little insects have by this time appeared and located themselves in their nooks in the crevices of piazza-railings and stone house foundations. In one of the tracts issued from the Entomological Department at Washington, it is advised to watch when the hole is full at night of the wandering insects and then pour a generous dose of chloroform into it. This will exterminate the colony at one blow.

The marine lamprey's adhesive power is such that 121 lb. may be raised without forcing it to loose its hold. It is so tenacious of life that its head remains for hours attached to a stone when its body is severed.

She Turned the Tables.

It seemed to him an excellent time to impress the lesson upon her, so as he made a move for his hat he said to her:

"Suppose you had wanted me to spend the evening with you before we were married, and I had planned to do something else. You wouldn't have sulked, would you?" he asked.

"No-o, I suppose not," she replied hesitatingly.

"You wouldn't have got cross and been disagreeable about it, would you?"

"Probably not!"

"You would have been just as nice and sweet and clever as you possibly could be," he asserted. "You would have been both lovable and loving, and would have tried to coax me to give up my other place. Isn't that so?"

"Perhaps it is," she faltered, "but—" grand total, eleven and a half miles.

"Never mind the 'but's,'" he interrupted, feeling that he was gaining his point. "What I am trying to impress upon you is that a woman doesn't seem to think it worth while to try the same arts on a husband that she does on a lover. That's where you're both foolish and unjust. Now, you admit that before marriage——"

"Before marriage," she broke in, "if you had spoken of going anywhere and I had pouted just the least little bit, what would you have done?"

"Um—ah—well, I suppose——"

"If you had noticed what seemed to be even the merest traces of a tear what would have happened?"

"Why, my dear, I——"

"If I had merely looked at you pleadingly what would you have done regarding that other engagement?"

"Really, you don't give me time to answer. I must confess that in all probability I would have——"

"Given it up, of course," she prompted. "Isn't it worth while to make the same sacrifice for a wife that you do for a sweetheart?"

Somehow he couldn't help feeling that his little lesson was lost on her, but it is worthy of note that he told a business associate the next day that any man who went on the theory that a woman can't reason as clearly as a man, was laying up a large store of trouble for himself.

Useful Morocco Cases.

A recent bride spared some of her morocco cases and other jewellers' boxes, which came to her holding gifts, to pass around among her young woman friends, who promptly utilized them, for the boxes are by no means the useless articles which they are sometimes regarded as being. The morocco case, usually satin lined, can, if deep enough, be easily converted into a handy handkerchief box. Flat ones, that have held spoons or forks, make good tie boxes, or can be used for veils. The lining is taken out and any stiffened partitions removed. A pad of sachet powder is then slipped in and the satin replaced. A little ingenuity will adapt to excellent service almost any one of these cases.

How to Wash Sheepskin Rugs.

If sheepskin rugs are washed, as dealers assert that they can be, it is pointed out by an authority on their cleansing that this process is not accomplished in the usual way by immersion in a tub. The pelt side should not be wet at all. To prevent this they are tacked around a stout barrel and scrubbed with a clean scrubbing-brush and hot suds in which some good washing-powder has been dissolved. They are thoroughly rinsed in clear water and left on the barrel in the sun to dry. While the drying process is going on, a clean curry-comb is useful to keep the wool from matting. The final result is a fluffy rug of dazzling whiteness.

Straw Sewing.

Deft-handed women find that it pays them to take a few lessons in straw-sewing. The woman who learns saves many a penny by making her own hats. The hand-sewed hats with lined rims, if made in the fashionable designs, are always expensive. There are no marked-down sales of them until they become cheap by being out of date. It is here that the amateur straw-sewer finds a chance for thrift. For a few cents she can pick up a hat sewed in an old season's style, and with this supply of braid she can quickly resew it in any shape she elects.

Lovely Color Combinations.

Pale apple green and softest primrose yellow is a favored color combination this season, also lovely tints in pink, with sage green or apricot. Lily white and deep cream color are also united again. There are many who continue to think that the one tint wholly "kills the other"; still, the mixture appears among some of the handsomest white dresses and on the most approved French millinery for the summer.

Fish Eggs Hatched by Hens.

In China hens are employed to hatch fish eggs. These are sealed in an egg-shell and placed under the unsuspecting hen for a few days. The contents of the shell are then emptied into a shallow pool, where they can bask in the sunshine until the minnows are strong enough to be turned into a lake or river.

Longevity in Late Hours.

A medical man who has been collecting information about the habits of long-lived persons finds that the majority of those who attained old age indulged in late hours. Eight out of ten persons over eighty never went to bed till well into the small hours.

Willie: "I say, pa, didn't you tell me the other day that it was wrong to strike anyone smaller than yourself?"

Pa: "Yes, Willie; that's what I said."

Willie: "Well, I wish you'd write my teacher a note to that effect. I don't think he knows about it."

HOW CHAMBERLAIN MET HIS WIFE.

He Wasn't Afraid to be the Only Man Among a Number of American Beauties

Many persons can recall the visit which Mr. Joseph Chamberlain made to Washington in 1887 as chairman of the Fisheries Commission. He was the social lion of the hour. A Baltimore lady who met him tells the following story:

"He was a big, burly man, caring so little for his appearance that at one of the most fashionable dinners of the season his cravat got turned to almost under his ear and his shirt stud came unfastened, and he sat calmly oblivious to either accident. His brains and charm in conversation won him friends wherever he went.

"One day he called on a lady who happened to be giving a girls' luncheon. She went out at once to see him, and laughingly said that if he did not mind being the only man present she would be delighted if he would come in the dining room and take the vacant place of one of her young friends who did not come. He was not afraid to face a lot of 'American beauties,' so he accepted gayly, and the vacant place happened to be next that of Miss Endicott, daughter of Secretary of War William C. Endicoff, of Massachusetts, a dove-like, slender girl, one of the greatest belles of the day.

"The outcome of this was the marriage of the English statesman and the 'Puritan maid,' as she was often called, his neighbor at an entertainment to which he had only been bidden by that 'fate which shapes our ends, rough hew them as we will.'"—Baltimore Sun.

QUEZZEL, A BIRD OF LIBERTY.

It Dies Almost Immediately if Captured—Has Two Doors to Its House.

On all postage stamps of Guatemala is engraved a somewhat distorted representation of the quezzel, which is lightly called the bird of liberty, as it dies almost immediately when captured. So extreme is its love of freedom that if captured and in a few seconds restored to liberty it would seem as if the contamination of the hand could not be removed, and it will drop lifeless after flying but a few yards. If it is caught in a trap it is always found dead, and when the young are taken from the nest they die at once. It is found only in a small portion of the country, and is seldom seen live, since it cannot be kept long in captivity.

It is a bird of beautiful plumage, having two extremely long tail feathers and a superbly crested head. It is said that its pride in its tail feathers is greater than its love of life, for if one of them accidentally become broken the bird goes to its nest and dies from grief and mortification. It builds a round-roofed nest, having two holes on opposite sides, so that the quezzel literally "goes in at one door and out at the other," and thus avoids the necessity for tail-breaking, and consequently heart-breaking, by never turning around in order to make its exit from the nest.

THE JOKE WAS ON THE TEAMSTER.

He Ordered General Sherman to Brush His Mules.

A good story is told of one of General Sherman's Missouri teamsters. He had just joined the service, a raw recruit, and was assigned to the task of driving a six-mule team. When the army halted for the first night he was wearily unharnessing his team.

"Hullo, there," said the wag of the company, in passing. "What do you mean by taking care of those mules yourself? Why don't you have the hostler do it?"

"Why, I thought every man had to take care of his own team," said the bewildered teamster.

"You bet he doesn't. We've got a hostler for that. There's his tent, right over there. He's a lazy, contrary old cuss, and he may not want to do it; but you swear at him and he'll move off at double quick."

The Missourian strode over to the tent indicated, which happened to be General Sherman's headquarters.

"Here, you son-of-a-gun," he roared fiercely, "get out of here and brush those mules."

Needless to say, the teamster spent the evening in the guardhouse.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Where No Flowers Are Allowed.

"Flowers can play no part in a military funeral, the rules of army or naval burials forbidding them," said an army officer. "While I was down at Chickamauga recently, it was rumored that one of the soldiers in a camp there had died. Indeed it was so printed in a local paper. The result was that on the following day a large quantity of flowers were sent by sympathetic ladies and others with a request that they should be placed on the coffin of the dead soldier. Now the fact was that no soldier had died and the officers had the flowers sent to their quarters. If there were a death in the camp the flowers could not be used, for they are not military in any sense. The only thing allowed on the coffin of a soldier or sailor is a flag. That has been decided to be decoration enough, and among military men I have never heard the slightest objection to the custom, which has always prevailed."—Washington Star.

An Insulting Innuendo.

"Don't this old injury hurt you when you attempt to run?" asked the examining surgeon of a candidate for enlistment.

"Course it does. If yer lookin' for soldiers what's goin' to run, jest count me out."—Detroit Free Press.

In China the detection of false coins is a skilled, prosperous profession known as "Shroffing," and is taught in special schools.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Aus der Rheinpfalz.

Herschberg. Der hiesige Todtengräber Jakob Kettenring fand beim Ausgraben eines Grabes zwei Goldmünzen in der Erde. Die eine trägt die Jahreszahl 1593 und die andere 1653. Beide haben die Größe eines Markstücks.

Landau. Die im Innern der Stadt befindlichen Kasernen gingen für 382,723 Mark in den Besitz der Stadt über. Es sind dies die Weiße Kaserne, die Rothe Kaserne, die Reiterkaserne und die Kriegsspitalkaserne. Hinter der Weißen Kaserne und der Reiterkaserne liegen große Exerzierplätze, die in den Kauf einbegriffen sind. Den 59,000 Quadratmeter großen sogenannten Pionier-Uebungsplatz erwarb die Stadt für 60,000 Mark, so daß also der Quadratmeter Fläche auf rund 1 Mark zu stehen kam. Der Quadratmeter Baufläche wird hier gegenwärtig mit 10 bis 15 Mark bezahlt.

Ludwigshafen. Wegen Thierquälerei gelangten zwei Metzgerburschen zur Anzeige, welche im hiesigen städtischen Schlachthause ein Schwein, das beim Schlachten nicht vollständig von ihnen getödtet war, in den Brühkessel gethan hatten, wo das Thier erst unter furchtbaren Qualen verendete.

Württemberg.

Stuttgart. Nach achtwöckiger Dauer ist der Strike der hiesigen Zimmerleute nach einer Verhandlung der Betheiligten unter dem Vorsitze des Gewerberichters beigelegt worden. Die Arbeitgeber haben in einzelnen Punkten Konzessionen gemacht.—Der wegen Vatermordes zum Tode verurtheilte Goldarbeiter Fauser ist hier hingerichtet worden.—Binnen Kurzem wird der Fangelsbach-Friedhof, bislang der zweitgrößte Begräbnißplatz Stuttgarts, geschlossen. Im Friedhofetat unserer Stadt hat der frühere Ueberschuß von etwa 25,000 Mark in ein Defizit umgeschlagen, nachdem die Stadt auf die Gebühren bei Beerdigungen vierter Klasse und von Kindern, die ohne besonderen Luxus bestattet werden, Verzicht geleistet hat.

Amrichshausen. Bei der Durchfahrt des hiesigen Kriegervereins zum Kriegerfeste in Altkrautheim fiel in Oberginsbach ein Wagen der Gesellschaft um. Dabei wurde ein Mann getödtet.

Heilbronn. Ein Mitglied einer internationalen Einbrecherbande, Josef Endel mit Namen, ist zur Nachtzeit aus dem hiesigen Untersuchungsgefängniß entwichen.—Einem hiesigen Fahrradhändler wurde ein Fahrrad entwendet, jedoch scheint der Thäter zur Einsicht gekommen zu sein, daß er durch die eigenartige Konstruktion des Fahrrades verrathen werden könnte und hat deshalb vorgezogen, das Rad von Jagstfeld aus per Expreßgut hierher an den Eigenthümer zu senden.

Ludwigsburg. Unter starker Betheiligung fand hier das 25. Liederfest des Schwäbischen Sängerbundes statt. Ueber 200 Vereine mit zusammen 8000 Sängern hatten sich eingefunden.

Nagold. In Folge eines Wolkenbruches wurden auf die Altensteiger Thalstraße bei Ebershardt so viel Geröll und selbst größere Steine geschwemmt, daß 72 Mann zur Freilegung der Bahn, welche auf dem Straßenkörper liegt, aufgeboten werden mußten.

Tübingen. Zahlreiche Erkrankungen an Typhus beim hiesigen Bataillon hatten zur Folge, daß dasselbe in Baracken auf der Solitude untergebracht wurde.

Baden.

Karlsruhe. In der großherzoglichen Gemäldegalterie ist kürzlich ein werthvolles Bild von David Teniers dem Jüngeren, zwei lachende Bauern darstellend, entwendet worden. Von dem Dieb, der ein Kenner sein muß, hat man keine Spur.

Ettlingen. Hier brannte die große Kunstmühle von Bausch nieder. Das Feuer entstand im nördlichen Flügel des Hauptgebäudes und verbreitete sich rasch über das ganze Etablissement. Die Feuerwehr konnte nur noch die Nebengebäude retten. Es wird Brandstiftung vermuthet.

Konstanz. Als den Urheber der Verwüstungen, die in dem hiesigen Stadtgarten angerichtet wurden, hat die Polizei einen 50jährigen Schuhmacher verhaftet.

Mannheim. Der Bürgerausschuß genehmigte die Erwerbung des Kaufhauses für einen Rathhausneubau. Der Kostenaufwand beträgt etwa 6,000,000 bis 7,000,000 Mark.

Wallburg. Hier wurde der 12jährige Knabe des Müllers Weyhach vom Blitz erschlagen. Der Knabe saß auf einem Heuwagen, in den der Blitz schlug, ohne zu zünden.

Elsaß-Lothringen.

Straßburg. Ein wegen Mords inhaftirter Verbrecher, der von einem Civiltransporteur von hier nach Basel befördert werden sollte, verlangte bei der Station Ebersheim in den Abort eines Wagens zu treten. Es gelang ihm, hierbei in das angrenzende Wagenabtheil zu kommen. Von dort aus sprang er durch's Fenster; der Sprung mißlang und der Flüchtling blieb augenblicklich todt.

OFFICE OF THE Street Commissioner.

City of Plainfield, New Jersey.

To unknown owner of No. 924 to No. 928 South Avenue:

Pursuant to the requirements of Sections 3 and 5 of the Ordinance of the City of Plainfield, entitled "An Ordinance concerning the construction, maintenance and repair of sidewalks," approved November 10th, 1894, amended by ordinances approved June 3d, 1896, April 10th, 1897, and May 17th, 1897.

You are hereby notified and required, on or before August 31st, 1898, to construct a sidewalk abutting on the premises owned by you, situate Number 924 to Number 928 South Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, Union County, and State of New Jersey, which sidewalk shall be constructed of bluestone flagging, smooth and even on the surface and properly laid in one course under the direction of and on such lines as shall be given by the Street Commissioner, the flags to be not less than four feet long, and not less than two feet wide, and not less than one and one-half inches thick in the thinest part.

In default of compliance herewith, the Common Council are authorized by law to order the required work to be done and paid for; to make the amount of the expense and costs with interest at 10 per cent., a lien on the land; to place the same in your annual tax bills; or to enforce payment by action of any court of competent jurisdiction.

Dated, Plainfield, N. J., June 20, 1898.

WEALTH IN MINE DEBRIS.

An Old Prospector Buys About $250,000 Worth for $10,000.

There are some men in this world who have to toil for a mere apology of a living—and then there are others. One of these latter is Mr. Luce of Cargo Muchacho. Luce's experience reads like a romance. For twenty years he had knocked about the coast, on the desert, in the mountains, prospecting and mining, and had finally, by hard work and the closest economy managed to scrape together a few hundred dollars.

One day on the shores of the Colorado, some twenty miles north of Yuma, he met an old Mexican who told him of a deserted mine some ten miles back from the river and seven miles north of Hedges. Luce's interest was aroused, and he visited that mine, to find there an abandoned twenty-stamp mill which had pounded away for many years and finally shut down. He then learned the story. The mill was on leased ground. The lessee had mined the property on shares and had done fairly well, although the ore was not entirely free milling. One day the vein "pinched out." The mining man was sure he had simply lost the lead, and that it was there all right, but the owners refused to put up a cent to help him find it again, and, tired of living on the desert, he threw up the whole business and left.

Luce examined the property and discovered that there was a small mountain of tailings, the accumulation of years, piled up behind the mill. He tested these tailings with cyanide. Then he measured the pile roughly and estimated there was over 100,000 tons of the stuff there. That night he wrote to the president of the company in New York city, offering them 10 cents per ton for the tailings on a basis of 100,000 tons. The president read the letter, looked surprised, and called the directors together. They read the letter, looked wise, tapped their foreheads significantly, and laughed to each other.

"This poor fellow Luce should be called 'goose,'" said one.

"Desert's proved too much for him—probably gone daft," observed another.

Not one of them thought those tailings were worth anything, and they had almost entirely forgotten that old mine out on the Colorado desert. But they answered the letter, telling Luce to go ahead.

This was in April of last year. On receipt of the letter, Luce immediately erected a cyanide plant costing him about $100 of his own and his friends' money. Then he hired fifteen Mexicans and Indians and began work on those tailings. The other day some representatives of the mine company were returning from San Francisco, and, passing through the desert, thought they would visit the mine.

"Are are you?" said Luce. "Glad to see you. By the way, we might as well fix up our little account now as at any time," and so saying he threw the astonished Gothamites a check for $10,000. Then he explained that in the nine months he had been running the cyanic plant he had cleaned up $45,000 and that there was plenty of tailing in sight to net him $200,000 within three years.—San Diego Sun.

IN OLD VIRGINA DAYS.

The Courtesy and Discipline Maintained by a Majordomo.

In an old history of Chief Justice Marshall there is an anecdote which gives a significant hint of the discipline to which young people were subject in that earlier day.

Several of the great jurist's nieces were in the habit of visiting him, and as they were young and attractive, the house became a rendezvous for the leading young men of the city during the afternoons. Judge Marshall's black majordomo, old Uncle Joseph, held a tight reign upon these visitors. Every day at 4 o'clock he would appear at the door of the drawing room in spotless livery and with a profound bow would announce:

"Ladies, his honor, the Chief Justice, has retired to his room to prepare for dinner."

"Gentlemen, dinner will be served at half-past 4 o'clock. It is now 4. His honor would be pleased if you will remain, and covers have been laid for you at the table. If you cannot remain, will you permit the young ladies to retire to prepare for the meal?"

The gentlemen usually took their leave, and the ladies retired in an ill humor; but any remonstrances with Joseph was only answered by: "It is the rule of the house. Young folks must be kept within bounds."

In virginia houses of the better class, notwithstanding their almost boundless hospitality, the calls of young men in that day were strictly held within limit. No one was received as a visitor to a girl unless his antecedents and character were well known to her parents.

If his visit was prolonged until after 10 o'clock, the invitation to family prayers was given. If he seemed likely to become an habitue of the house, and so to engage the thoughts, and perhaps in time the affection, of the young girl who was its chief treasure, her father quietly asked the purport of his visits, and, if he had none other than his amusement, courteously requested him to discontinue his call.—Youth's Companion.

Hard on the White Man.

"Many years ago," says Whipple, of Minnesota, "I was holding a service near an Indian village camp. My things were scattered about in the lodge, and when I was going out I asked the chief if it was safe to leave them there while I went to the village to hold a service. 'Yes,' he said, 'perfectly safe. There is not a white man within one hundred miles!'"

"I thought you said it was a case of love at first sight?"

"I did, but she soon got her second sight and weakened on me."—Detroit Free Press.

BURIAL PLACE OF PATRICK HENRY

Not in Richmond, but in Charlotte, Where He Lived—One Line on His Tomb.

Every now and then we see in some newspaper the query, "Where is Patrick Henry buried?" and tourists in Richmond constantly ask to be shown his grave, with the mistaken idea that it is in that city, where much of his public career was passed. Few people, comparatively, know that the man who acquired the title of "The tongue of the Revolution" lies in a quiet grave on the estate in Charlotte county where he formerly lived. Over him is a marble slab inscribed with the one line: "His Fame His Best Epitaph."

The estate lies on the Staunton River, thirty-eight miles from the town of Lynchburg, near the border line which separates Charlotte and Campbell counties. It derived its name of Red Hill from the peculiar color of the soil in that vicinity. When Patrick Henry bought the place it comprised about 3,500 acres. The land is rich—there was a saying in the neighborhood that poor land and Henry could never be mentioned together—corn grows there as high as a man on horseback, there is a general air of smiling fields and abundant prosperity. Its situation in early times was very remote. Neighbors were few, one of the nearest being the celebrated John Randolph of Roanoke, who lived in his chosen solitude fifteen miles away.

Red Hill is now owned by Henry's grandson, William Wirt Henry, a clever, cultivated gentleman of the "old school." He has in his possession some most interesting relics of his celebrated grandfather, including the desk he always used, which still contains his letters from Lafayette, Washington, Madison, and other great men of early days; the large, round-backed chair in which Patrick Henry died, and a portrait of him by the elder Sully, under which hangs a yellowed slip of paper signed by Chief Justice John Marshall and several others of his friends, testifying to the faithfulness of the likeness.—Philadelphia Press.

House Set on Fire by a Poultice

Fire insurance companies have all sorts of experiences and their officers can tell many curious stories. One of the queerest fires fell within the business of the Connecticut Fire Insurance Company of this city recently.

A house was set on fire by a bathtub and the tub was set on fire by a poultice. A man in a Western city was suffering from a bad cold, and his wife, at the doctor's orders, prepared a poultice for his chest. When she started to put it on it proved too hot. Accordingly she took it to the bathroom and set it into the bathtub to cool. This happened to be a fine tub lined with celluloid, which served as a sort of enamel. The heat of the poultice started the celluloid a-going, and the burning tub set things going generally. The department was called out, and the house was well wet down, for which the company had to pay. This, so far as known, is the first instance on record where a bathtub set a house on fire or where a poultice kindled a bathtub.—Hartford Courant.

Amputation by Machinery.

A four-inch circular saw for the amputation of limbs has been installed at the Emergency Hospital at Boston. An electric motor furnishes the power to run the device. The saw is mounted on a flexible shaft like that which a dentist uses, only larger. The bearings, in which runs the saw arbor, are attached to a handle by which the surgeon is able to direct the saw at any angle. Dr. Calvin and his assistants are able to save considerable time by the use of this appliance. Not only does the saw cut much faster than a hand tool, but the heat of its rapid cutting sears the flesh and blood vessels, and the healing processes of nature are advanced to a stage which by the old method is reached only after an hour or two.—Philadelphia Record.

Carlyle Deferred to His Wife.

Some interesting anecdotes of Carlyle are contributed to a contemporary by a lady who once stayed in the same house with Mrs. Carlyle. The writer says: "Mr. Carlyle was with his relatives in Scotland. Letters came from him every day, and they were read with eagerness. One of those letters contained a small pattern of tweed cloth, which she (Mrs. Carlyle) showed me, saying, 'He wants my opinion on this, and to know whether I advise him to have a suit made of it.' Generally, she said, such matters were entirely settled by her; so much so, that when the tailor's man came to try on a frock coat, he always asked for her decision. Turning to her he would say, 'Should you like a velvet collar madam?'"

Smallest Man on the Supreme Bench.

Chief Justice Fuller is the smallest man on the Supreme bench, and he is flanked by the two largest men, Justices Harlan and Gray, both being very tall and broad-shouldered. Justice Gray is the oldest man on the Supreme bench, being nearly 70, and the youngest, Justice White, is 53. Justice Brewer, who was born in Smyrna, Asia Minor, where his parents were missionaries, is the only member of the court who was not born in America.

Names of Denmark's King.

Denmark's kings for 331 years have all been named Christian or Frederick. This is not the result of accident. It is the law of Denmark that Christian must be succeeded by Frederick and Frederick by Christian. To attain this end without the changing of names in case of death or other reason every Danish prince, no matter what other names he may receive, always includes Christian and Frederick among them.

THE ROYAL PALM OF CUBA.

A Tree Called Blessed, of Which Every Part is Useful.

Not only is the climate of Cuba favorable to the planting of crops whenever the farmer chooses to plant them, and the lands so rich that no fertilization is ever required, but nature seems ot have, with a beneficent hand, reared many strange trees and plants to supply the wants of man without the necessity of his planting them himself. First among these are the palms, some twenty-six varieties of which adorn the fields of Cuba, giving shade, food and life. At the head of these stands the royal palm. This majestic tree consists of a tall, straight trunk of fibrous wood, supporting a cluster of pennated leaves, like a bunch of plumes on a long stick. It is a marvel of beauty and utility, yet it is one of the most common of all trees in Cuba.

The palm has been called the blessed tree, for every part of it has its usefulness to mankind. Certain medicinal qualities are claimed for its roots, and its trunk is easily split into strips, making excellent boards for the siding of houses, benches and even tables. As the trunk is without any bark, and its sentre is very porous, increasing in density toward the outer surface, which is nearly as hard as glass, it is only the outside hard shell of the trunk which furnishes these boards. From this hard, fibrous wood some very pretty canes are made, which take a most beautiful polish. The leaves of the palm from the centre of the trunk, first in the form of a delicate spire shooting up, which gradually unfolding itself, forms a new leaf. These leaves continue to grow from the centre spire to a great length, forming the cluster which, in the case of the royal palm, resembles so much a bunch of enormous plumes. The leaves, when they cannot grow any more, drop to the ground from the bottom of the cluster, thus making room for the new ones which are always coming out of the centre. The bud or root of the centre spire, from which the leaves grow, consists of a tender substance buried deep down within the cluster of green leaves, and forms a very palatable food, either in the raw state or cooked as a vegetable, or made into a preserve with sugar.

One of the peculiarities of the royal palm is the stem of its long leaves. It is a semi-circular stem, which embraces the trunk of the tree and holds the leaf in place until it withers and drops to the ground. The stem is called the "yagua." It resembles a thin board, often as long as a man is tall, and the Cuban insurgent, now struggling for independence, makes it serve him a variety of purposes. For example, while I was in the field it frequently served me as a plate, by simply cutting off a section of it. By soaking it in water it is rendered pliable, so that it may be folded almost as readily as a piece of stiff paper. Thus softened it is folded at the ends, something after the fashion of a baker's paper hat, and fastened with wooden pins. In this shape it is called a "catarro," and serves the Cuban farmer as a water-bucket, or a wash-basin, or a receptacle for milk, lard, cheese, eggs, or whenever a receptacle of any kind may be needed. I have seen a group of rebels using a "yagua" thus folded as a kettle in which to cook their breakfast of beef and yams. The water kept the fibrous wood from burning, and I was assured that the food thus cooked required no salt other than that which was extracted from the "yagua" in the process of cooking.—Robert Blight, in Current Literature.

Fun on the Outpost.

It is related of an Irish recruit on sentry duty at Chickamauga, one night, that he challenged a figure in the darkness with the usual "Who goes there?" The reply, "The officer of the day," was something he was not prepared for, so he responded, "Then, phat the divil are yez doin' out here at night?"—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

NOTES FOR DAILY THOUGHT.

Strive daily and hourly to be calm; to stop yourself forcibly and recall your mind to a sense of what you are, where you are going and whither you ought to be tending. This is most painful discipline, but most wholesome.—Reformed Church Messenger.

He is most my friend who teaches me self-reliance; and self-reliance, in the last analysis, is reliance on those laws and principles which can never be severed from us.—Trinities and Sanctities.

"There are people who can do all fine and heroic things but one; keep from telling their happiness to the unhappy."—A Mark Twain Maxim, in "Following the Equator."

He that hath so many causes of joy and so great is very much in love with sorrow and peevishness who loses all these pleasures, and chooses to sit down upon his little handful of thorns. Enjoy the blessing of this day, as God sends them, and the evils of it bear patiently and sweetly, for this day is only ours; we are dead to yesterday, and we are not yet born to the morrow.—Jeremy Taylor.

A Christian is always "on duty"—never "off duty." He must always let the uniform of holiness appear. He is set apart for the service of his Master unremittently. Into his life there has entered a something which reminds him that he must always be on his best behavior, and must always be seeking to live not to himself, but to Him whose he is and whom he serves. His actions are ever a matter of concern to his Lord, and he takes pleasure in noting that the life is one of complete self surrender, in little things and in those of greater consequence.—Moravian.

HOW HE BECAME TREASURER.

Mr. Fessenden Greatly Surprised When Chosen for This Office.

Congress was about to adjourn, after a long and anxious and laborious session, in which Mr. Fessenden had borne the conspicuous and responsible part of leader in the Senate, where he had been charged with all revenue measures and the financial policy of the government, says Ainsworth R. Spofford in the May Atlantic. He was worn with daily and nightly labor, and had looked forward longingly to the accustomed rest of the summer vacation. He went to the White House one morning (it was five days before the adjournment) to confer with Mr. Lincoln as to the measures of legislation then in their final stages, and to consult as to a proper candidate to be proposed for the Treasury Department. It was all-essential to secure some one who would command public confidence at such a critical juncture. Mr. Lincoln put his hand upon Fessenden's shoulder, and declared that he himself was that man. Surprised and almost confounded, the Senator told the President that he could not accept, that he was nearly worn out with the responsibilities and toil of the protracted session, and that for him to assume the onerous duties of the Treasury in the burning heat of Washington, at such a moment, would be dangerous, if not suicidal. He could not, would not accept it, for, besides his frail health, he did not feel himself qualified for the office. Mr. Lincoln replied with feeling and energy, in a strong appeal to Mr. Fessenden's patriotic impulses, with assurances that he had the confidence of the financial interests of the country, that he should have the way smoothed by the aid of able lieutenants, and closed by telling him that the nomination had already been sent to the Senate. In fact, Fessenden's appointment had already been unanimously confirmed.

He at once resolved to sink personal considerations, and to enter upon the office, with the proviso that he should be at liberty to withdraw whenever a fit successor should be found to relieve him. He himself said of it, "I took the office reluctantly and as a matter of duty, and vacated it just as soon as I could.—A. R. Spafford in Atlantic Monthly.

THE MERITS OF SEAWATER.

A Wonderful Tonic for the Liver—Good Advice to the Bathers.

A physician proffers advice to persons who are fond of sea bathing. He says that each man ought to learn for himself the length of time it is advisable for him to stay in the water. Many people stay in half an hour, when they should not be more than five minutes or less, and the harm they thus do to themselves may in the long run be serious. Persons who have low vitality and a slow reaction after the bath should make their bath shorter, until they secure a reactionary glow immediately on leaving the water. Another bad practice that many people indulge in is to take a drink of whisky or other spirit as soon as they can get into their clothes, for the purpose of taking out of their mouths the taste of the sea water they may have accidentally swallowed. In this way they are undoing a great deal of the good the bath is intended to do them. As a matter of fact, one of the most beneficial features of a sea bath is the salt water inadvertently swallowed by the bather. It is a wonderful tonic for the liver, stomach and kidneys. It is said that in many cases it will cure biliousness when all drug preparations have failed. It is peculiarly effective in ordinary cases of indigestion, disordered stomach and insomnia, and has been known to produce excellent results in many cases of chronic dyspepsia. Clean sea water is full of tonic and sedative properties, and two or three big swallows of it, far from hurting anybody, is of positive and distinct benefit to nine bathers out of ten.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Temptation too Great.

A pious old Indiana farmer was assigned to the duty of teaming, probably by mistake. The roads were muddy, and the rest of the teamsters were literally bombarding their charges with oaths. It was against the old man's principles to swear, and he held his peace, albeit in impotent rage. At last one of his hind mules balked and refused to advance a step. The old man used every endeavor to urge the beast along, but to no purpose. At last he roared, in a loud and solemn voice: "Oh, Lord, you know where this mule ought to be, as well as anybody. This whole army knows where he ought to be, oh, Lord; and if he doesn't move in a minute, I intend to say so, by gum!"

CYCLING COMMENT.

The entries for Harry Lister's fifteen-mile road race will close with him next Monday. Entrance blanks can be secured upon application to him.

A race meet is to be held at Maltby's track Wednesday evening, beginning at 7 o'clock. There are several events arranged for which prizes will be awarded.

The L. A. W. prize competition for photographs has been decided. The first prize went to James I. Phillips, of Mannington, W. Va. There were eight other prize winners, but New Jersey was not represented in the list of winners. Ohio and Illinois divided the honors. It must have been from lack of photographs that New Jersey did not come in for she has some bad roads that it would be hard indeed to equal.

Tonight the Chistian Endeavor Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church will go to Westfield and take charge of the evening meeting at the fresh air camp. The members of the bicycle squad will go on wheels, and will meet in front of the Crescent Avenue church so as to start at 7 o'clock. Those who prefer to go by rail, will leave the North Avenue station on the 7:30 train. It is desirable that as many go as possible, so as to make the meeting at the camp a lively one.

GOLF.

Golf is getting quite popular among the sport-loving folk of Bound Brook. The links of the Middlebrook Heights Country Club were opened this season and every day sees a number of players on the links. Some of the members live in Somerville and drive or come awheel nearly every day to enjoy their favorite sport.

Despite the threatening weather, there were a number of members up on the new links of the Park Golf Club Saturday. While the grounds have not yet been formally opened, there is considerable playing there and the members are fast getting accustomed to the peculiarities of the place. They all report that the links are fine ones, and when the greens are put in good shape that they will be hard to equal.

ROD AND GUN.

Last Saturday Julius Williams, of Elmwood place, and Alvin Hoagland, of West Front street, went hunting for fish, and they met with good success.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mayor Wilson, of the borough, is in Philadelphia today on business.

Prof. Carpenter, of the borough, has gone to Sparta for his vacation.

Miss Julia Wright has returned to Oyster Bay, L.I., after visiting friends here.

Miss Etta Raybert, of North avenue, has gone to Asbury Park for two weeks.

Charles A. Haynes, of First place, is able to be out again after a long illness.

Charles Brown, general secretary of the Jersey City Y. M. C. A., was in town today.

Edward Mosher, of Elmwood place, went to Penn Argyl, Pa., today to visit friends.

Miss Jenkins, of East Sixth street, left today for the seashore to spend her vacation.

Mrs. John Manley, of Park avenue, has returned home after visiting her mother in New York city.

Miss Julia Shinn, of West Seventh street, is spending her summer vacation at her home in Lakewood.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry, of New York, have returned for the summer to their former home on Crescent avenue.

Rowland Cox and family, of West Seventh street, left today for Maine, where they will remain this summer.

Former Mayor Alex. Gilbert and wife, of West Eighth street, left town today to enjoy their summer outing.

Miss Addie Weaver, of West End Park, has returned from a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Passmore, of Reading, Pa.

Mrs. MacIntyre, of West Seventh street, is spending the summer at the Seaside Park Hotel, near Barnegat Bay.

Lawrence and Fred Miner, of Hoboken, spent Sunday with their sister, Mrs. Fred S. Moore, of West Front street.

Freeholder Andrew Lutkins, of the borough, went to Belle Meade today to inspect some of the roads in that vicinity.

Miss Bessie Blair, of East Second street, left today for Belmar, where she will spend the balance of the summer.

F. M. Slater and family have taken up their residence on Manning avenue after being absent from the city for some time.

Mrs. Henry Nischwitz and children, of Manning avenue, left on Saturday for Sailersberg, Pa., Monroe county, for a month's outing.

During the offertory in Trinity Reformed church yesterday morning, F. S. Cutter sang a bass solo, "Forever With the Lord," with acceptably.

Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt Wooley, son and daughters, of Middlebush, Somerset county, spent Sunday at the home of G. Q. Dolliver, Fairview avenue.

In the registration of guests at the Coleman House, Asbury Park, are the names of Mr. and Mrs. M. Dwight and Miss Dwight, of Rockview avenue, and E. L. Suffern, of Sycamore avenue.

How to Kill a Church.

The Mt. Olive Baptist church was largely attended last evening to listen to Pastor Jackson deliver a sermon from the theme entitled "The Fourteen Ways of Killing a Church." The sermon was listened to with marked attention and enjoyed by all. The pastor held a secret men's meeting at 4:30 o'clock, immediately after the Sunday-school, in which the brethren all were present and took part. The nature of it is unrevealed, but all who attended came out with a smile.

—Next Wednesday evening the regular monthly business meeting of the First Baptist church will be held.

TOOMBS AND STEPHENS.

How the Former Got Rid of His Rival for the Senate.

One day in court week in Georgia Gen. Robert Toombs drove up to the big gate of the yard in front of Mr. Alexander H. Stephen's house, where he saw the statesman's horse saddled and hitched to a rack.

"Aleck, Aleck!" roared out Gen. Toombs.

"Hello!" returned the shrill pipe of the little statesman.

"Going to court to-day, Aleck?"

"Yes."

"Well, send your horse back and get in here with me."

So Mr. Stephens took the vacant seat in the buggy, and presently Toombs said: "I wanted to have a talk with you, Aleck, this morning. I wanted to ask your advice. People are writing to me from every part of the State urging me to run for the Senate and pledging me their support. I believe I could be elected, and I wouldn't hesitate for a moment but for one thing. It occurred to me that maybe you might want to come out for the place yourself. If you do, just say the word, and I will withdraw in your favor. I'd like to get it very much, but I wouldn't think of coming out against an old friend and neighbor like you."

In relating this incident afterward Mr. Stephens remarked, shrewdly: "Bob Toombs knew that I wanted to go to the Senate, but he understood me well enough to carry his point very easily."

It may be a source of some comfort to people not quite so famous to know that even as great a man as Alexander H. Stephens was not always able to say "No" when no other word in the English language was so eminently appropriate.—New Orleans Picayune.

Money in Small Inventions.

A certain American patent for fastening kid gloves yielded a fortune of several hundred thousand dollars for its fortunate owner, and the inventor of a collar clasp enjoys $20,000 royalty a year as the reward for his endeavor.

A new kind of sleeve button has made $50,000 in five years for its patentee, and the simple twisting of safety pins in such a way that there is no possible danger of the point sticking into the child promises to enrich its owner beyond any of his early dreams of wealth. A man one day turned a piece of wire so as to hold a cork more securely in a bottle, and forthwith somebody saw a brilliant idea and patented the modern wire stopple holder which is now used annually on several million bottles. The accidental bending of a hairpin by a woman to prevent it from sliding out of her hair easily produced a fortune for her husband, who immediately saw the possibilities of a crinkled hairpin for women.—New York World.

THE CONNING TOWER.

Where the Admiral is Stationed During an Engagement.

The conning tower of the modern ironclad presents the greatest possible contrast between the old and new methods of fighting on the seas. The conning tower starts over the forward turret. In this circular chamber, scarcely six feet across and protected by walls of steel twelve inches thick, stood Commodore Dewey. Above his head was a roof of solid steel. The first impression of the lay observer as he enters this little inclosed chamber is that the enemy and all other things are invisible, and that the battle is to be fought out on the lines of simple guess-work.

But stepping forward and bringing his eyes to the level of the armor plating between the arched roof above and the steel walls he becomes aware of a little narrow slit along which he may sweep his eyes and take in the whole range of the horizon.

Below and directly in front of him is the sharp-pointed bow of the boat and the two long white muzzles of the guns protruding many feet from the forward turret.

From the moment of the beginning of the battle until the end the commander is invisible to his men. His voice is the only thing present—mainly through speaking-tubes and telephones.

On that group of speaking-tubes to the right are the words "Bow torpedo tube" and "Above water torpedo tube." At the left is the voice tube to the engine-room, and this completes the circuit that discharges the giant guns.

Right in the centre of the conning tower is the steam-steering wheel, binnacle and compass. Thus by the directing hand of the commander standing in the centre of the tower, with his hand upon the compass, is the battle fought. Who of all humanity save the man himself can realize the immensity of the strain upon the human mind placed in control of this mighty engine on the day of battle? In this little spot is concentrated the whole power of the mighty machine which we know as an ironclad ship. Never since the world began was such a power concentrated in the hands of one man, and with that power the judgment to direct it, the will to apply it, the knowledge to utilize it is placed in his hands.

The commander in his conning tower has but to press the button and the great engines will drive the boat through the water.

Down in the chambers of the guns are the masses of the powder charges. A touch, a spark, a great flame and a thundering crash, and the steel shot will rush 2,000 feet in a second. The touch of another button will loosen the torpedoes. A word through a third tube will send a storm of steel and lead flying from the machine guns on the upper deck and in the round tops.

OLDEST OF AMERICA'S CONSULS.

Has the Proud Distinction of Over a Half a Century's Service.

The proud distinction of half a century's service, making him the Nestor of the American consular corps, belongs to Horatio J. Sprague, the United States Consul at Gibraltar. Mr. Sprague was appointed by President James K. Polk May 12, 1848. Moreover, his father before him, Horatio Sprague, of Boston, Mass., was appointed Consul at Gibraltar by President Andrew Jackson April 30, 1832. Again, the son of the present Consul, Richard Louis Sprague, is Deputy and Vice Consul, and, if the record of the Sprague family is kept up, will be serving the United States at Gibraltar when the twentieth century is half gone.

Horatio the elder, a native of Boston, visited Gibraltar before and after 1812. He subsequently established in Gibraltar the business of American merchantman and shipowner. Ancient records refer to him as "enjoying a high standing in the commercial world, of great moral worth and general hospitality, especially to his countrymen." During the first years of his Gibraltar residence, in 1815, he was presented by the Humane Society of Massachusetts with a gold medal for aiding in the rescue of Captain James Riley and his crew from slavery. Those worthy New Englanders had been placed in slavery by a horde of wandering Arabs in the African desert. The present Horatio was born in Gibraltar on August 12, 1823.

The "Coming Man" of Spain.

Don Francisco Romero y Robledo, former Spanish Minister of Justice, and present leader of the Conservative party, is just now an interesting figure in Spanish politics. It is not unlikely that he is the "coming man."

He was born in Antequera Andalusia, and in appearance is much more like an Englishman than a Spaniard. He is tall, of fair complexion, with light, curly hair, now turning gray, bright, piercing blue eyes, blond mustache and beard tinged with red, and big white teeth, with two larger ones in front, slightly protruding, without which the caricaturist usually considers no Englishman complete. The comic papers do great things with these teeth, and put them in evidence on every possible occasion.

Senor Romero's success as a politician has been due in a great measure to his personal magnetism and splendid oratory, which is considered second only to that of the great Castelar; his voice is musical and resonant, and his most bitter opponents in politics are often so carried away by his speech that they applaud almost unconsciously, even when the words which flow in such graceful, telling eloquence from his lips are directly against them and their aims.

A PICTURESQUE LANGUAGE.

System of Searchlight Signals by Which Great Warships Talk.

The most picturesque language in the world is the system of searchlight signals by which the great warships converse with each other at night. The letters may be said to be written with great pencils of light, with the black sky as a parchment. The accompanying illustration reproduces a short sentence spelled out in this unique way.

The searchlight signals are by far the most successful night signals in the world. The great beams of light streaming across the sky may be readily recognized at a distance of ten miles or more, and a message may be transmitted at this distance with very slight chance of error. To the uninitiated the language written in this curious fashion would appear to be a rather remarkable exhibition of fireworks and nothing more. A very little knowledge will enable one to catch their meaning. The alphabet of these magic searchlights is merely an adaptation of the so-called wig-wag system which has been in use for centuries and is spoken universally.

The system of searchlight signals is exceedingly simple and may be learned very readily. The original wig-wag system is transmitted with flags or with lanterns by night, and the various signals are made by waving the flag or light. The man who signals to trains merely follows a system which is an adaptation of the wig-wag system. In the original wig-wag system there are but three signals made by waving the flag or light—to the right, to the left or in front of the signal man. The alphabet is arranged much the same as the Morse telegraphic alphabet by an arbitrary combination of the two signals.

In the wig-wag system the man sending the signal is required to stand throughout in one position and wave the flag meanwhile. It will of course be seen that if he changes his position he is likely to change the position of the flag and confuse the signals. Now, on a warship the vessel itself must take a position just the same as the signalman and remain at rest until the signals are finished. The ordinary wig-wag signals are made by waving a flag, and the signals on a man-of-war are made merely by throwing or waving the brilliant beams of these searchlights from side to side in the same way. The rules of one system of course apply to the other. In the wig-wag system there is but one position, with three motions. The system requires the ship to rest directly facing the station with which it is desired to communicate, with the light pointing directly upward in a vertical line. The first motion, which signifies No. 1, is made by waving the searchlight around to the right of the ship. The signal must embrace an arc of 90 degrees, starting with the vertical and returning to it. The second motion, No. 2, is made by moving the pencil of light in the same way, only to the left of the sender. To make the third signal, No. 3, the light is moved from the vertical position to the ground, or rather the waterline, directly in front of the sender and instantly returning it to its original vertical position.

The various letters of the alphabet are made by grouping the first and second signals together. The letter A is, for instance, made by repeating twice the second signal—thus, 22; the letter B is 2112, C is 121 and so on. Signal No. 2 is repeated at the end of each word, abbreviation or conventional signal. The signals transmitted in this way will be readily recognized by the captains of ships of all countries. This is the international code and is used in times of peace and in conversing with vessels of other countries. In time of war, however, each country arranges a secret code for use among its own fleet. This enables them, of course, to tell each other all sorts of secrets which the enemy cannot possibly read.

BALLINGTON BOOTH TELLS OF HIS WORK.

Commander of the American Volunteers Makes an Address.

A VERY SMALL AUDIENCE.

THE VOLUNTEERS HAVE ACCOMPLISHED MUCH IN THEIR WAY.

Booth was at His Best Last Night and Made a Very Interesting Address—Nothing Slow About the Volunteers—Serve Their Country as Well as Their God—Religion in Brass Bands.

Commander Ballington Booth, of the American Volunteers, was present at the Y. M. C. A. hall last night and delivered an address upon the work of the organization of which he is the head to a small audience. The Commander, tall and erect, and of prepossessing appearance, is no stranger to Plainfield people, having been present at meetings before in this city, but never have the people heard him present the cause more earnestly or been more charmed with him as a speaker than last night. He was at his best, and the words, flowing from his lips in well-rounded sentences, carried power and conviction with them.

The Commander was accompanied by the National staff band of eleven pieces. They played several selections before and during the progress of the meeting. Adjutant Taylor, who blows the "big horn," when called upon for a selection suggested that the Commander favor the audience with one on his Anglo-American harmonica, which he had with him, and after a few introductory remarks, the Commander complied. Rev. William C. O'Donnell then introduced Commander Booth, saying that the American people have been ready to applaud two things about the Volunteer Army. First, the blending together of the flag of their country and the banner of their Redeemer; second, the gallant work of their Commander and his heroic wife. Commander Booth then spoke in part as follows:—

"Love of God and love of country are two cardinal points in the working plans of the Volunteers. Whatever may be said, a Volunteer service always has something about it interesting alike to those inside and outside the ranks. In its character there is nothing slow, dry or morose, but warmth and energy are displayed everywhere.

"There is no idea in the Volunteer ranks to cease beating the drum, but continually is heard some voice calling sinners to repentance, and to step forward and accomplish something for God and their country. The time is coming when the people will realize that this movement is for the saving of the Nation. Today, from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico and from the Atlantic to the Pacific, can be found gallant bands of Volunteers marching beneath our standard.

"There are always some people of a prophetic nature who stand on the outskirts of a new movement and ask, 'Will it last?' This movement is still young, yet it is rapidly developing the latent power of the Christian churches of America. We believe in a real Christ, who left a real home to shed real blood and open the doors of a real heaven that we can enjoy eternally.

"The need of the nineteenth century is applied Christianity, Christianity brought down to the level of humanity. The Volunteers call things by their real names, and even if some of the converts are rough and uncouth, when they stand before an audience and proclaim Christ, they are blessed.

"We believe in serving our country as well as our God. I was born in England, but haven't a drop of English blood in my veins. I have been in this country for twelve years, and any physician will tell you that a man renews his physical body every seven years. America is the country of my adoption. I believe in American government as the best government in its laws, its civilization and its people, and I look upon it as the greatest country in the world today.

"I like the present attitude of this country. This is a holy war. We are fighting to liberate the poor Cubans. They will have a government of their own yet annexed to the United States.

"I think if Christ should come to this earth he would do just what the Volunteers are doing. A great work is being done by them among the working classes. They are reaching people that cannot be touched in any other way. If God's work can be done with the aid of brass bands, let us use brass bands. If a church bell can call together the true hearted,

SWEDES WILL WORSHIP.

SWEDISH FREE CHURCH TO MEET IN CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

The Little Band Which Has Been Gathering in the W. C. T. U. Rooms Sunday Nights, to Hold Mid-week Service.

Some time ago a movement was started among some of the Swedish residents of this city looking toward the formation of a branch of the Swedish Free church in Plainfield. As a result, meetings have been held in the W. C. T. U. rooms Sunday evenings.

The National church in Sweden is the Lutheran church, but there are, nevertheless, many members of the Free church, which correeponds with the Congregational church, in this country. Recognizing the Congregational church as practically the same in religion and church government with themselves, the local branch has applied to the Congregational church of this city for permission to use their sanctuary.

Sunday morning a short meeting of the board of trustees of the Congregational church was held and the Swedes were granted the use of the lecture room Thursday evenings free of charge.

While many of the natives of Sweden residing in this city know enough English for business purposes, they are unable to fully appreciate a religious discourse, so they wish to have it delivered in their own tongue. Already Swedish Free churches have been established in Orange and Perth Amboy. It is now planned to form one here if possible.

The little gathering that has been meeting every Sunday evening in the W. C.T.U. rooms numbers about forty in all. According to the rules of the Union no collection can be taken up there except for the advancement of the work of temperance and missions. The followers of the Swedish faith have wished to raise a sufficient sum to enable them to hire a regular preacher to speak to them once a week in their mother tongue. Heretofore the meetings have been conducted by the members themselves.

The need of a mid-week meeting has been felt and the request to the Congregational church, which was granted, was a result of this feeling. At this meeting a collection will be taken up. It is hoped that the movement will soon gather sufficient strength to be able to have a minister of its own.

ENDEAVOR CYCLISTS GO.

CONDUCTED A MEETING AT CAMP WOLF, WESTFIELD, LAST NIGHT.

They Went Awheel from This City and Found a Unique Scene—The Children Love to Sing Hymns—The Meeting.

The Christian Endeavor bicycle squad of the Park Avenue Baptist church was in active operation last night. The society had charge of a gospel meeting at Camp Wolf, the headquarters of the Westfield fresh-air work, and while one or two of the Endeavorers went down by train, and a few others by carriage, by far the greater number were in the party of cyclists that met in front of Crescent Avenue church and enjoyed a half-hour's spin down the county road, arriving just as the song service at the camp was in progress. And such a song service! If there is anything the restless little pieces of humanity brought out from darkest New York for a ten-days' good time seem to enjoy, it is shouting the chorus to a rousing gospel hymn.

The visitors were tempted to look about them during the service, for the scene was unique. A large building, sides open to the air, and within, seated in rows of chairs, or standing outside, worn-looking New York mothers, many of them with tiny children, and swarming about everywhere, the children, with alert, wide-awake faces, tangled hair, and eyes that gazed at the strangers with curiosity, pleasure, or distrust.

The leader of the meeting was that well-known Endeavor worker, Mrs. Alice Spangenberg Runyon, and her brief, simple talk on the words "Ask, and Ye Shall Receive," was thoroughly helpful and could be understood by all. Miss Adelaide Runyon sang "Alas, and Did My Saviour Bleed," accompanied by Miss Myra Runyon at the organ. Many of the Endeavors, some of the mothers, and even a number of the children repeated verses of Scripture, gave simple testimonies, or offered prayer, then the closing hymn was sung. After spending a short time in making acquaintance with the guests of the camp, the bicycle squad was called to order, and amid a chorus of "good-byes," and the jingling of bicycle bells, started on their return trip.

Irving West, of this city, went to Reading, Pa., today on business.

Hong Kong Hears That All The European Powers Agree That We Must Not Annex Those Islands.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Hong Kong, July 26, 11:30 a. m.—Repeated telegraphic reports are received here from the European capitals, announcing that all the European powers have agreed that the United States shall not annex the Phillippines.

The news has greatly aroused the activity at the Spanish headquarters at this city. Encouraging reports are being sent to the Spanish governor at Manila.

The news has aroused the Spaniards into new activity in their attempts to buy over or kill Aguinaido, the insurgent leader in the Phillippines.

American Consul Wildman is beginning to show the effects of the strain to which he has been subjected. He has now moved to Victoria Peak to avoid being harrassed by Spanish spies.

He is also much annoyed by the insistance of the volunteers who are so eager to enlist with the Americans at Manila.

The German ship, Petrarrh, left this port this morning with supplies for the German fleet at Manila.

LET THE CASE DROP.

Col. Hayes, of Dunellen, Decided Not to Push the Action Against Miller.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, July 26—The suit, in tort, for $100 damages brought before Justice Sedan by Col. William B. Hayes, of Dunellen, against Samuel B. Miller, a Philadelphia salesman, was dropped yesterday, the plaintiff refusing to press the matter. Col. Hayes was not present himself in court, but Attorney Harry Cook appeared for him and said that Col. Hayes had decided to drop it.

Miller, who was present, was represented by W. S. Angleman, of Plainfield. The suit was brought by Col. Hayes for alleged trespassing on his lawn to deliver some fruit trees for Chase & Co., of Philadelphia, and it is claimed by the defendant that it was only brought out of spite.

The burglars smashed the rear door with a crowbar, pried open the desk and went through the place. Bread, cake, eggs, cigarettes, cigars and tobacco were carried away, but no money was taken. From articles dropped by the burglars in their flight it was seen that they went in the direction of Metuchen.

BROTHERS-IN-LAW QUARREL IN COURT.

Lawyers Argued and Then Clients Took a Hand.

CHARGE OF CALLING NAMES

ETTINGER ALLEGED THAT KANE CALLED HIM VILE NAMES.

The Case Was Tried Before City Judge DeMeza—The Evidence Was Not Strong Enough and He Let the Prisoner Go—Bad Blood Now Exists Between the Two as a Result of the Suit.

As a finale to a case in Justice Mosher's court yesterday morning, a warrant was issued from the City Judge's office for Charles Kane, of Philadelphia, in the afternoon, charging him with calling Michael Ettinger, of Cottage place, a vile name. The trial was held last night, and after listening to a large amount of testimony on both sides, the City Judge finally concluded to allow the defendant to go, there not being sufficient evidence to hold him.

The trouble all started in the first place between two lawyers, S. S. Swackhamer and Councilman Walter L Hetfield. Kane sued Ettinger for $100 money loaned, and when the case was called yesterday morning Mr. Hetfield asked for an adjournment for a month. This Mr. Swackhamer objected to, and a war of words followed. Judge Mosher patiently listened while they argued, and the two principals, Kane and Ettinger, becoming excited, took a hand, and, it is alleged, said many unpleasant things about each other.

Meanwhile the stentorian voices of Messrs. Swackhamer, Hetfield, Kane and Ettinger were heard outside. People began to drop in one by one, and in a little while the court room was filled. It was with the greatest difficulty that Judge Mosher could preserve order, and at last gave it up, and announced that the case stood adjourned.

When court was over, Ettinger acted upon the advice of his counsel and swore out a complaint against Kane. The arrest was made and a repetition of what had occurred in Judge Mosher's court took place in the City Judge's office, without its accompanying disorder.

Ettinger had for his witnesses Wm. Sweeney and his lawyer, Councilman Walter L. Hetfield, who swore that Kane had called him a bad name. Kane produced Michael Coyne, Alex. Kane and Edward Baker to prove that he made use of no such term as was alleged. When the contract case comes up before Justice Mosher for trial August 22d, an exciting time is looked for, as bad blood exists between the two men, who are brothers-in law.

WASN'T READY FOR TRIAL.

Michael Ettinger Did Not Have an Important Witness on Hand.

Two lawyers, Counselor S. S. Swackhammer and Walter L. Hetfield, had quite a setto yesterday morning in Justice Mosher's court over the adjournment of a case. Charles Kane brought suit against Michael Ettinger for $100 which he claimed he loaned Ettinger and the latter's wife, and the case was set down for trial yesterday.

Kane and his counsel were ready for trial, but Ettinger appeared in court with an affidavit that an important witness was ill. Ettinger asked that the case be postponed. After hearing the arguments on both sides, Justice Mosher concluded to adjourn the case until August 22.

Some time ago Kane brought suit against Ettinger for the recovery of this alleged loan, but as Mrs. Ettinger was dead, the court held that he should have sued the executors, and granted a nonsuit in the case. This time Michael Ettinger and Michael Coyne, executors of the estate of Kate Ettinger, are the ones sued.

OUR LOSSES IN THE WAR.

Shafter's Official Report of Casualties Received.

NUMBER ABOUT 1,500.

WAR DEPARTMENT WILL HAVE REPORT PUBLISHED.

It Shows The American Losses at the Battle of Santiago to To Be 231 Killed, 1,283 Wounded and 81 Missing.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Washington, July 26, 12:06 p. m.—General Shafter's detailed report of the American casualties at the battle of Santiago has been received by the officials of the War Department.

The report which is being prepared for publication in detail gives the total casualties as fifteen hundred and ninty-five.

Recapitulated, the American losses were: killed, 23 officers, 208 enlisted men; wounded, 80 officers and 1,203 men; missing, 81 men.

The missing are supposed to be dead, as the Spanish took no prisoners as far as is known.

FIRED ON DANDY

American Despatch Boat Shot at By the Spanish Soldiers.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Key West, July 26, 1:13 p. m—Squads of Spanish soldiers are reported to have fired on the despatch boat, Dandy, at a point on the Cuban coast three miles west of Bahai Honda yesterday.

The flash of the smoke signals marked the progress of the Dandy along the shore which seemed to be excellently watched.

The Cape San Antonio light at the western extremity is still burning. Havana was brilliantly illuminated last evening. The reason for it is not known.

NO WORD FROM MILES.

The Officials Are Sure That He Has Landed a Detachment.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Washington, July 26, 1:25 p. m.—The officers of the War Department believe that Gen. Miles has landed his forces in Porto Rico.

The are unanimously of the opinion that the landing place was not near Ponce as reported. Gen. Corbin says that the landing place selected was at Fajardo.

No direct news has yet been received from Gen. Miles to date. The officials are still maintaining great secrecy and are carefully guarding the plans of the expedition.

HOLGUIN MUST FALL.

News of Its Surrender is Soon Expected at Santiago.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Santiago de Cuba, July 25, via Playa del Este, July 26, 1:20 p. m—It is difficult to see how the large body of Spaniards at Holguin can fail to surrender soon, although reinforced from Gibara.

That city is one of the commanding points of eastern Cuba and the surrender of its garrison will be an important event in the war. News of this is expected shortly.

The First Infantry, under Colonel Bisbee, started to occupy the fortifications at Guantanamo yesterday.

Miss Evelyn Simonson, of Duer street, has resigned her position in White's dry goods store.

WHEELMEN, BEWARE!

CITY JUDGE AND POLICE WILL ENFORCE BICYCLE ORDINANCE.

George Gould, the Bicycle Dealer, Fined for Riding Without Light—Judge Says Wheelmen Must be More Careful.

Beware, wheelmen! Offend not the city ordinances for the City Judge and his keen allies, the police, are on your trail. In other words, the authorities of the city are getting tired of seeing the bicycle ordinance of the city frequently violated and City Judge De Meza has instructed the officers of the police force to enforce the law to the letter. It is against the scorcher and the rider without bell and lamp that this crusade is aimed.

It all came out of the fact that George Gould, the Park avenue bicycle dealer, was stopped by Patrolman Vanderweg on West Front street last evening for riding without a light. Gould thought it a joke and did not show up in court this morning as he was ordered to by the policeman who stopped him. As a result he was haled before the City Judge this morning and fined $3.

On his failure to appear a warrant was issued for his arrest and it was served by Roundsman Frederickson, who soon found the offending wheelman and brought him to the court-room.

Gould, it is said, started from a hotel on Somerset street and rode without lighting his lamp, down Somerset street to Front street, and was riding on when called to by the officer. At first Gould paid no attention to the call thinking, as he said this morning, that it was only a joke. When it was repeated Gould slowed up and stopped, and was allowed to go on again upon his promise to appear this morning at the court.

City Judge DeMeza then issued orders to the officers to begin a sharp war on scorchers and wheelmen riding without lights and bells. Prior to these past few weeks the police have been lenient with wheelmen, and have not been so strict in enforcing the ordinance as formerly. But from this time forth the summer campaign will be carried on in earnest. Therefore, riders of the silent steed, beware.

WANTED TO BRAIN HIM.

DRAKE AROUSED HIS IRE BY CALLING GIRL NAMES.

Drake Was Brought Before City Judge and Pete Benford Testified Against Him—Drake Said it Was a Put-up Job.

Charged with calling Edna Post, a little girl living on Richmond street, improper names, and using bad language in her presence, Frank Drake, a sixteen-year-old lad living near her, faced City Judge DeMeza in court this morning and vigorously denied the charge.

Drake looked every inch a tough, and it was proved conclusively by Maggie Poland, Peter Benford and Tommie Burns that Drake had used the language in question. He was locked up in a cell to await the pleasure of the City Judge. He will probably be released tonight on payment of a small fine.

Drake said that it was all a "put up job of that low-lived Richmond street crowd," that he was walking along on the opposite side of the street when Edna Post called to him and said she would have him arrested.

Pete Benford, who was included in the uncomplimentary remarks made by Drake, said that he would have "braired Drake with a brick" if he could have caught him, and defiantly waved his crutch, for he has only one foot. The court said that such threats were not becoming the decorum of the court room, and advised him to hold his tongue.

Edna Post is a daughter of former Policeman Post, who didn't want Drake sent to the Reform School, but just frightened sufficiently by a few hours' confinement to teach him a lesson.

Plenty of Fish Here.

The water was let out of the pond in the brick yard at Netherwood yesterday afternoon, and it was found that the pond was full of catfish and eels. As soon as it was discovered that the water was going out, people gathered from all around and began to catch the fish in their hands. Many were the suppers of savory fish eaten last night.

To Take an Outing.

Saturday the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company's superintendents, assistant superintendents, managers, collectors and their families, of Somerville and this city, will go to Boynton Beach and spend the day. The party will go by stage and will number about thirty-five people.

SEASON IS OPENED WITH GREAT SUCCESS.

Sullivan's Troubadours Give Their Initial Performance.

THEATRE OPEN FOR SEASON

IT LOOKED NEAT AND CLEAN AND REFLECTED CREDIT ON MANAGEMENT.

The New Idea in Repertoire, as Presented by the Troubadours, Was a Success—Well Rendered Drama and Roaring Farce Comedy—A Large Audience Present—Programme Last Night.

If there is anything that the truly typical American audience does not want to do, it is to wait. No matter what it happens to be, the American wants no delay. He is also quite particular as regards the sameness of his entertainments. He wants variety. It was with these peculiarities of the American audience in view that Sullivan's Troubadours were organized. The aim was to cater to these very tastes and the initial performance of the Troubabours, given in Stillman Music Hall last evening, evidenced that the efforts of the management in that direction had been successful.

Besides marking the opening of the season for the Troubadours, last evening's performance also saw the beginning of the theatrical season in Plainfield for the fall and winter of '98 and '99. It was apparent from the moment of entering that Manager Maze Edwards had kept his word. The house was clean, scrupulously so, in fact. Furthermore, it was neat. The efforts of Maze Edwards had not been in vain, for Music Hall was certainly on its best behavior and its bright and cleanly appearance greatly pleased the hearts of the theatre-goers of the city.

And then for the entertainment itself. "A new idea in repertoire," they advertise it. The performance seemed to fulfill the claim. It was based on the same principle as those at Keith's and Proctor's New York theatres, only it was not a continuous performance. Laughing, roaring comedy and well-acted heavy drama were combined in the evening's programme, together with a number of specialties by talented artists, so that the whole formed a pleasant composition that was bound to find favor somewhere with all kinds of theatre-goers.

"The Glees" departed from the usual run of musical artists. They combined popular songs and operatic selections with a touch of refined comedy. Joe A. Hardman had the stage all to himself. There was no need for anybody else there, however. Hardman is funny, the audience laughed the moment they saw him; and when he opened his mouth—well, they kept it up until he disappeared behind the wings.

The California comedy couple, Charles B. Nelson and Mamie Milledge, gave their little comedy, "Glass Put In." Nelson has the faculty of impersonating the typical stage Irishman to perfection, while his stage companion took her share in the sketch. Leah Starr, the charming little soubrette, had several new songs ready.

"Flora's" Transformation dance was well given and the colored light effects were handled so as to make the dance very pleasing.

Edward P. Sullivan made a decided hit in "Ingomar." He had prepared a condensed version of it so as to combine it in one act of forty minutes. His acting was of the best and he threw his whole soul into the part. Miss Emiley Lessells, who took the part of "Parthenia," had a difficult character to portray, but she gave it with a skill that was a fitting second to the efforts of Sullivan.

Master James Whitely has a remarkably fine voice for so small a boy and he has the new "darkey" melodies down pat. The "Waragraph" include both moving pictures and interesting views.

The programme ended with the roaring farce, "The Shamrock Hotel," in which knock-about work abounded and all the characters made things lively for everybody.

The Troubadours will continue at Music Hall every evening this week. There will be a complete change of programme at every performance and the same variety will be continued. This evening Sullivan will present "The Marble Heart."

The attendance last evening was large and almost all of the reserved seats were filled. Tonight even a greater crowd is expected.

The Troubadours are under the management of E. Brook Hopper. His hustling and energetic qualities combined with his devotion to his duties are important factors in the success of the company.

ANOTHER FOR MANILA

The Next Expedition Will Be Led by Gen. Charles King.

MERRITT NEEDS 50,000 MEN

Gen. King Thinks a Large Army Will Be Required to Settle the Philippine Question. Illness Among the Troops at Camp Merritt Will Cause Their Removal.

San Francisco, July 26.--It is understood that Brigadier General Charles King will be in command of the next Manila expedition. He will probably go either on the Arizona or Scandia, while Brigadier General Miller, now commander of the Presidio, probably will remain for the present, at the expressed desire of General Merriam.

Referring to the troops destined to Manila, General King said: "It is my personal opinion that every man of the expeditionary force will be wanted in the Philippines and will go there. Even should Manila be taken from the Spanish and the war settled in the Orient, as far as Spain is concerned, with the forces now there or already ordered to depart, it is still not to be doubted that General Merritt will be glad to have 50,000 men before he is through with Aguinaldo. The men at Camp Merritt and the Presidio may rest contented that they will see all of the Philippines that they desire."

Active preparations for moving the troops at Camp Merritt to the Presidio will begin to-day, and in three days the new grounds will be ready for the reception of at least a part of them. It is the intention of Generals Merriam and Miller to move only those troops that are not soon to be assigned to transports. Those troops, therefore, that receive orders to change camp will know that they are destined to remain here for some weeks more.

Sickness among the soldiers here is increasing. In the division hospital there are 208 patients, and in the Presidio barracks hospital 253 soldiers, while perhaps a hundred less severe cases are in the regimental hospitals. More soldiers are sick now than during the bad weather, when about 14,000 were in Camp Merritt, where to-day there are only a little over half the number.

De Witt L. Tucker, a private in Company L, Fifty-first Iowa volunteers, died on Sunday of pneumonia. The remains will be taken back to Council Bluffs for burial. Joseph Baker, a private in Company B, First Tennessee, died at the division hospital of dysentery, and several men in the hospitals are in a critical condition.

BRIG. GEN. CHARLES KING.

William Drum, the crack runner of the University of California, who was to have been track captain next year, has enlisted as a private in Company L of the Second United States volunteer engineers. Eleven recruits of the Fourteenth infantry, enlisted at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, who have just arrived at Camp Merritt, have been assigned to the Third battalion of the Twenty-third infantry for rations, quarters and equipment until they can be forwarded to their regiment, now on its way to the Philippines.

According to the Chronicle several privates in the Kansas regiment, acting as correspondents of their home papers, have been sending out complaining letters and in some cases severe criticisms of their officers. Colonel Funston ordered the more flagrant offenders to be brought before him and gave them a scathing rebuke, with the warning that they might expect severe punishment should they again offend in this manner.

The transport St. Paul has come off the dry dock at the Union Iron Works and is now being prepared for the reception of troops. She will probably be ready to sail by the end of the week and the Arizona and Scandia will be in condition for the voyage to Manila about the same time. Extensive alterations are being made on the steamer Centennial, and she may yet be accepted by the government.

To Superintend Deportation.

New York, July 26.--Lieutenant S. F. Massey, U. S. A., of Sandusky, O., who was placed on the retired list a few years ago on account of failing health, sailed from New York last night for Santiago on the Olivette.

He has been appointed agent by the war department to superintend the transportation to Spain of the prisoners of war recently surrendered to General Shafter.

Lieutenant Massey speaks Spanish fluently and he will see that the contract with the transportation company is rigidly carried out.

No Verdict Yet.

Washington, July 26.--The jury in the case of Senator R. P. Kenney, charged with aiding and abetting former Teller Boggs in the looting of the First National bank of Dover, had not reached an agreement up to two o'clock yesterday afternoon. The jury has been out since a quarter to one o'clock Friday afternoon.

It was not believed that Judge Bradford would discharge the twelve men, and they will therefore have to remain out another twenty-four hours unless they agree upon a verdict in the meantime.

MILES LANDS NEAR PONCE

Madrid Says at That Point Our Ships Tried to Disembark Troops.

St. Thomas, D. W. I., July 26.--The United States troops are landing to-day on the island of Porto Rico, near Ponce on the south coast.

Madrid, July 26.--A private dispatch from San Juan de Porto Rico says a strong American squadron has appeared before Bahia Honda, but that the American attempt to disembark was repulsed with considerable losses.

LONG THANKS DEWEY

His Judgement and Prudence Highly Commended by the Secretary of War.

Washington, July 26.--Secretary Long has written a letter to Rear Admiral Dewey transmitting a certified copy of the joint resolution of Congress tendering the thanks of Congress to him and the officers and men of the squadron under his command.

The letter is as follows:

Navy Department.
Washington, July 25.

Sir: The department has received from the secretary of state an engrossed and certified copy of a joint resolution of Congress to you and officers and men of the squadron under your command for transmission to you, and herewith enclose the same.

Accompanying a copy of the joint resolution the department received a letter from the secretary of state requesting that there be conveyed to you his high appreciation of your character as a naval officer and of the good judgment and prudence you have shown in directing affairs since the date of your great achievement in destroying the Spanish fleet.

This I take great pleasure in doing and join most heartily in behalf of the navy department as well as personally in the commendation of the secretary of state.

Very respectfully,
JOHN D. LONG,
Secretary.

To Rear Admiral Dewey, U. S. N., commander-in-chief U. S. naval force, Asiatic station.

In naval circles this is regarded as an approval of the treatment by Rear Admiral Dewey of the Germans in Manila harbor and his handling of Aguinaldo.

FIRST OF THE NEW BONDS

The Labor of Negotiating the Great War Loan Nearly Completed.

Washington, D. C., July 26.--The treasury department yesterday made the first awards of the new 3 per cent. bonds. On Friday last there was received from the bureau of engraving and printing a batch of 1,000 of the $20 bonds and 1,000 of the $500 bonds. These were delivered to Register Lyons, who had them properly numbered and registered. This work has been completed and the bonds were sent out to the lucky subscribers. From now on the deliveries from the bureau of engraving and printing will continue until the last bond has been distributed.

Assistant Secretary Vanderlip now sees the end of his stupendous labors of successfully negotiating the sale of the 3 per cent. bonds, and from now on it will be practically easy sailing. It is quite probable that the magnitude of the undertaking which is now drawing to a close will never be known to the public, certain it is that few people have any conception of the amount of care, trouble and work that is involved in a disposing or $200,000,000 of government securities.

Hobson in Town Again.

New York, July 26.--Naval Constructor Hobson arrived in this city again yesterday from Washington. He had had a talk with Secretary Long regarding the work to be done on the cruisers Colon and the Maria Teresa and had hurried away from the capital to see the members of the wrecking company again.

Few persons knew that the lieutenant was on his way back from Washington, yet he was immediately recognized on the Jersey Central ferry boat on which he crossed to New York at nine o'clock. There was a large crowd on board the boat, which put in at the battery pier.

Lieutenant Hobson smilingly received the cheers and congratulations that were showered on him. He was dressed in civilian's clothing and carried a grip.

Laziest Man in the Company.

Sixteen men had reported to the Provost Sergeant for fatigue, and were lined up in front of the guard tent to receive instructions. The "provo" had decided that fifteen men would be enough for the work he had in hand, and so he told the sixteen men. Of course, each one had some particular reason why he should be excused, and the provo was in a quandary. After thinking a second he gave the command, "Attention! The laziest man step to the front. I am going to let him go home." Fifteen men stepped to the front. Addressing the man who had not moved, the provost asked him why he had not stepped out. "Cuz I'm too blame tired," came the answer. It is unnecessary to add that he was the man to go home.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Snakes in Place of Cats.

They appear to be turning snakes to a good account in Brazil, for rats have become so abundant there that a domestic snake, the giboya, which has about the circumference of the arm, is sold in the market place in Rio Janeiro to be kept in the house as a protection against rodents. It would seem that the serpent pursues its prey more for the pleasure there is in it than from a sense of hunger, since it is said it rarely eats the rats caught. Similar in its habits and attachments to the domestic cat of our more northern latitudes, the giboya will, it is said, find the way back to the house of its master even if transported to a considerable distance.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A FORMIDABLE ARMY

Troops Being Hurried to Porto Rico from Many Camps.

ALL ARE EAGER TO DEPART

Gen. Brooke Sails on the St. Louis. Expected to Join Gen. Miles by Friday or Saturday. The Work of Forwarding Troops from Chickamauga. No Official News Has Been Received from Miles

Tampa, July 26.--Another expedition for Porto Rico is now being prepared for at this place. The orders are for it to leave at once, and the four transports which are to take it are now en route here. They are expected to arrive to-day, and the work of loading will begin immediately upon their arrival. The Fifth Maryland, First Florida and Second Georgia regiments, with a detachment of the Fourth United States cavalry and two batteries of the Seventh artillery have been designated to compose the expedition.

It is the desire of the government to have the transports loaded and ready for sailing by Friday at the latest. All of the troops from Camp De Soto, except the Second Georgia, have been moved to Fernandina. Yesterday forenoon orders were received from Washington to send the First, Second and Third cavalry, now here and at Lakeland, to Fernandina for encampment. The movement will begin immediately, and about a week will be necessary to transport them. The three regiments aggregate about 3,000 men, with 2,500 horses and mules.

What disposition is to be made of the Second New York and the other regiments constituting the remnant of General Snyder's division has not yet been given out. Several of the regiments of this division are pulling all the political strings possible to have them sent to the front. Yesterday the First Ohio sent an urgent appeal to Senator J. B. Foraker, begging him to go to headquarters and demand that they be sent to the front at once.

Washington, July 26.--The war department has decided to send the First Florida, Second Georgia and Fifth Maryland regiments, now at Tampa, to Porto Rico.

Major General Brooke, commanding the First army corps, sailed yesterday to join General Miles at Porto Rico. The general embarked on the St. Louis and, as he will proceed immediately, he should arrive off Porto Rico some time on Friday or Saturday. The St. Louis will be accompanied on the run down the coast by the St. Paul, on which will be the headquarters of General Hains. The remainder of the troops in Chickamauga will be embarked at Hampton Roads as rapidly as possible, and it is expected that the last of them will be aboard ship by Wednesday.

The reported boarding of a German steamer off San Juan by a launch from an American naval vessel is taken at the war department to confirm its belief that General Miles has arrived there. It is recalled, however, that some of the vessels of the auxiliary fleet have been blockading San Juan, and it may be that it was a launch from one of these vessels that was seen by the German vessel.

However, the department has no doubt that General Miles is off Porto Rico, and as all of the details of the expedition are moving with precision, there is every reason to believe that the troops will be all ashore by the end of the week. Colonel Hecker, who is directly in charge of the transportation arrangements here, returned to Washington from Fort Monroe entirely satisfied with the progress being made there in the embarkation of General Brooke's command.

The Fifth United States cavalry, now at Tampa, and Batteries A and C of Pennsylvania, now at Newport News, also have been ordered to Porto Rico. There was some doubt about the destination of these batteries, and it was not until yesterday that the decision was reached to send them to join General Miles, where they will be used in the attack on the defences of Porto Rico.

MAY COME TO MONTAUK

Dr Stark Examining the Point With a View to Making Army Camps.

Washington, July 26.--Dr. Stark has been sent to Montauk, N. Y., to investigate the conditions there.

If the site is suitable, General Shafter and the whole of his Fifth corps, now at Santiago, numbering 20,000 men, will, after the embarkation of the Spanish prisoners, be sent there immediately.

They will recuperate until fall, when they will unite with the troops to be brought from Porto Rico and with about 100,000 men from the reserve camps, in the attack upon the city of Havana.

The entire force sent against Havana will not be less than one hundred and fifty thousand men.

For Santiago's Garrison.

Washington, July 26.--The transport Berlin left New Orleans yesterday with the First and Second immune regiments on board. These troops are to do garrison duty at Santiago.

The war department yesterday received a dispatch stating that the Spanish hospital ship Alicante was ready to leave Martinique for Santiago. She will take the first installment of Spanish prisoners.

More Volunteers to Go.

Washington, July 26.--The war department has decided to send the First Florida, Second Georgia and Fifth Maryland regiments, now at Tampa, to Porto Rico.

The Fifth United States cavalry has also been ordered from Tampa to Porto Rico.

New French Line Steamers.

New York, July 26.--The French line officials announced yesterday through General Manager Bocande that the company is having two new steamships built at St. Nazaire. They are to be called La Savoye and La Lorraine. Each will cost $3,000,000 and is expected to make 22 knots.

WATSON TO DO HIS WORK.

No Foreign Interference Expected With Our Efforts

Washington, July 26.--There is a general expression of gratification and satisfaction at the war conditions at this time. No foreign interference in the war is expected.

The Watson fleet is to be much more powerful than has yet been indicated, and if future developments should render it necessary, this fleet, or a part of it could proceed through the Suez canal to go directly to Manila or to anticipate the movement of any hostile fleet that might be organized for the Philippines. It is believed, however, that when the character of the Watson fleet is realized, there will be no disposition on the part of any power to risk interference with it.

Moreover, the course to be pursued will not be such as to justify interference even by the least friendly of the powers. The administration has not committed itself to any policy with respect to the Philippines, or any other of the Spanish possessions, except Porto Rico and Cuba, and it is understood that it will not be so committed until the time comes when we are to deal with Spain on the subject of peace.

It is positively asserted here that the president has not discussed directly or indirectly this subject with any representative of a foreign government. According to public men who have visited the president frequently, he has not discussed the terms upon which peace could be secured even with the most influential men in Congress.

The question of what terms shall be accepted from Spain, it is believed, depends now, as it has from the first, upon the resistance which Spain offers during the war. According to the best information available, there is no purpose on the part of the administration to inflict upon Spain, in the expedition against her coast, any greater damage than may be absolutely necessary to bring the Spanish government to its senses. The one inexorable purpose is to either capture or destroy the Camara fleet, and the other is to impress upon Spain an appreciation of the absolute futility of her carrying the war further.

SURRENDER OF GARRISONS

Gen. Shafter Reports There Will Be 24,000 Spaniards to Be Sent Home.

Washington, July 26.--General Shafter notified the war department in a dispatch received at the department on Monday of the surrender of several Spanish garrisons. The dispatch was as follows:

Santiago de Cuba, via Hayti, July 24.
Adjutant General, Washington:

Lieutenant Miley has just returned from San Luis and Palma Soriano, where he went four days ago to receive the surrender of Spanish troops. The number surrendered was larger than General Toral reported--3,000 Spanish troops--and 350 volunteers and volunteer guerillas gave up their arms and gave parole and have gone to work. Three thousand stands of arms were turned in, loaded on box cars and started for the railroad. The Spanish troops accompanied him to San Luis, and all apparently were greatly delighted at the prospect of returning home. They were on the verge of starvation and I have to send them rations to-morrow. If the numbers of troops keep up as they have there will be about 24,000 to ship away. Nearly 12,000 are here, 3,000 from San Luis, 6,000 from Guantanamo, and over 2,000 at Sagua and Baracoa.

SHAFTER,
Major General Commanding.

Brig.-Gen. Randall Qualifies.

Washington, July 26.--Brigadier Gen. G. M. Randall, who has been stationed at Fort St. Michael, Alaska, arrived in Washington yesterday and was at the war department. He but recently learned that this government is at war with Spain. It had been nine months since he had received a letter or any sort of communication from the outside world, when on the 14th of June he heard of Dewey's victory at Manila. That was the first he knew of the war. His rank in the army was lieutenant colonel. On the 14th of May he was confirmed by the Senate as brigadier general, but he did not learn of this fact until the 27th of June.

As soon as he was notified of his promotion he forwarded his acceptance. Coming to Washington as quickly as he could in obedience to orders, he arrived only Sunday night and qualified as brigadier general yesterday.

The Transport Arrives.

New York, July 26.--The Atlantic Transport liner Minnewaska, the last of the seven vessels purchased by the United States government for $4,000,000, for use as troopships and transports, arrived here yesterday from London, and as soon as unloaded will be fitted out for the army by Major Summerhayes. The other six steamships formerly owned by the Atlantic Transport line are now in commission and it was expected that the Manitoba, which was docked in Brooklyn, would sail for the South last evening with 160,000 pounds of oats and 210,000 pounds of hay on board, besides stores and provisions. At Newport News 1,000 horses will be put on board the Manitoba.

Returning from Klondike.

Vancouver, B. C., July 26.--The steamer Athenian arrived from the north on her last trip at 7.30 Sunday evening. She brought the body of ex-Mayor Cope, who was drowned eight months ago. Thirty-four passengers from Dawson came down on the boat, and left it at Victoria for Seattle. It was stated that $4,000 each would approximate the amounts brought down by a majority of the passengers.

Pay for the Soldiers.

Washington, July 26.--Major C. C. Sniffen of the pay corps sailed from New York to-day on the Olivette for Santiago, accompanied by three paymasters. They will begin the payment of troops on their arrival, and in a very short time will be joined by other paymasters, who will assist in paying off General Shafter's army and then will proceed to Porto Rico to pay off the army of General Miles.

Don Carlos at Lucerne, Switzerland.

Lucerne, Switzerland, July 26.--Don Carlos, the pretender to the Spanish throne, has arrived here with his wife and aide-de-camp.

A PROPOSAL FOR PEACE

Madrid Government Said to Have Prepared a Request.

TIME TO DISCUSS PLANS

Prominent Spanish Leader Says a New Cabinet Will Be Formed to Treat for Peace. It Will Be Headed by Silvela or Campos. Internal Disturbances in Spain Still Continue.

London, July 26.--It is announced in a special dispatch from Madrid, published here last night, that the Spanish government has drawn up a message addressed to the government at Washington proposing an armistice for the purpose of discussing the terms upon which peace with the United States can be arranged.

A New Cabinet Will Initiate Peace.

Madrid, July 26.--The correspondent here of the Associated Press has had an interesting conversation with a person occupying a high position in the queen regent's household and whose duties bring him daily into intimate relations with her majesty.

He said the quarrel between Spain and the United States was much easier of adjustment than was generally believed. The queen regent, he continued, naturally endeavored to avoid war and, naturally, also, she desires an honorable peace. She is quite alive to the force of public opinion and holds strictly to the constitutional laws of the nation.

It is an error to suppose the queen regent is under the pressure of the present or any government, or that she is regardless of public opinion when it is in consonance with the true interests of the Spanish people.

The official referred to then added an important statement, saying:

"The present government will not initiate peace; but a modified cabinet, headed by Senor Gamazo (minister of public instruction) will conclude the negotiations and then retire and General Polavioja, with a combination including Senor Silvala and General Campos, will reorganize the country.

"Everybody considers Spain should treat direct with the Americans, whose practical good sense will prevail over spreadeagleism.

Paris, July 26.--Private letters received here from Madrid under date of July 23, announce that the internal disorders in the Spanish provinces continue.

Some demonstrations have taken place at Granada, supposed to be due to the opposition manifested toward the octrol tax and owing to other local disputes. But in view of the rigorous censorship on all questions of public order, it is difficult to ascertain the facts.

At Gariga, in the province of Barcelona, a mob recently fired on the gendarmes and an armed band, said to have been composed of jail birds, has appeared at Bance and Valdorras. The police are pursuing the members of the band, but thus far, the efforts of the authorities to capture them have been futile.

Great precautions were taken at the open air theatre in the Buen Retiro gardens in Madrid on the evening of Friday, July 22, owing to an expected demonstration in favor of General Weyler, who was present, but nothing developed.

The Feeling at Washington.

Washington, July 26.--Although the report from Madrid that the Spanish government had determined to apply for an armistice reached Washington yesterday, there was no evidence that any application had yet been received. On the contrary the strongest kind of denial was forthcoming from the department of state that any negotiations were in progress, or even begun. There is a shrewd suspicion here that the Spanish government is putting out another "feeler" for the purpose of testing popular sentiment.

One thing is absolutely assured; no proposal for a mere armistice will be considered. If Spain wants peace, she must come out flatly and say so. When she has made this kind of an approach in obvious good faith, an armistice can be arranged without difficulty, so as to give a breathing spell to both combatants, during which they can agree upon terms of a treaty.

Prisoners Cheer Our Ships.

Portsmouth, N. H., July 26.--It was learned to-day that a remarkable demonstration occurred Saturday evening at Camp Long, on Seavey's island, where the captured sailors of Admiral Cervera's ships are confined.

As the United States gunboat Frolic passed the island on her way to Cuba hundreds of the prisoners greeted the vessel with cheers and waving of hands. The ovation took the Americans by surprise.

The outburst was regarded by those in charge of the camp as a result of good treatment received here by the Spaniards, who took this method of expressing their gratitude.

Surgeon McPherson said that the condition of the prisoners in the hospital showed a marked improvement.

Money for the Soldiers.

New York, July 26.--About $750,000 in gold, greenbacks and silver was shipped from the sub-treasury yesterday under the supervision of paymasters of the United States army, who, it was said, will probably disburse the money among the soldiers now in Cuba. The money was in twenty small safes, each of which closed with a combination lock.

The New Torpedoboats.

Washington, July 26.--The navy department has been obliged again to postpone the date for the receipt of bids for the construction of the torpedo boats. It has now been set for August 23, upon the representations of shipbuilders on the Pacific coast that otherwise they would not have sufficient time to get their bids through by mail.

SAMPSON'S REPORT.

It Will Be Made Public Wednesday. No Friction Between Schley and Sampson.

Washington, July 26.--The reports of Admiral Sampson and Commodore Schley on the naval battle at Santiago, when Admiral Cervera's fleet was destroyed, were received at the navy department on Saturday night. Lieutenant Hobson did not bring them, but they came direct to the secretary.

In speaking about the reports Secretary Long said that besides the reports of Admiral Sampson and Commodore Schley, the reports of the captains of all the vessels engaged in the battle were also submitted, and they made a voluminous document.

He has, therefore, decided not to make the reports public until Wednesday morning. He said that at that time he would give out the full reports of Admiral Sampson, Commodore Schley, the two flag officers and Captain Evans of the Iowa; Taylor of the Indiana and Clark of the Oregon. These would all be published on Wednesday. The reports of the other captains will be given out soon after Admiral Sampson's report is published.

The secretary refused to disclose what was in the report, but he said:

"The reports of Admiral Sampson and Commodore Schley, as well as the officers of the fleet, are straightforward and unvarnished narratives. They show no friction whatever and give a connected and detailed account of the battle."

As the secretary of the navy is going to make public Admiral Sampson's and Commodore Schley's reports at the same time, the public will be able to judge between the two, and see how the admiral treats the commodore in his official statement. It is deemed significant here that the secretary says the reports show no friction, and it is evident that the department is satisfied with all the reports.

THE GARCIA LETTER.

Washington Officials Still Doubt That the Cuban Leader Wrote It.

Washington, July 26.--Nothing has come yet from General Shafter containing any reference to the correspondence supposed to have passed between himself and General Garcia.

The officials have no doubt that General Shafter wrote a reply to the Garcia letter, but they still refuse to believe that Garcia either wrote or knew of the initial letter said to have been addressed by him to General Shafter.

One point that seems to afford some basis for the disbelief is General Shafter's statement that he invited General Garcia to be present at the ceremonies attending the raising of the American flag over Santiago. It is hardly conceivable, therefore, that General Garcia should have made such a statement as that attributed to him in the letter.

While regretting the friction that exists at Santiago between the Cuban and American forces, the government can see no cause for modification of the programme for government of that city.

One of the ablest advisers of the administration has stated:

"Civil government in a town like Santiago can exist only in time of peace. In war time the military arm must be supreme, and until peace is attained the only form of government that can be maintained over the territory occupied by an army is a military government."

GUANTANAMO'S GARRISON YIELDS

Results of Lieut. Miley's Trip. The Sufferings of the Spaniards.

Santiago de Cuba, July 26.--Colonel Angel Rosill has arrived from General Pareja, military governor of Guantanamo, to ascertain from General Toral if the report of the capitulation were true. As the result of General Toral's answer the 6,000 Spanish troops at Guantanamo surrendered yesterday.

All the surrendered troops are suffering from disease and starvation, and General Shafter has instructed the immediate forwarding of rations and relief. He has informed the Spanish officers that their families will be given transportation to Spain, with food, at the expense of the government, and that the maintenance of the men is provided for by contract.

Gomez Has Confidence in McKinley.

Jacksonville, July 26.--Lieutenant Charles Fritot of this city, who left Tampa on the Florida expedition for Gomez's camp, says that the Cuban chief is anxious to work and co-operate with the American forces, recognizing their great services in Cuba.

The Florida expedition was met by General Gomez and Lieutenant Fritot had a talk with the general, in the course of which the general said, when asked what message he had for the American people:

"I have only to say that the only man who has anything to say in the direction of matters is Mr. McKinley, and we shall do whatever he says. I have given instructions to all my forces to co-operate with Americans, to whom we are much indebted."

Floatng Dry Dock Bought.

Washington, July 26.--Chief Endicott of the bureau of yards and docks has just returned from New York, where he succeeded in arranging for the purchase by the government of a floating dry dock capable of lifting vessels up to 2,200 tons displacement, which will bring within its scope most of the gunboats of Sampson's fleet and a large number of the auxiliary vessels.

This dock is not sectional, but in one piece, so that it may be easily towed to the point most available for naval use. The first journey will be to Key West.

Bonds for 300,000.

Washington, July 26.--A treasury statement shows that there are about 300,000 persons to whom bonds under the government's popular loan will be allotted.

All persons offering to take $4,500 or less will receive bonds. The first shipments of the new bonds were made yesterday.

Ship Reported on Fire.

San Francisco, July 26.--A private dispatch says that the ship Kenilworth, bound from Hilo, Hawaii, for New York, with a cargo of sugar, has put into Valparaiso on fire. Both the captain and mate are reported dead.

FOR THE VACATION SEASON.

Subscribers leaving the city for the summer season can have The Daily Press sent to their new address by notifying the buisness office. The address will be changed as often as desired. "Home news" will prove most interesting while you are away.

The Tax Rate.

Over in Newark they have just fixed the tax rate which there amounts to $2.10. It will not be long before Plainfield will know where she stands this year in regard to taxes. Since the advent of the new members of the Common Council, there is more interest than ever as to what the rate will be. Some of those in authority say that while they cannot tell as yet what it will be, they are able to predict with certainty that the tax rate will be considerably lower than last year. Let us hope that such is the case.

While considerably below Plainfield's tax rate, Newark's rate this year is the highest there since 1882, when it reached $2 41. With that exception it is the highest in Newark for forty-four years.

The heavy increase in the tax rate is occasioned by an addition of $182,071.26 to the city expenditure for the current year and a very small proportionate increase in the valuation of city real and personal property.

The increase in city expenditures is explained by the Newark Common Council as being required to meet the interest and sinking fund charges on new High School, City Hospital and Public Library bonds, mandatory appropriations for street paving and other expenditures of the Board of Works and the increase in salaries of police and firemen.

The Tax Commissioners explain the slight increase in local valuations by saying that much taxable property has been taken away for park purposes, and that in other cases property is left less valuable because of the demolition of buildings to be replaced by new ones.

While the explanation sounds plausible enough, Newark tax-payers will probably be heard from shortly.

Hawaii.

With the settlement of the Hawaiian question renewed attention is fixed on the advantages which this beautiful group of islands, one of the world's paradises, will give us. Its value as a half way house between America and the east invests the new possession with a commanding interest. The stimulus injected into the desire for annexation by war conditions greatly quickened the result. It became the easier to see how big a factor it would become, whether in the service of peace or war, to strengthen our hands in kneading the future. But putting aside consideration of the Hawaiian Islands as a fulcrum for other ends it seems eminently worth while to have acquired them for themselves alone.

The bureau of statistics, in a recent publication, has given full information about our latest territory. According to these figures, Hawaii imports nearly everything she uses with the exception of sugar, rice, coffee and fruits, and the United States now supplies her with 76 per cent of these needs. Hereafter we shall probably furnish the islands with at least 95 per cent of their imports. On the other hand, we have taken from them practically all the output of their labor, except such as is consumed at home. It is a little interesting to note that the productions of the islands are articles for which the United States has sent money away from its own limits, things of primary and constant demand. The acquisition of Hawaii still further strengthens our independence of the rest of the world as a home producer of the things we need and feeds our sources of export to supply the demands of the rest of the world. The salubrity of the climate and the boundless fertility of the soil make it indisputable that ten years of American management and energy will quintuple its productive power, other things being equal. The yearly jumps for the last half decade have been quite wonderful, but in the future we may look for them to be exploited in "seven league boots." Many other things will no doubt be introduced to diversify the agriculture, such as tea, indigo, cacao and vanilla (the last named indeed are indigenous). There is scarcely anything grown in the Philippines which may not be successfully raised in Hawaii. The most perplexing question will be the labor problem. This can be most easily solved by using the Chinese and Japanese. But that means a further entanglement of the question, which has already so greatly perplexed the Pacific coast.

MAJOR GENERAL MILES.

His former great commander once said of Nelson A. Miles, who is now major general of the United States army: "He is a born fighter, disciplinarian and tactician." When Major General Miles went to Cuba to assume direct command of our forces we felt that Santiago was doomed.

Practical Points of Amity.

The friendship of Great Britain, which has shown its warmth so unmistakably in sentiment during the last three months, is also evident in more practical stages. In no direction have clashing interests sounded their discords more frequently than in our relations with the Canadian Dominion. Scarcely a year has passed without more or less wrangling to annoy if not to alarm the authorities at Washington, Westminster and Ottawa. Full provision has now been made for the final settlement of the questions at issue between the United States and her northern neighbor in the form of a joint commission. All matters of dispute which have arisen during the last 30 years down to date, including the Alaska boundary, the sealing problem, the Atlantic fisheries, reciprocity and hostile tariffs, general trade interests and Klondike regulations, will be treated with a view to permanent arrangement. The commission, with earlier sittings at Quebec, will probably finish their work at Washington.

Still more interesting, however, is the organization of an Anglo-American committee of 500 members to work for and cement Anglo-Saxon friendship. Made up entirely of British membership, it includes the most eminent and influential men of the land, representing all parties, all ranks of social life, all professions, all religions. Its roll is blazoned with the names of the most illustrious as well as the less known personalities, and it constitutes the most powerful corporate agent of public opinion ever created in the country. The classes and the masses are behind it. This amazing outburst betokens not only the belief that old irritating sores are forever healed, but it points to a profound sympathy and unity of feeling, making future sores, if not impossible, at the worst only childish trifles, which need only to be kissed to be cured.

It has been suggested with pertinence by a great New York newspaper as a lesson of the Bourgogne disaster that there should be a compulsory boat drill at least twice on every voyage of an ocean passenger liner. The dexterity and discipline which come of practice might easily become of inestimable value. We believe that this was at one time the habit of the Cunard line, if it is not today. It ought to be carried out in every ship which undertakes the responsibility of crowded human life.

The Spanish prisoners at Portsmouth, N. H., are quite happy over their kind treatment and tight waistbands, as they had been told before capture that they would all be put to death by the American savages. Perhaps some of the ignorant fellows believe that the unaccustomed amplitude of feeding only means fatter and tenderer "long pig," as the cannibal south sea islanders dub their favorite grill.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Westfield, Mass., has adopted curfew. At 9 p. m., the fire-alarm is sounded nine times, and every child must then be off the street. Parents are pleased and satisfied with the working of the law, and now perhaps Westfield, N. J., might follow its namesake. There are too many children on the streets after dark, and it is not a very good practice.—Westfield Republican.

During these vacation days the school boys of Plainfield are limbering up in the new exercise of trying to catch rain drops on their tongues. They are expected to become skilled in the trick before the reopening of the schools, when squirt fountains will take the place of the tin cup in supplying them with drinking water. The idea is to prevent contagion from the use of the cup. Catching a stream of water in the mouth without deluging his clothing is going to be great sport in Plainfield—until a storm of remonstrance from incensed parents falls about the ears of the projector of the squirt scheme.—New York Press.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

There seems to be an influx of the hand "hurdy-gurdies" in Plainfield. While some are decidedly poor, there are several which contain the latest tunes and play well—for a "hurdy-gurdy." They frequent the residence sections of the city early in the evening and many of the people are willing to give them a nickel or a dime to listen. Saturday evening three of them might have been counted within two blocks. There is one that visits the Revere House almost every evening, and the guests find much amusement in listening to it.

A Plainfield young man had a pleasant walk a day or two ago that is firmly impressed on his memory. He went awheel with a party of friends to Rahway. There they left him, and he, having nothing to do, rode down to Boynton Beach. When he started he had no idea of going any distance, and so had not stopped to take along any money. It was nearing the lunch hour and he determined to start for home. Only a little way outside of Boynton Beach, he ran over a piece of glass and cut his tire beyond repair. He was then compelled to walk home, reaching here late in the afternoon and decidedly hungry.

The Adventist Tent.

The tent on Somerset street and Linden avenue last night contained a large and interested audience who heard the discourse on "The United States as Noticed in Prophecy," by Elder Horton, who maintained that the "two-horned beast" of Revelation 13:11, 12 symbolized this Nation; and that the principles which lead to the union of church and State in the old world were at work in this country, and that persecution would inevitably result. Tonight the subject will be, "The Seal of God and Mark of the Beast," from the text Revelation 14:9, 10.

Woodhull & Martin's.

The fine Organdies we have been running at the ridiculous price of 5c per yard, have stirred the city. Does not surprise us, for they are the cheapest goods we have ever been able to offer our trade. Quality is fine and all this year's styles, (we buy no old goods and handle no auction goods.)

Prices Cut

Some fine Scotch Ginghams that early in the season were 39c, have been reduced to 25c.
Some others in small patterns and corded effects, very desirable for children, are now 15c, were 25c.
Our assortment of brown Crashes, brown Linens and Bicycle Suitings is very comprehensive. Special orders made up from same without extra charge. Work and fit guaranteed.
Some wonderfully dainty novelties in white Kid and Canvas Belts have been recently received.
Children's Sun Hats, Lace Hats, Lace Caps, etc., are now being closed out very cheap.

Men's Needs.

Underwear, white Shirts, colored Shirts, Ties, Suspenders, Socks, Bicycle Hose, etc., in Honest Goods—no shoddy, no auction goods. We have a new Night Shirt at 49c equal to any 75c Shirt or money refunded. Made of Utica Muslin.

Some Remarkable Values for Friday and Saturday.

The Sale of Sailor Hats at 50c.
It's clearing time and we have repriced the entire stock of Ladies' and Misses' Sailor Hats. There are probably 200 in the assortment—no matter what the prices have been each hat will be 50c. The remaining stock of untrimmed straw shapes comes under the price reduction, and the price of each hat will be 50c.

The Shirt Waist Sale.
Friday and Saturday will undoubtedly be busy days in the Waist Section. The most remarkable values ever offered. Three great assortments, 50c, 65c, 75c, formerly $1, $1.25 and $1.50. All arranged for easy selection on the center tables.

A Sale of Ribbons at 16c a Yard.
Nearly a thousand yards of Moire Taffetta Ribbons in white, black and all leading shades will be placed on sale at 16c a yard. 25c is the price ordinarily, but 16c for Friday and Saturday only.

25c Hosiery---16c.
A quantity of Ladies' extra fine black hose, enough for two days' selling, 16c a pair—and that for the best 25c hosiery ever made.

WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Westfield, July 26—Thomas Doughtry, of Cranford, was badly used by a colored man in the depot at that place Sunday evening just because he sang "All Coons Look Alike to Me." Doughtry and Samuel Calwell had been out spending the day and about 10 o'clock landed at the depot, and the former shook hands with a colored man there and began to sing the well-known strains of that popular negro song, when another man took exception and started in to clean up, not only the singer, but the whole depot. The fight only lasted a few minutes, as Calwell didn't take long to give the "coon" a beating that he will remember for some time to come. No arrests were made.

Robbie Woodruff, son of Robert Woodruff, was climbing a tree in the yard at his father's home yesterday morning, when he fell to the ground and fractured his shoulder blade. He was attended by Dr. Sinclair.

Albert Trenchard, of this place, is now in the Memorial Hospital at Orange, where he was operated on Saturday. He is improving rapidly and expects to be able to get home in about a week.

Francis J. Godlick, of Plainfield, has given to Walter Sparkman the contract to erect a handsome residence for him on South avenue, next to the home of Township Clerk Irving I. Ross.

It Gets the News.

As a purveyor of war news, the Evening Post of New York leads all the evening newspapers of the metropolis. The strength and character of the Post's editorial utterances have long since won for that paper an international reputation. These strong features combine to make a newspaper which appeals irresistibly to intelligent people, and one that is truly representative of the highest type of American journalism. Together with cabled despatches concerning the latest happenings at the front, the Evening Post is printing a series of letters from staff correspondents describing in detail the work of our army in Santiago, which are exceedingly interesting and are well worth preserving as contemporaneous accounts of the various engagements preceding the fall of Santiago.

—Department Commander W. C. Smith, and local Commander E. C. Morse, of the G. A. R., went to New York today to make arrangements for the coming National Encampment to be held in Cincinnati in September.

ON THE SICK LIST.

Frank Vosseller Recovering from an Operation at Camp Thomas.

Frank Vosseller, of East Sixth street, who is a member of Company A, Twelfth New York Vols., located at Chickamauga Park, "Camp Thomas," has been on the sick list. A short time ago he underwent an operation for a fistula and has not yet fully recovered. It will probably be two weeks before he can leave his bed. He is, however, convalescing. In a letter written to a Plainfield friend he said that his company expects to go to Porto Rico, as they have been inspected and blacksmiths have been given orders to put new shoes on all of the mules.

An "Endless Chain" Started.

The Saturday Half-Holiday League in Newark sent out Wednesday sixteen letters for contributions for soldiers' families, the purpose being to form an "endless chain," each person to forward a small contribution and to send letters to four friends, asking them to forward like sums. Yesterday ten responses had been received, and it is estimated that there will be nine thousand by the end of the present week.

Electric Traction Not Yet Assured.

The Perth Amboy Board of Alderman has adjourned the hearing of the applications of the Brunswick Traction Company and the Perth Amboy and Sewaren Electric Street Railway Company for franchises through Perth Amboy streets. Ruffled Sofa Cushions.

It is noticeable that the beruffled sofa cushions again in favor. There was a decided attempt to banish the long-popular double and single ruffles from these ubiquitous comforts, but cords and ruchings seem to fail in the desired effect, and the spring output is fluffy with flounces. Cushions covered with China silk are edged with a double ruffle of the same material, the under ruffle being of a delicate shade to correspond with the tone of the design, whether it be a woven design or an embroidered one; as, for example, a bunch of yellow marguerites embroidered on some cafe-au-lait silk has the under ruffle of the same yellow tint as the heart of the daisies. Pink wild roses in a design upon a pale blue ground has the second ruffle of pale pink. A pretty but very delicate sofa pillow was covered with green China silk in the bright shade popular this spring, and over this is fitted a dotted muslin cover, the frill of the white showing prettily through the green silk ruffle.

Milk Toast.

Milk toast, as it is served on nine tables out of ten, is uneatable. Properly prepared, it is not only a good dish for the light menu allowed a convalescent, but is welcomed eagerly by the children of the family, certainly if grated maple sugar is sent around with it. To two cups of scalded milk—and the milk should be merely scalded, not boiled, and if there is a scum, which there should not be, it must be removed—to this amount of milk, stir in a paste made of a scant table-spoonful and a half of flour, wet in a little cold water. To the flour, while it is dry, add a good salt-spoonful of salt. When the paste is mixed with the milk, it should be cooked in a double boiler, stirring constantly. When it is about as thick as cream, a piece of butter the size of a walnut is added. The bread toasted dry is dipped into the sauce, each slice remaining until evenly tender, when it is piled lightly on a small platter, and what sauce is left poured over and around it. It should be eaten while very hot.

If She Should Die.

She was in the first blush of the honeymoon's happiness. He was there with her, but he was a man, and it didn't stick out all over him so. He was heartless, too, and she was sentimental. They were dining out, and the conversation turned on untimely deaths.

"Ferdinand," said she, lovingly, across the golden chrysanthemums, "Ferdinand, dear, if I were to die, what would you do?"

He was just putting a piece of roast beef into his mouth, and he chewed on in silence. Then, with the brutality of a man bent on his dinner, he said:

"I'd send for an undertaker."

And he doesn't know yet why she wouldn't kiss him good-night.

A Remarkable Calculator.

Diamandi, a native of Pylaros, one of the Greek islands, seems to be a remarkable calculator. After a mere glance at a black-board, on which thirty groups of figures are written, he can, it is said, repeat them in any order and deal with them by any arithmetical process. It is said that he never makes an error in calculations involving billions, and he can extract square or cube roots with marvellous rapidity and accuracy. An eminent German specialist declared the other day that all these ready-reckoners were idiots. This is not the case with Diamandi, who writes poetry and novels in the intervals of business, and shows considerable intellectual capacity.

He Needed Something to Do.

When Darwin in his old age was bringing out his book on the habits of plants, his health was poor, and an old family servant—a woman—overhearing his daughter express some anxiety about her father's condition, sought to reassure her by saying: "Hi believe master'd he hall right, madam, hif 'e only 'ad somethin' to occupy 'is mind. Sometimes 'e stands hin the conservatory from mornin' till night—just a lookin' hat the flowers. Hif 'e only 'ad somethin' to do, 'ed be hevver so much better, hi'im sure." No one, it is declared, enjoyed the joke more than the great naturalist himself.

Calling Gown in Bayadere Silk.

A stylish calling gown of golden brown bayadere silk has the skirt fashioned after a five gored model, and is entirely without ornamentation.

The bodice of silk fastens at the side and opens at the top with one large brown satin rever over a guimp of batiste embroidery. The corsage is made blouse fashion and is belted in at the waist with a ceinture of brown satin. Brown satin also forms the collar. The sleeves are close fitting with a small puff at the shoulder. Hat of golden brown satin straw, trimmed with pink roses and velvet.

Stylish Leghorn Hats.

The most stylish Leghorn hats are trimmed with many short, very full ostrich plumes, all white, all black, or else in black and white mixtures, black velvet ribbon ties, the clusters of feathers near the brim and over the crown, and on shepherdess shapes. This trimming is also carried to the back of the hat. Pretty Leghorn hats worn recently by the bridesmaids at an out-of-town wedding were laden with rose vines, thorny stems, and velvety maiden-hair fern mass about the crown and down to the very edge of the brim.

The Popular Skirt.

Notwithstanding the appearance of many other models, five and seven-gored skirts remain in great favor. The fullness at the back of some of these skirts is disposed in fan pleats; on others it is adjusted by gathers closely massed.

NO VISITORS ALLOWED.

The Hours Lost in a Factory if Employes Are Stopped Four Minutes.

A distinguished Englishman, whose writings are as widely read in this country as they are in his native land, was shown through a very large carpet factory during a recent visit to New York.

One of the features that puzzled the visitor most was this notice, which was posted at the entrance to each of two immense workrooms: "No visitors allowed. Positively no exceptions made to this rule." Naturally the first glimpse of this formidable prohibition piqued the curiosity of the Englishman, and he experienced a glow of flattered pride when the door was flung open at his approach, and he was invited to enter the interdicted region.

The entrance of the visitors caused a temporary lull in the hum of industry, and several hundred pairs of eyes were turned inquiringly upon the newcomers.

After emerging from this uninteresting quarter, the Englishman inquired: "Why so much secrecy about that room? 'No visitors allowed,' etc. It did not appear to me that there was anything there that anybody would care to see."

The propreitor of the factory smiled, as he replied: "There is no secrecy there.

"It is one of our ordinary workrooms, and the prohibition of visitors is simply a time-saving precaution. As a rule, we are obliged to rush things constantly in order to keep up with our orders. Every hour c[illegible], and, of course, we must be [illegible] about losing time. Every ti[illegible] steps in a workroom o[illegible] aracter the operatives are b[illegible] ook at him and keep watc[illegible] movements. Their minds are diverted and naturally their hands fail to do their work properly. For every ten minutes that the stranger remains in the room each operative will lose at least four minutes of time. That is a low estimate. There are about 260 operatives on this floor. Take four minutes time away from each one's work and you see that the firm loses four times 260 minutes, which is 1,040 minutes or more than seventeen hours. In these hurry times we can't stand it often. But I do not consider the time consumed by your visit as wasted, for in the course of your literary work you will doubtless make good use of the lesson."—New York Times.

PIGTAIL PECULARITIES.

Traits of Chinese Characters Noticed by the Trolley Conductor.

"There are some curious things about the Chinamen in this city that I have observed," said one of the conductors the other day on the Pennsylvania avenue street car line as the car stopped and two Chinamen got off. "They almost invariably take a car when they have any distance to go. I suppose that it is on account of the peculiar shoes they wear. Another thing that I have observed about them is that they always buy tickets. I have been on this line for a long time now, and I have the first nickel to receive from a Chinaman yet. They travel, as a rule, in company, generally two together.

"They are great people for paying one another's fare. When I come around to collect fares both Chinamen put their hands in their pockets as soon as they see me, and it is always a race between them to see who can hand the fare to me first. I have never known of a case where each Chinaman paid his own fare. They seem to take the greatest delight in offring this litthe greatest delight in offering this lit- and see if this is not the case when you see two of them get on a car together."—Washington Post.

GHURKAS AS FIGHTERS.

When Once His Officers Gain His Respect He Will Follow Them Anywhere.

The average "monkey-man of the Himalayas" is by no means a type of beauty. A short body, little legs, round head, and flat features are a few of his prominent physical characteristics; and being for a long period clothed in one of the ugliest uniforms the genius of man ever invented he could not compete in picturesqueness with the fine physique and carriage of the handsome Sikhs Panthans or Rayputs. But, in spite of his unprepossessing appearance, once let his officers gain his respect, and he is ready to follow them with dog-like fidelity, to "go anywhere, and do anything," to use a hackneyed phrase; and these qualities which commend themselves to a Ghurka are the same as those which serve to endear an officer to the British private. Indeed, the devotion, courage, energy of character, and love of enterprise of these formidable but merry little warriors are such that the writer of a recent article on the native army gives expression to his conviction that "there is not a single instance on record of Ghurka soldiers having falied in their duty against an enemy."—Pall Mall Gazette.

Slave Owned by a City.

Salem, a colored man of Nashville, Tenn., presents the curious instance of an ex-slave who belonged to a municipality. In 1826 he was purchased by the city of Nashville, and since that time, for the period of seventy-three years, has been its faithful servant. He worked for the city forty-one years as a slave and thirty-three years as a free man. The old man is now 103 years of age.—Nashville American.

Unfortunate.

"I'm afraid I have lost a patient," said the young physician who realizes the value of making an impression.

"Didn't you know what remedy to prescribe?"

"Perfectly. That part of it was simple enough. But I couldn't think of the Latin for 'mustard plaster.'—Washington Star.

DOLLARS INSTEAD OF ROSES.

Two Hundred and Fifty Courtship Visits Paid for the Bridal Trip.

A promising young lawyer of Philadelphia has made the delightful discovery that his fiancee is also a financier. The young man's sweetheart resides in Germantown, and for several months he has called upon her regularly thrice a week. When he frst met the girl, two years ago, he was, of course, extremely anxious to make a good impression, and he lavished many presents upon her. The girl's parents are quite well to do, but she disapproves of any sort of display or prodigality, and when, in the natural course of events, the young man proposed and was accepted, she felt it to be her privilege and her duty to read him a little lecture on "Economy." She called his attention to the fact that every time he called he had been in the habit of bringing flowers and candy to the value of a dollar or two. She suggested that in the future he should discontinue the presents, handing over a silver dollar instead whenever he came to see her. He laughed, for he thought she was joking, but she speedily assured him that she was very much in earnest. So he paid his dollar regularly, and finally came to the conclusion that the money was being devoted to charity. The wedding day was set for next month, and an extended tour was contemplated. Unfortunately the young lawyer recently took a 'flyer" in stocks and dropped so much money that he had to notify his fiancee that their wedding trip must be dispensed with. The dear girl laughed at him, and, leaving the room for a moment, presently returned wiht a satchel containing 256 silver dollars. Their plans were not changed.—Philadelphia Record.

A GREAT DAY IN KENTUCKY.

Lafayette's Billiard Defeat in the Blue Grass State.

"Didn't you ever hear how Uncle Dick Fagg beat Lafayette playing billiards?" said an old gentleman from the Blue Grass. "Well, it was a memorable occasion in old Harrodsburg, and I have heard my father, who was present, speak of it hundreds of times. The big match game of billiards occurred in historic old Winfield Tavern, in which Aaron Burr and Andrew Jackson were both guests on one other notable occasion. Lafayette was spending a few days in the famous old inn when he toured the South in 1824, and in a spirit of fun challenged any local player to meet him in a match game of billiards. Uncle Dick Fagg, a celebrated character, who died in 1867, accepted the challenge, and the game was advertised as a big public event. Lafayette didn't hesitate to say that nobody could beat him handling a cue, but he found a master hand in our burg. On the day of the tournament hundreds of people poured into the little Blue Grass village till there was no way to accommodate the immense throng. It was an exciting match and men jammed the dining room of the tavern, the more enthusiastic ones standing on the dining tables. The crowd to a man rooted for the local favorite, but Washington's friend, Lafayette, held his own well. Fagg won the first game by a narrow margin. Lafayette won the second, but Fagg won the third, and then there was old-time yelling for Fagg. Lafayette took his defeat good-naturedly, and made many friends by making the crowd 'take something on him.' It was a great day in central Kentucky."—Louisville Post.

FUN IN THE OLD DAYS.

A Goose Instead of an Eagle Suggested to Represent Our Nation.

When the establishment of the mint was under discussion, in Washington's time, there were some amusing debates in Congress concerning the devices the coins should bear, says the Youth's Companion. Here is an account of one funny squabble over the design for the silver dollar:

A member of the House from the South bitterly opposed the choice of the eagle on the ground of its being the "king of birds," and hence neither proper nor suitable to represent a nation whose institutions and interests where wholly inimical to monarchical forms of government. Judge Thacher, in reply, playfully suggested that perhaps a goose might suit the gentelman, as it was rather an humble and republican bird, and would also be serviceable in all respects, as the goslings would answer to place upon the dimes.

This reply created considerable merriment, and the irate Southerner considering the humorous rejoinder an insult, sent a challenge to the judge, who promptly declined it. The bearer, rather astonishel, asked, "Will you be branded as a coward?"

"Certainy, if he pleases," replied Thacher. "I always was one, and he knew it, or he would never have risked a challenge."

The affair occasioned much mirth, but finally cordial relations were restored, the irritable Southerner concluding there was nothing to be gained in fighting one who fired nothing but jokes.

Platinum and Gold.

A package of wire that weighs 25 pounds and resembles ordinary fine polished steel wire was entered at the Appraisers' Department of the Custom House some time ago and valued at $5,000. This is almost as much as the same weight of gold would be valued, and the wire attracted a good deal of attention. It was platinum wire, and for that reason worth its weight in gold. A man who viewed it said that the demand for it had apparently increased greatly, as much more platinum, crude and manufactured, was coming through the Custom House now.—Duluth News-Tribune.

Luxemburg.

Luxemburg. Dieser Tage fand hier die Civiltrauung des Prinzen von Chimay aus Brüssel mit Fräulein Lejeune, Tochter des zu Schloß Münsbach wohnenden ehemaligen belgischen Ministers Lejeune, statt. Der Prinz ist ein Bruder des von seiner Gattin, Madame Rigo, geschiedenen Prinzen.

Oesterreich.

Wien. Im Jahre 1897 wurde für 10,275 neu geschaffene Wohnungen der Benützungskonsens ertheilt und im selben Jahre kamen durch Demolirungen 1485 Wohnungen in Wegfall, so daß der reine Wohnungszuwachs 8790 betrug, was gegen 1896 eine Steigerung des Zuwachses um 1910 Wohnungen oder um nahezu 28 Prozent bedeutet. Die größte Anzahl neuer Wohnungen entfällt auf die Arbeiterviertel Favoriten, Brigittenau, Ottakring und Rudolphsheim.—An dem Huldigungsfestzug der Wiener Schulkinder nahmen 69,000 Knaben und Mädchen Theil. Der Zug verlief ohne den geringsten Unfall.—Der deutsche Kaiser sandte zum Kaiserjubiläumsschießen als Ehrengabe eine schwere silberne Punschbowle, deren Körper von Fittigen des deutschen Adlers getragen wird und auf deren Deckel eine goldene deutsche Kaiserkrone ruht.

Brannau. Hier trat eine Anzahl Mitglieder des Scharfschützenkorps aus dem Korpsverbande aus, weil sich die Korpsleitung weigerte, den „Wolf-Marsch" in das Repertoire der Korpsmusikkapelle aufzunehmen.

Budapest. In den Komitaten Oedenburg und Eisenburg ging ein heftiger Wolkenbruch mit Hagel nieder. In Steinamanger wurden sämmtliche Fenster zertrümmert. In zahlreichen Gemeinden wurden die Saaten vernichtet. Auch im Veßprimer Komitat wüthete ein Unwetter. Auf der Eisenbahnlinie Budapest-Fünfkirchen wurden vom Sturm 21 Wagen eines Personenzuges aus dem Geleise geworfen. Der Zugführer wurde schwer verletzt. Die Wagen sind stark beschädigt.

Grein. In der Nähe von hier barst während der Thalfahrt auf dem Postdampfer „Gisela" ein Dampfrohr mit lautem Krach. Durch den ausströmenden Dampf wurden drei Heizer des Dampfers so schwer verbrüht, daß sie kurz darauf unter entsetzlichen Qualen den Geist aufgaben.

Innsbruck. In der Zeit des Radfahrsports, scheint es, wird auch die Wallfahrt zur Radfahrt. In Kaltern kam dieser Tage ein solcher Wallfahrer zu Rad aus Oberösterreich an. Er betete dort vor dem in Wallfahrerkreisen weitbekannten Bild des heiligen Antonius, beichtete und kommunizirte. Dann radelte dieser moderne Wallfahrer wieder seiner Heimath zu.

Oedenburg. Unter großer Feierlichkeit wurde hier am Wohnhause Joseph Haydns eine Marmortafel enthüllt.

Olmütz. Der hiesige Bezirkshauptmann Freiherr v. Gastheimb wurde, als er mit seinem Fahrrade das czechische Dorf Hodolein passirte, von einigen Individuen mit Steinen beworfen. Eine Untersuchung ist im Zuge.

Teschen. Anläßlich des Kaiserjubiläums hat Erzherzog Friedrich den Wittwen- und Waisenfonds seiner Kammer Teschen den Betrag von 100,000 Kronen gespendet.

Schweiz.

Bern. Die Bundesversammlung nahm das vom Bundesrath vorgeschlagene Gesetz an, wonach der Kavallerie berittene Schützenkompagnien beigegeben werden sollen.—Eine junge arme Frau in Bern, Namens Hasler, deren Mann krank im Spital liegt, hat ihre beiden Kinder, ein Mädchen von acht Monaten und ein Knabe von zwei Jahren, aus Verzweiflung mit Phosphor vergiftet. Sie vergiftete sich nachher selber mit Kohlengas, kam aber wieder zu sich. Die Kinder sind todt.

Zürich. In Zürich erfolgte dieser Tage im Beisein des Bundesrathes und sämmtlicher Kantonsregierungen, sowie des Schweizer Parlaments und der fremden Gesandten die Eröffnung und Uebergabe des Schweizerischen Landmuseums. Etwa 300,000 Menschen wohnten dem großartigen kostümirten Festzug bei, in welchem 2500 Theilnehmer mitgingen.

Luzern. Während eines heftigen Sturmes auf dem Vierwaldstätterfee kippte ein von fünf englischen Touristen besetztes kleines Boot bei Meggen um. Zwei Personen, ein Herr und eine Dame, ertranken, die Uebrigen wurden gerettet.

Basel. Professor Thur an der Baseler Universität hat einen Ruf als Lehrer des deutschen Rechts an die Universität Straßburg angenommen.

Schaffhausen. Die „Schillerglocke" im Münster von Schaffhausen mußte bekanntlich außer Funktion gesetzt werden. An ihre Stelle kommt eine neue, die größte des neuen Gesammtgeläutes von sechs Glocken, welche in der Gießerei Rüetschi in Aarau gegossen werden. Diese neue Schillerglocke erhält, wie die alte von 1486, die Inschrift: „Vivos voco, mortuos plango, fulgura frango," wird in demselben Ton As und in demselben Gewicht von 5000 Kilo gegossen. Zur Einweihung des neuen Geläutes, das bis Ende September geliefert werden soll, wird Schillers „Lied von der Glocke" in der Bearbeitung von Romberg zur Darstellung gebracht.

The Way Is Almost Hedged With Guide Posts.

Have you ever read a newspaper article, a glowing account of some incident told in elusive words to lead you on and found it ended up with a proprietary medicine advertisement? Made you mad didn't it? And were you convinced of the merit of the article? We think not, because it told the experiences of some stranger in a far away town; to take his word for it, was like 'going it blind.' It's a very different thing when a statement is prescribed from a citizen, from people we know, and that's the case here.

Mr. C. H. Lippencott, of 39 Chatham street, says: "After my experience with Doan's Kidney Pills I cannot do otherwise than speak in the highest terms of them. I was a victim of kidney complaint for some time. My chief trouble was a dreadful backache which was so bad in damp weather or when I took cold that I could not get about. I was in the hardware business at this time and the heavy lifting and being on my feet so much greatly aggravated the troubles. I was at my worst last spring when I concluded to try Doan's Kidney Pills which I got at L. W. Randolph's drug store. It only required a few doses to convince me that I had got hold of the right remedy. My backache disappeared before I had finished the first box and I have not felt it since. You are at liberty to refer anyone to me and I will gladly give my experience in detail."

PROPOSALS

To construct, maintain and operate a Street Railroad in North Avenue from Orchard Street in the City of Elizabeth, to Richmond Street in the City of Plainfield, etc.

The following resolutions were adopted by the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, N. J., at a meeting on Thursday, July 14th, 1898, viz:

RESOLVED, That it is the intention of this Board to widen, straighten and change the grade and otherwise improve Westfield or North Avenue between Orchard Street in the City of Elizabeth and Richmond Street in the City of Plainfield, in order to provide for the construction and convenient operation of a street railroad thereon; said proposed widening, straightening and change of location being shown on a map, consisting of fifteen sheets, this day adopted and filed in the office of the Clerk of the County, and be it further

RESOLVED, That propositions to construct, maintain and operate a street railroad on North Avenue from Orchard street in the City of Elizabeth to Richmond Street in the City of Plainfield, and on Orchard Street in the City of Elizabeth from Westfield or North Avenue to Morris Avenue, and in Plainfield on Richmond Street from North Avenue to Third Street and thence on Third Street to Watchung Avenue, and on West Jersey Street and Bayway in the City of Elizabeth from the present terminus of the street railroad on West Jersey Street to Westfield Avenue, will be received and considered by this Board on the Fourth day of August, 1898, at the hour of half past two o'clock in the afternoon of that day, at the Court House in the City of Elizabeth, N. J., in pursuance of an act of the last legislature entitled "An act to authorize boards of chosen freeholders to widen, straighten, grade and otherwise improve highways under control, and to provide for the construction of street railroads thereon," and that at said time and place all parties interested in said matter may be heard; and be it further—

RESOLVED, That this resolution shall be published in the Elizabeth Daily Journal and the Daily Leader, published in the City of Elizabeth, N. J., the Cranford Citizen, published in Cranford, N. J., the Union County Standard, published in Westfield, N. J., the Courier-News and Daily Press, published in Plainfield, N. J., once in each week until said Fourth day of August.

TO-MORROW'S BIRTHPLACE.

The Line in the Pacific Ocean Where It Shakes Hands With Yesterday.

Most people who have read Jules Verne's "Around the World in Eighty Days" will remember how narrowly the traveler missed his bet, having forgotten that, in following the sun from east to west, he had gained one day.

When one crosses the Atlantic from London to New York, he gains rather more than half an hour each day. From New York to Chicago another hour is gained, another to Denver, another to San Francisco, which is reckoning time eight hours later than London, and of course the best part of a day later than Shanghai and Yokohama. In crossing the Pacific there comes a time when the day begins, where yesterday and to-morrow shake hands, and where the traveler is cheated out of a day in his life.

In mid-Pacific, going west, one skips from Sunday to Tuesday. Going east he has one day of the week repeated—Two Sundays or Tuesdays, as the case may be.

The line of the changing day is not a straight line. The islands in the Pacific take their time from the continent with which they trade and from which they were discovered. Thus, the line of the change zigzags down the Pacific coast from South to North, dodging between the islands.

Hence, it might easily happen that a ship which has already skipped a day would reach an island which clings to San Francisco time. In such a case it would be Monday on shore and Tuesday on the ship.

If the ship's jolly boat were lying at a wharf it would be Monday on the wharf and Tuesday on the boat.

And if a person lives somewhere near the line he can get a sailboat and visit yesterday and to-morrow in the most delightful fashion.—New York World.

COST OF A DOOR HANDLE.

It May Be High When One Is Æsthetic and Wants Something Unique.

The aesthetic person who desires a unique door handle for his favorite room must pay for the privilege. Forty, fifty, even seventy-five dollars may be the cost of the first door handle made after a new pattern. The metal is worth perhaps only a few cents, but the labor comes high. First the architect draws the design and submits it to the manufacturer that is to finish the handle. He turns it over to his modeler, who makes an exact pattern of the handle and lock in clay or plaster. Every line that is flat in the design is raised in this pattern, and the more elaborate and intricate the decoration the more difficult the work. The pattern is then given to the man who makes the mould, or oftener several moulds joined together, known as gates. These are usually of plaster of paris, and the molten metal is poured into them without in anyway affecting the plaster.

When the metal is cool the handle is taken out, a thing of beauty and expense, for the architect, the pattern maker, the mould maker, and the man who pours in the metal must all be paid for their work. The first door handle only is thus costly. When the mould is once made the price of a door handle decreases according to the number made, so that the five hundredth door handle costs scarcely more than the metal put into it.—New York Sun.

Who Goes Home.

There is nothing more amusing, perhaps, in all the quaint and curious customs of the House of Commons than the strange ceremony which marks the termination of its every sitting. The moment the House is adjourned, stentorian-voiced messengers and policemen cry out in the lobbies and corridors, "Who goes home?" These words have sounded every night for centuries through the Palace of Westminster. The custom dates from a time when it was necessary for members to go home in parties, accompanied by links-men for common protection against the footpads who infested the streets of London. But though that danger has long since passed away, the question, "Who goes home?" is still asked, night after night, during the session of Parliament. No reply is given, and none is expected.

The Pigs Saved Fifty Lives.

This story comes straight from Australia and relates to the loss of the coasting steamer Kameruka, while going from Eden to Sidney. While traveling at full speed the vessel struck on a reef. There being no rockets on the ship, the captain tied a lifeline to some pigs, which formed part of the cargo, and had the animals put overboard. The pigs swam to the shore, taking the lines with them, and being discovered wandering around the beach, communication was established with the steamer, and fifty passengers, many of whom were women and children, as well as the captain and crew, were rescued. There is a peculiar sequel to this story. The passengers went to the nearest hotel and at the first meal ate roast pork. One would think they would be ashamed to do that.—Golden Days.

Ivory Eyes as Love Tokens.

An eye for an eye will in future be the pledge of plighted love, and no longer the phrase of vengeance and hate. At Paris has arisen a new fashion. The engagement ring may be kept, but the true emblem of the union of hearts is the exchange of eyes. The engagement eye is framed in gold and painted on ivory, and is set round about with precious stones. It must be an exact reproduction of the human and individual window; not enlarged or beautified, but painted as it is. Every least three sittings before the right shade and the perfect expression can model must give his or her artist at be transferred to the little ivory convex.—Pall Mall Gazette.

THE CENTENARY OF VINEGAR HILL

Recalling the Deeds of the Irish Revolution of 1798.

"At noon on Oulart's moss-clad heights
Loud rang the musketry,
And Wexford flung upon the foe
Her peasant chivalry.
For vengeance nerved the patriot's arm
And pointed where to strike."

Such was the spirit in which an old ballad records the Irish insurrection of 1798 which some have described as the last expiring shriek of Irish freedom against English class oppression.

It is well to make the charge of oppression against "the governing classes" rather than against England as a nation, because it is only very lately that the people of England obtained the right to rule their own country, and it is but simple justice to say that ever since the masses of Englishmen wrested their freedom from a ruling ring of nobles, they have been nobly undoing the past and making the relations of England and Ireland more sweet and kindly. It is not, therefore, in any spirit of hostility to England, or to the English people that the Irish patriots will this summer hold appropriate ceremonies to celebrate the gallant stand of the peasantry a century ago, against the laws which crushed the Irish people and who, strange to relate, numbered about 4,700,000 then as now. The Irish have not numerically increased in Ireland during the past one hundred years, but they have improved in wealth and in education, and they are now in the enjoyment of more political rights than were their fathers in 1798. A hundred years ago the condition of Ireland was utterly wretched. The people had no property, no political rights, no schools, no manufactures; they were mere renters at the mercy of a body of taskmasters planted among them and whose lands they cultivated for the bare necessities of existence.

Their natural leaders had been driven out of the country after the Hanoverian wars, and thus is furnished the solution of the puzzle to Americans, that the names of an O'Donnell as Duke of Tetuan, or a Senor Moret d'Prendergrast now occur respectively as Ministers of Foreign Affairs or of the Colonies, in the dispatches we read from Spain. These are the descendants of Irish gentlemen whose estates were confiscated in the numerous wars for the conquest and subjugation of Ireland, and of which train of events the rebellion of 1798 was the sequel and the natural consequence.

The rebellion of 1798 was, however, the revolt of a freedom-loving Protestant democracy touched into explosion at sight of the horrid wrongs of a loyal, brave, and oppressed Catholic peasantry. It was also as much a consequence of the action in 1776 of Jefferson, and Washington, and Adams, as was the French revolution of 1793. Though it fizzled out during the summer, when the year 1798 opened there were nearly 600,000 of the 2,500,000 of males then in the country enrolled in a secret non-sectarian organization, and pledged to die for their native land. But the Government found means to disarrange this formidable organization. They succeeded in sowing distrust between the leaders and their followers. When the peasantry were drawn away by the Government promising concessions—that substituted Maynooth College for the old House of College Green—these Ottoman lords turned upon their brave and faithful leaders who were hung, imprisoned, or exiled. Only three out of the thirty-two counties therefore came to the front in the rebellion, but in these the peasantry fought bravely; and Wexford, Oulart, Vinegar Hill, New Ross, and Enniscorthy remain in Irish song and story to attest what a change might have been wrought in Ireland had the united Irishmen, North and South, stood together in 1798. The rebellion was timed to take place in March, 1798, Ulster agreeing to furnish 110,000, Munster 100,643, and Leinster 55,672 men.

The Government, however, having captured the leaders stunned the chief end of the revolt so effectually that the great body of the people did not rise at all; and hence it was in counties where no preparations were made and no promises given that was seen the most gallant struggle for Ireland's liberty. The people who did rise were armed with pikes for the most part, a primitive sickle-shaped weapon with a long handle and which was utterly inadequate to contend with the sabres of the yeomanry. Others had old flintlocks, but by far the larger proportion were armed only with pitchforks, scythes, or any available weapons found around a farmyard. That the peasantry could make any defence whatever against British power under these circumstances is marvellous, particularly as the insurgents were not always able bodied men, but were recruited from boys, old men and sometimes even women. Yet at Vinegar Hill and Oulart the King's troops fared as badly as at Concord or at Lexington. At the latter place the royalist troops attempted to dislodge the insurgents who skillfully manoevured to draw the fire of the soldiery. For this purpose the insurgents withdrew behind an embankment and raising their hats upon the handles of their pitchforks a little over the level of the embankment, the soldiers, mistaking the hats for heads, fired over the fence or into the field beyond. As soon as the soldiers drew near the embankment fancying the Irishmen were all killed, the latter sprang up and simultaneously discharged a few weapons they had into the faces of the red coats with tremendous effect. Then with a wild cheer the main body scaled the embankment and wielding pike and scythe, blade and pitchfork, they soon discarded the attacking regiment and secured from the soldiers more formidable weapons.

No less dexterous and brave was the conflict at Vinegar Hill, where enveloped in smoke and flame both sides fought valiantly, disputing every inch of ground, the same position being captured and lost by each party in succession. An English observer of this battle says: "A small number of them (the Irish) only had fire-arms, but the pike-men, wonderfully tall, stout, strapping, able fellows, fought with their pikes in the most furious and desperate manner, thrusting at the soldiers who had much ado to parry with their bayonets after having fired and before they could reload."

Better arrangements could have shown no braver spirit. For three weeks the rebels held possession of Vinegar Hill, making it the base of their operations, and from which strategic position they commanded the town of Enniscorthy. Field glasses were not in vogue in '98 and in all encounters between the patriots and the forces of the Crown, the hills were strong objective points.

In Antrim too there were some stiff brushes between the Presbyterians of the North and George the Third's militia, and in one of which engagements a grand uncle of President McKinley's fell nobly fighting, the sept of the McKinleys, of Dervock, being among the staunchest patriots of the period. It is one of the sublime romances of history that in the first centennial year after the passionate resistance by Antrim Presbyterians, of the cruelties perpetrated by the last Marquis of Cornwallis in Ireland, the grand nephew of the patriot, McKinley, is president of the greatest nation of the world; and the same power that ruthlessly executed the ancestor, is now a suppliant for favors from the descendant! Such are the chances and changes of realms; such the fortunes of retributive time.

Rank in the Navy.

It will be of considerable help to remember that military and naval rank correspond in this way:

Admiral (when the office is created) to general.

Vice admiral (when the office is created) to lieutenant general.

Rear admiral to major general.

Commodore to brigadier general.

Captain to colonel.

Commander to lieutenant colonel.

Lieutenant commander to major.

Lieutenant to captain.

Lieutenant, junior grade, to first lieutenant.

Ensign to second lieutenant.

Considering only the two highest grades now actually held, the number of officers in each since 1882 has been six rear admirals and ten commodores. The present rear admirals in order of seniority are:

William A. Kirkland, commandant of the Mare Island Navy Yard, San Francisco, retires July 3, 1898.

Joseph N. Miller, commanding Pacific station, retires Nov. 22, 1898.

Montgomery Sicard, on duty in the office of the Secretary of the Navy, retires Sept. 30, 1898.

Edmund O. Matthews, president of the Naval Examining Board, retires Oct. 24, 1898.

Charles S. Norton, commanding Washington Navy Yard, retires this year.

Francis M. Bunce, commanding Brooklyn Navy Yard, retires this year.

Officers of the navy may be retired on their own application after forty years' service, and those above the rank of lieutenant commander must retire upon their reaching the age of 62. Those below that rank are retired for physical or mental disability. The pay of retired naval officers is three-quarters of their sea pay of the rank they held at the time of their retirement. At sea a rear admiral receives $6,000 a year; on shore duty, $5,000, and on leave or waiting orders, $4,000. Commodores are paid $1,000 less in all three lines of employment.

Retired officers of the navy cannot be assigned to active duty except in time of war, and the purpose of the Administration so far has been not to assign retired officers in the army or navy to field or sea duty, but to let these posts of danger be held by those still on the active list. Of course, such work as the command of the mosquito fleet along the coast is expected. This has been given to Admiral Erben, who was retired four or five years ago.

Until the second year of the civil war the highest naval rank was that of captain, though generally the title of commodore was given to a flag officer who commanded a squadron. In 1862 the rank of rear admiral was created by Congress, and to this grade were appointed Farragut and three other active captains, and about a dozen retired captains. In 1864, for his capture of Mobile and subsequent successes, Farragut was appointed to the newly created rank of vice admiral, and later D. D. Porter and Stephen C. Rowan were given the same rank. After the war ended, Congress went a step further, and made the grade of admiral, and to this grade promoted Farragut and Porter. There was a special provision of the laws creating admirals and vice admirals which caused the grades to die with the men holding them. When Porter and Farragut vacated their commissions as vice to accept the higher office, it left Rowan the only holder of the second place, and upon his death in 1890 the office lapsed. Farragut died in 1870, leaving Porter sole possessor of the commission of full admiral, and upon his death in 1891 both grades were vacated until Congress shall revive them, perhaps, for the heroes of this war.

NATION'S GRATITUDE

AMERICA'S HOMES FOR ITS OLD AND MAIMED SOLDIERS.

It Is to General Winfield Scott, the Hero of the Mexican War, That We Owe the Real Initiative in This Work Where the Heroes of Our Wars Live.

The pension rolls attest to the lasting gratitude of the American people, for on the roster of the nation's fame are not alone the men who suffered in the civil war, but the widows and daughters of revolutionary soldiers, now less than half a score, those of the heroes of 1812, and many a name that was famous in the war with Mexico.

Nor is this the only evidence of the nation's gratitude, for throughout the country are palaces of comfort and ease, where the heroes of our wars live out their declining years as wards of the states and the nation. Our Soldiers' Homes form a study in gratitude which surpasses in interest even the story of Les Invalides of Paris, of the Soldaten Heim of Berlin, or those of Kilmainham and Chelsea, for they are as extensive as the nation and as deep-hearted in spirit as is the thankfulness of those who toil that the aged warriors may know no further sorrow.

It is to General Winfield Scott, the hero of the Mexican war, that we owe the real initiative in this work of gratitude. Like all great soldiers, his heart was with his army, and their sufferings and trials appealed most strongly to his noble nature. It was at the close of the Mexican war that the tribute extorted from the City of Mexico for himself and his soldiers, was placed by him to the credit of a Soldiers' Home. The draft for one hundred thousand dollars was endorsed by him as follows: "The Bank of America will place the within amount to the credit of the Army Asylum, subject to the order of Congress."

But Congress was slow to act and not until 1851, when the nation itself demanded immediate action were homes provided for those who were left from the three hundred thousand and more who had fought under Washington, and from the half million who had been under arms in the war of 1812. The act of Congress provided for a National Home at Washington, but as the people would brook no delay temporary homes were founded at New Orleans, at Greenwoods Island, Mississippi, and later at Harrodsburg, Ky. But the bulk of the Scott fund went toward the purchase of a five hundred acre tract three miles north of the national capitol. And upon it the government has erected many splendid structures, more than sufficient to accommodate all who have applied. Since its foundation nearly eleven thousand veterans have been admitted and to-day its walls give shelter to over seven hundred old soldiers, almost all from the regular army. The rules of admission to this and all the branch homes are simple in the extreme. For the main home they read as follows:

1. Every soldier of the army of the United States who has served, or may serve, honestly and faithfully, twenty years in the same.

2. Every soldier and every discharged soldier, whether regular or volunteer, who has suffered, or may suffer, disability by reason of disease or wounds incurred in the service and in the line of his duty, rendering him incapable of further military service, if such disability was not occasioned by his own misconduct.

3. The invalid and disabled soldiers, whether regulars or volunteers, of the war of 1812 and of all subsequent wars.

The branch homes are as follows: Central branch, Dayton, Ohio; Northwestern, Milwaukee, Wisconsin; Eastern, Togus, Maine; Southern, Hampton, Virginia; Western, Leavenworth, Kansas; Pacific, Santa Monica, California; Marion, Marion, Indiana.

These homes, which together form "The National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers," have cared for nearly 30,000 veterans, and now have within their walls nearly twenty thousand. The rules for admission require an honorable discharge, disability which prevents earning a livelihood, and no veteran drawing a pension of $16 or over is eligible, except by vote of the board of managers.

Yet these are but a few of the homes, for in twenty-six of the northern states separate institutions under state care provide shelter for the veterans, and most of the southern states have similar homes for the care of the ex-Confederate veterans, some of the latter in charge of private organizations.

Over 1,200 inmates attest to the gratitude of New York in the magnificent home at Bath. As many are provided for in the Quincy home, Illinois and in that of Ohio at Sandusky. But perhaps the most elaborate is that of Iowa, at Marshalltown, which, while it contains only about 500 inmates, is arranged to accommodate more than double that number.

In fact all the homes are able to accommodate many more than are now within them, for it was realized by the managers that the veterans of the civil war are growing silver-haired, and yearly more are knocking for admission. And as they enter they find each year some new comfort, some new addition to the thoughtfulness of the nation. All of the homes, state and national, are splendidly equipped. The immense grounds in all of them are beautifully laid out, the garden plots being cared for by the old veterans. In many of the homes the farms, looked after by the old soldiers, give appreciable incomes. At the national home in Milwaukee, the farm products have an annual value of $20,000, while those from the Leavenworth home easily sum up $15,000. Of course these figures are trifling compared to the expenses of the institutions which in Milwaukee sum up $325,000

The libraries in all of the homes, both state and national, are growing annually. The Dayton home has about 20,000 volumes while the other institutions average from 2,000 to 10,000. Papers and periodicals from home and abroad are on file in all of the institutions

The states and the national government care for its wards, it will be seen from all this, in no half-hearted fashion. Yet many will be surprised to hear that in some of the institutions there are even cures for drunkenness. It is safe to say that a considerable percentage of these old veterans have been impoverished by drink, and when they arrive at the institutions they are not considered as prison inmates, but as men to whom the nation owes a debt. Their weaknesses are condoned. They are under discipline, of course, but it is the discipline of the army, not of the prison, and every reasonable effort is made to cure them and make the closing days of their lives as bright and happy as were their sunshiny beginnings.

A Remarkable Career on Two Continents.

William Astor Chanler is a young man of fortune and of leisure. Fortune and leisure are the twin civilizers of man. William Astor Chanler is also an American whose education has been uncontaminated by foreign travel. The latter qualification is essential for to say nowadays that a man had seen Europe or had taken a degree at Harvard would be to imply that he was a somewhat raw and athletic youth, crammed with bookish learning and out of touch with these Democratic times. As Edmund Burke used to say that an acquittal at Old Bailey was no recommendation to office, so the fact of man having dined with dukes or having studied under an Eliot or a Woolsey or a Norton, or to say that he was turned out by one of our great universities is too apt to convey the impression with the mass of people that he is one of those enervated Americans who love other countries better than their own.

William Astor Chanler is not a man of that stamp. He is an American from the crown of his head to the soles of his feet. He has a noble ambition, and a spinal column around which to build a great American. He will become one some day and is starting in the right direction. Mr. Astor Chanler has already attempted the raising of a regiment and has offered it to the President to fight in Cuba. Owing to the belief in Washington that this nation is sufficiently indebted to its rich men there seems no necessity for individuals to raise levies of armed troops. Besides in Spain's case it reminds one too much of calling out the artillery to shoot a fly.

But nothing daunted this plucky young man has done the next best thing—he has gone himself to the front and has offered himself to General Gomez. This shows better than the offer to raise a regiment that Mr. Astor Chanler is an exceptionally practical young man.

For after all it is not difficult for any young man of means to collect a regiment to fight any where just now. "To go where glory waits thee" is not so much of a patriotic as an opportune inspiration, particularly when one feels that the glory will be all his own, and that if he is not placed at the head of the regiment he himself raises and at his own expense the Administration will be at fault. This is the way people think whatever they say. There was too much of this tactful system of trade and barter in the Civil War and the United States has grown too big and dignified a nation to receive aid from private individuals against Spain except in the way of ordinary enlistment.

Mr. Astor Chanler undeterred by any considerations nobly suspended regiment raising and resolved to do or die in propria persona. The country will therefore watch this young gentleman's progress with renewed interest on the staff of Gomez and with the army of liberation in Cuba.

Nor is this step the first that he has taken which singles him out for public notice. On coming of age he cut loose from the crowd of gilded youths of the Tenderloin who speak a modulated Cockney accent, and who after their morning "bawth" devote the balance of the day inditing billet doux, or in selecting the best matinees or studying the records of the most attractive prima donnas. Mr. Astor then organized a hunting trip in Africa in 1892. He is the author of a highly interesting work "Through the Jungle and Desert" which sheds light on the dark continent, and which caused him to be elected a member of the Royal Geographical Society. He knows how to use a rifle effectively, and is an expert sharpshooter. He knows also how to move a caravan or to pick a tiger or to spy a Don at three thousand yards and send either to sleep with enough of lead in his brain to steady a passage over the river Styx.

Mr. Chanler has roughed life enough in Africa to become an invaluable aid in Cuba, while his superior intelligence and his undoubted courage wil make the young millionaire a favorite of General Gomez and of the army. He has suffered the pangs of hunger on the Tang river. He has had yellow fever in Daitcho Africa. He has been presented at Queen Victoria's Court and has danced cotillions with dusky maidens on the Jombine Range. He has dabbled with politics as a Parnellite sympathizer in Dublin, and in a word he has seen life in many lands and under such varied vicissitudes as to make him a general favorite and an all-round interesting type of American youth, illustrating Pope's line: "Worth makes the man and want of it the fellow."

CYCLING COMMENT.

The chainless bicycle has been on the market now for several months and there is variety enough in the makes of wheels to give quite a choice, but there has not been what might honestly be called a rush for that style of wheel. Those who have thoroughly tested the chainless wheels are pronounced in their favor as compared with the chain wheels, but few of them can see from $50 to $75 more value in the new over the old form of geering.

If the chainless wheels were listed at $75, they might go off as rapidly as the old wheels and if they were priced at $50 the doom of the chain wheel would probably have been sealed ere this, but at $125 the people do not seem to hunger for the new mounts. The greatest value ever put into a bicycle is now offered for $75 and to induce any wideawake cyclist to pay almost double that amount of money for a bicycle the wheel must be both novel and meritorious to a degree far above those now offered by the leading American makers.

It is likely that having invested a great amount of capital in machinery in producing chainless bicycles that the manufacturers will in as short a time as possible meet the demand for a chainless wheel at a price that is within the reach of the masses and at which it has been proved that chain wheels can be sold. When this is done it is likely that chainless wheels will be the only ones ridden by the up-to-date cyclers. And that this state of affairs is apt to be brought about shortly is evidenced by the rapid decline in prices of chain wheels which has taken place within the last two years.

FORD AT THE FRONT.

IS ARTILLERIST AND NEWSPAPERMAN IN ACTIVE SERVICE.

A Letter Has Just Been Received From Him, Written Before the Surrender—He Was Preparing to go in the Fight.

Word has been received from William F. Ford, of East Fourth street, of his safe arrival on Cuban shores and that his battery was preparing for a severe battle with the Spaniards. He is in perfect health and stands the torrid climate well.

Mr. Ford, finding that his regiment at Trenton was not likely to be called out and that there was a small chance of the Jersey troops getting to Cuba, resigned his commission and enlisted in Light Battery F, Fifth Artillery, U. S. A. He was sent to Tampa, Fla., and the first of the month sailed for Cuba with the expedition under command of Gen. Randolph. Mr. Ford is a New York Herald correspondent and one of the few newspaper men in active service. After Havana is taken the regulars will go to Porto Rico.

The letter was written on board the transport ship Comanche, July 8th, lying off Santiago de Cuba, and arrived in this city this morning.

RECOGNIZED LONG SERVICES.

John S. King Presented With a Diamond Badge by Prudential Insurance Company.

John S. King, of West Second street, has faithfully served the Prudential Insurance Company, as an agent, for twenty years, and the company has been quick to recognize the fact by presenting him with an elegant diamond badge. The badge is solid gold and on one side are the letters "P. O. G.," Prudential Old Guard. On the other side is the insignia of the company, a lion and a large size diamond. It is made in the shape of a locket, and is certainly a thing of beauty. The Prudential Insurance Company treats all its agents in a generous manner and they have suitable presentations for agents who have served from five to twenty years. Mr. King is justly proud of the gift.

GRANTED A NONSUIT.

Constable Failed to Return Summons Properly Endorsed.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Market, N. J., July 27—Because Luther Mundy, constable, failed to return a summons properly endorsed, Mrs. Sarah M. Runyon and her son, Joseph R. Runyon, of South Plainfield, who were named defendants in a suit for about $13, brought by Mumford & Son, of Plainfield, were granted a nonsuit yesterday in Justice Storms' court.

Mumford & Son claim that they cleaned and repaired a number of mattresses for Mrs. Runyon when she lived in this city for which they were never paid. J. P. D. Kirch represented the plaintiff, and another summons was issued at once. Robert M. Clark represented the defendant.

ALL QUIET AT HOSPITAL.

Monthly Meeting of the Board of Governors Held Last Night.

A monthly meeting of the board of governors of Muhlenberg Hospital was held last evening at the Public Library. There was a quorum present. The report for the month showed that 24 patients were admitted to the hospital, of which number 15 were discharged cured and six improved. The total number treated was 40 and this is the highest number yet reached in one month. In the dispensary department there were 38 patients and 130 visits made. The board reported all matters to be in excellent condition.

Miss Genevra M. Miner, of Oriskany Falls, returned home this morning after spending several weeks at the home of her uncle, Joseph E. Morse, of Franklin place.

Commander Booth referred to the different departments of his work in closing, particularly to that done by Mrs. Booth in the prisons, and during his discourse related many touching incidents of men saved by the power of God, and lifted out of the lowest depths into peace and rest. The members of the Plainfield post were out in full force, and the proceeds of the meeting went to their fund.

ATTACKED BY BEES.

Young Girl From Roselle Suffered Greatly From Their Stings

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Cranford, July 26—Emma Holman, of Roselle, was attacked by a swarm of bees Sunday evening while on her way to the farm of George Stites at Mount Bethel. She was walking along the road when she encountered the bees and they stung her all over the body.

The girl managed to get to the Stites farm, and many of the bees which had not left her had to be banished by having water thrown over them. The eyes of the girl were almost closed, and her cheeks were swollen to twice their natural size. Several doctors were summoned, and under their care the swelling was reduced. Although suffering much pain, the child has improved and all danger of blood poisoning has passed.

PLANS FOR THE STATE FAIR.

New Features This Autumn at the Waverly Grounds.

The New Jersey Agricultural Society has announced the premium list for the annual State fair, which will be held at the Waverly fair grounds during the week beginning September 3d.

The art exhibits will be classified this year for the first time. The speed department, under the direction of Superintendent James M. Reilly, promises superior entry lists in all the trotting and pacing events.

Charles Ayers will have charge of the cattle department; Dennis Long of the speed and swine department; T. Farrar Rockham of the poultry, pigeon and bird department; D. T. Quinn of the fruit, vegetable, grain, flower and root department, and Mrs. James M. Smith of needlework and embroidery.

TO SENTENCE ROESEL.

Justice Van Syckel Will Set the Date for the Hanging.

[Special to The Daily Press.]

Elizabeth, July 26.—Justice Van Syckel, contrary to expetations, did not appear yesterday in the Union County Court to re-sentence Louis Roesel, the Summit murderer, but sent word to Judge Vail that he would be in court next Monday, when he would fix a date for the execution. Judge Vail notified the Sheriff, who will make his arrangements for the selection of the jury to witness the hanging.

Cut His Foot With an Axe.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Basking Ridge, July 25—John Gavenor, of Stirling, while intoxicated Thursday afternoon, met with a painful accident. He was carrying an axe under his arm, and was boarding the 5:40 train at Summit, when the axe slipped and dropped on his left foot, cutting the foot deeply. Instead of going to a doctor at Summit he waited until he arrived at Basking Ridge, and he was then so weak from loss of blood that he had to be carried in a hack and taken to Dr. F. C. Jones' office, where it was found that two arteries had been severed. After the wound was dressed he was taken to to his home at Stirling.

A Successful Operation.

A successful operation was performed on Mrs. Biswanger, of Philadelphia, yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of her father, J. H. McVey, of North avenue, by Dr. Endicott, assisted by Drs. Long, Probasco, Boone and Browning. The operation was to remove a tumor weighing about 40 pounds. Mrs. Biswanger stood the operation well and there are fair chances for her recovery if no other complications arise.

Many Out of Work.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, July 26.—Most of the men who were employed by the Central Railroad at its shops at Elizabethport are again out of work. The men were employed in clearing away the debris of the fire, and yesterday an order came to stop work. Now it is not known when operations will be resumed.

Kind to His Friends.

F. A. Dunham, who has been at Barnegat for several days fishing, returned home last evening. He found great sport and made a great catch, bringing home all the fish he could carry which he generously presented to his intimate friends.

Mrs. A. B. Brown and family, of New York, have returned after a visit at the home of Mrs. Brown's mother, Mrs. Russ, of East Fourth street.

—The regular Thursday evening services at the East Third Street chapel will be held Wednesday evening this week, Thursday being their Sunday-school excursion to Asbury Park and Ocean Grove.

A Little Daughter Dies.

Matilda V. Snyder, aged one month and two days, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Snyder, of Somerset street, died Sunday afternoon after a short illness with summer complaint. Dr. Buchanan was in attendance and worked faithfully to save the little one's life. The funeral services were held this afternoon from the home of the parents and interment was in Plainfield avenue cemetery.

Lumber Pile Fell On Her.

A little girl playing around the lumber pile at Hand's new building, Second street and Watchung avenue, last night, met with an accident which nearly proved very serious.

As the result of some unguarded movement the pile toppled over upon the child.

One leg was caught and severely bruised, but she received no further injury.

Attention Needed Here.

The residents of Pearl street, between Watchung avenue and Warren street, are complaining about the condition of the roadway. They say that it is so graded that the water stands there long after every rain, and besides making the road unpleasant for wheelmen and drivers, is a menace to the health of the community.

Exchange of Real Estate.

Robert Clark, of Washingtonville, has exchanged his handsome property with Charles Lyman, of the borough, for Mr. Lyman's Jackson avenue house. Possession in both cases will be given August 1st.

Unfeeling.

"A certain drill sergeant, whose severity had made him unpopular with his company, was putting a squad of recruits through the funeral exercise. Opening the ranks so as to admit the passage of the supposed cortege between them, the instructor, by way of practical explanation, walked slowly down the lane formed by the two ranks, saying as he did so:

"Now, I'm the corpse, pay attention."

Having reached the end of the party, he turned round, regarded them steadily with a scrutinizing eye for a moment or two, then remarked:

"Your 'ands is right, and your 'eads is right, but you 'aven't got that look of regret you ought to 'ave."

A REBELLIOUS PRISONER TAMED.

The Love for a Pet Rat Worked His Reformation.

Some years ago, a man was confined for life in a French prison. He was very violent at times, at others so sullen that the warders were afraid of him.

One day it was seen that Jose looked less frowning than usual, and at times he almost had a smile on his face; he was watching something hidden in his breast. The warders did not feel comfortable; they must find out what he was doing. Two of them suddenly seized his arms from behind, and after binding him began to search his person.

What did they find? Something which astonished them very much.

It was not a weapon, as they feared but a fine large rat. In this discovery poor Jose quite broke down, and fell on his knees in an agony of fear, crying out in the greatest gief.—

"Oh, don't kill him! Beat me if you like; chain me; but if I may not keep him, let my poor rat go free!"

The stern guards were moved to pity at this strange sight, and instead of hurting the rat, they let it drop to the floor and disappear. Then Jose rose and sullenly began work.

In the course of a few days, while the convicts were at work moving wood in the yard, Jose felt something tickle his cheek. He turned round and gave a shout of joy, for there, seated on his shoulder, was the only friend he had in the world, his rat, who had found him out and come creeping up to his face.

With eager hands he put it into his breast as before, and, turning to the head gaoler, said,—

"Sir, if I may only keep this rat, I solemnly promise to submit to you in every way, and never disobey you again."

The permission was given, and the man, with a happy smile, continued his work in apparent content.

From that day the dreaded convict was a new being; he became the best conducted man in the prison, while his great strength and energy were used to help the governor. The rat was never away from him, but shared his meals, slept in his bed, and his master made little toys of bone which he sold in order to buy goodies, such as sugar, cheese and gingerbread, for his pet.

MICE FEED A DISABLED CAT.

And She in Turn Loves Them as Though They Were Kittens.

The story is rather strange. To begin with it is strange that a wideawake, agile, up-to-date cat should permit itself to be run over by a wagon. That is what happened the other day to a fine Maltese owned by a Mrs. Catherine Jones, of Sixth and Tasker streets. Mr. Jones is not a member of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and when he heard that the cat had been disabled he simply chucked it into the cellar, there to shift for itself. Nobody cared for the poor thing and in a few days Jones went to the cellar to remove what he believed was a dead cat. He was astonished to find the animal still alive and more astonished to see a heap of fish and meat bones in the corner in which it lay. The cat was unable to crawl, nobody in the house had supplied it with food and the windows of the cellar were tightly closed. Mr. Jones was puzzled, but he determined to investigate. Placing some scraps of bread and meat on a plate, he laid it in the center of the cellar, and, taking a position at the near window he awaited developments. He had not long to wait. In a minute or two he saw a mouse creep cautiously toward the plate, and then another. Seizing a large piece of meat they partly dragged and partly rolled it to where the cat lay, and squatting themselves on their haunches, waited until the hungry pussy had eaten it. They then brought another piece in the same way, and then piece after piece until the plate was cleaned. When the cat had finished the mice nestled alongside her and were fondled as tenderly as if they were a pair of kittens.—Philadelphia Times.

THE CHAIN GANG.

It Is an Ancient and Familiar Local Institution.

"Those gentlemen who attired in the peculiar uniform that fancy ascribes to the pirate and freebooter," says an old-time Washingtonian, "now known as the 'chain gang,' do not belong to a modern institution, as it is generally supposed. While it may be a new custom in some parts of the country to work the offenders of municipal law on the streets, the custom has prevailed in this city for about three-fourths of a century. The corporation of Washington established the asylum in 1821, and the male inmates of the penitentiary department were ordered to report for work on the streets November 23, 1823. The asylum, or poor and work house, was located then on the square bounded by M. N. Sixth and Seventh streets northwest, and in the early days those placed in the gang were so small in number as to attract no attention. I do no think that any attempt to place the offenders in the black and white stripes was made till long after the asylum was moved to the banks of the Anacostia about 1846."—Washington Star.

Just the Other Way.

The man who had built up the new town and was showing a prospective settler about the place, pointed with pride to a pretty little church, just completed.

"Do you belong to the church?" asked the visitor.

"I should say not," replied the head man of the burg, with an air of injured pride. "The church belongs to me."—Detroit Free Press.

A Centenarian's Mode of Living.

There is at present in Anzin, France, a centenarian, who enjoys such excellent health that he does not despair of reaching the age of 127 years. M. Jean Baptiste Dubois—that is his name—pretends to know the art of keeping well, and his doctor agrees that his mode of living suits him admirably. When he rises every morning he smokes a pipe. This is followed by a dish of milk soup. He dines at midday, drinks two glasses of wine, and takes his coffee without sugar. At supper he drinks more wine, and finishes the evening en famille. His hobby is gardening, and he varies it by rocking his great-granddaughter in her cradle and singing nursery songs.

JERSEY WILL HAVE A NATIONAL CAMP.

Such is Now the Belief in the War Department.

VOORHEES AT WASHINGTON.

THE GOVERNOR HAS BEEN WORKING TO SECURE THE CAMP.

It is Believed That His Visit in Washington Monday Has Decided the Authorities in Favor of Sea Girt—He Wore a Broad Smile When He Departed After the Interview.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Camp Alger, Va., July 27.—Governor Foster M. Voorhees of New Jersey paid a flying visit to the War Department at Washington Monday, to consult with the military authorities relative to the proposition to make Sea Girt, N. J., a military post. The Governor has been urging this plan since the outbreak of the war, and the State camp ground had been inspected and reported on favorably several times.

No effort has been spared by the New Jersey Executive in the furtherance of this plan, but the people at the War Department did not agree with him. The conference lasted several hours, and when Mr. Voorhees left the Department in time to catch the Congressional train for his home he wore a smile several sizes larger than usual. It was stated yesterday that the Governor had at last succeeded in bringing the Secretary of War and Adjutant-General Corbin over to his way of thinking.

The Secretary of War told the Governor that there must be sufficient room provided to insure the health and comfort of the soldiers. The Governor then detailed what had been done in the way of arranging for the post, and the facilities offered by the site. It was understood late yesterday that the question was not fully decided, but that Governor Voorhees obtained a full hearing of his case and made a good impression.

HOUSE BOATING.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Ball Entertain on Their Summer Craft, "Sommerheim."

Miss Laura Long and Willis West spent last week on F. H. Ball's house boat, "Sommerheim," at West Hampton. This week Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Ball, of the borough, and Miss Mueller, of Buffalo, will be Mr. Ball's guests. The "Sommerheim" is now lying off Fire Island, where the blue fishing is good, but will return to West Hampton this week.

The New York Herald, in its notes on Fire Island Monday, says the following: "The house boat "Sommerheim" dropped anchor here last night and presented quite a gay appearance."

BABYS' CAMP OPEN.

King's Daughters' Charity in Progress and Needs Aid.

The City Union of King's Daughters wishes to announce that the Babys' Camp on the mountain is now open and is being made use of by the city nurse. Visitors are always welcome, and it is hoped that the people of the city will interest themselves in this branch of charitable work. Financial help is greatly needed and will be very gratefully received. All contributions should be sent to Mrs. W. A. Coddington, 409 East Second street.

HOBSON IN NEW JERSEY.

HERO OF THE MERRIMAC VISITS AT MORRISTOWN.

He Was Received With a Grand Demonstration and Carried to His Carriage—While There was the Guest of his Cousin

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Morristown, July 27.—Lieutenant Richmond P. Hobson arrived in Morristown last evening at 9:15 o'clock. The station was crowded with persons anxious to catch a glance of the hero of the Merrimac. Red fire made the station almost as light as day, and amid the tooting of whistles and the playing of a band Lieutenant Hobson popped off the train. That is, he tried to do so, but the hero was fairly carried to the carriage.

Hundreds shook his hand as he was carried by and many calls were made for a speech, but the cheering made it impossible for a word to be heard.

As soon as possible the police cleared a way for the carriage, and he was driven to the home of his cousin, Miss Betton, in South street. He stayed here until this morning, when he left for New York. The lieutenant came direct from Boston, where he went Monday evening to arrange for lighters to be used in raising the Colon and the Maria Teresa at Santiago.

REUNION OF GRADUATES

CLASS OF '90 OF THE PLAINFIELD HIGH SCHOOL ENTERTAINED.

Mrs. F. E. Woodruff Entertained Her Old Classmates—Letters Read from Those Unable to be Present Then.

An enjoyable affair was held last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Woodruff, of Duer street, when Mrs. Woodruff entertained seven members of the Plainfield High School class of '90. The event was purely an informal social one, and those present had a delightful time in talking over past incidents of happy school days. Mrs. Woodruff proved to be a charming hostess and her classmates were pleasantly entertained. A portion of the evening was passed in reading letters of congratulation and regrets from members of the class who could not be present.

During the past eight years the class has only lost one member by death, Miss Minnie French. Each one of the members have in some way or other distinguished themselves. Some are connected with banking houses, some have been admitted to the bar and are practicing law, while others are to be found in the high walks of life. The following members were present last evening: Miss May Stelle, Miss Ernestine Smith, Miss Mary Buxton, Mrs. F. E. Woodruff, Alfred White, E. J. Patterson and Asa F. Randolph. There were eighteen members in the original class.

The following members are living in various parts of the country and could not be present: Miss Caroline Fitz Randolph, Miss Eleanor Davie, Mrs. George Morton, Miss Clara Woltman, Miss Margaret Case, Miss Bessie Blair, William Coriell, Edmund Nitschwitz, Edward Petrie and Walter Darby.

Prof. Edward Lewis, now of Lewis University, Chicago, was the teacher of the class and a letter of regret at being unable to be present was received from him. During the evening the hostess served refreshments to her guests.

When the happy affair terminated all carried away with them pleasant thoughts of an evening profitably spent.

American Day for Juniors.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Asbury Park, July 27—The State officers of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics have completed arrangements for the annual observance of American Day, at Asbury Park Thursday, August 18th. It has been decided to issue an address to the thirty thousand members of the order in New Jersey, urging upon them to journey to Asbury Park on that day to participate in the annual reunion and parade of the order. The officials believe that at least ten thousand members will take part in the parade and that ten thousand relatives and friends will accompany them to the shore to celebrate the day.

LAND ARMS FOR CUBANS

Wanderer Leaves Supplies On Cuban Coast.

SKIRMISH WITH ENEMY.

THE SPANISH TROOPS FIRED ON LANDING PARTY.

They Drove Americans and Cubans To The Beach and Were in Turn Repulsed—Six Americans Wounded

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Key West, July 27, 12:30 p. m.—Six wounded men were brought in this morning on board the Wanderer from Banes, Cuba, where a sharp engagement between American and Spanish occurred.

The Wanderer left here July 20th with supplies and ammunition for the Cubans. There was also on board an expedition under Captain Heard, composed of ten troopers of the Third Cavalry, Capt. Heard's regiment, and twenty-five Cubans.

When they arrived off Banes, they were joined by several hundred Cuban insurgents from the interior. The work of landing the supplies was immediately commenced with the aid of the Cubans on shore.

While all were busy transferring the supplies to the boats that carried them to the shore and carrying the supplies inland, they were attacked by a large force of Spaniards who drove them back to the beach.

There the Americans and Cubans made a stand and forced the Spanish to retire. Six Americans were wounded in the skirmish. A number of the Cubans were also wounded. The Spanish loss is unknown, but it was undoubtedly heavy.

TYPHOID FEVER CAUSED DEATH.

Roswell Percy Fish, Well-Known Here, Died at His Home in Chicago.

Roswell Percy Fish, son of R. P. Fish, of Chicago, and nephew of Andrew W. Fish and Frederick K. Fish, of this city, died at the home of his father Monday night, July 25th, in the twenty-ninth year of his age. The 10th of last August Mr. Fish was married to Miss Anne Winslow Crane, of Brooklyn, formerly a resident of this city. After less than a year of wedded happiness Mr. Fish was stricken with typhoid fever and died after an illness of a little more than two weeks. Mr. Fish was of an unusually attractive personality, and thoroughly noble and upright in character. He had a large circle of friends in Plainfield, who will deeply mourn his loss.

GASOLINE STOVE EXPLODED.

Mrs. VanPelt, of Somerset Street, Escaped Injury and Extinguished Flames.

The explosion of a gasoline stove at the home of Mrs. VanPelt, 90 Somerset street, yesterday, resulted in the burning of a quantity of clothing and the woodwork in the kitchen where the explosion occurred. Mrs. VanPelt, fortunately, was able to reach the stove and throw it out of the window before the house was set on fire. Mrs. VanPelt was not burned. The insurance policy is held by E. M. French & Co., of North avenue, and they will speedily adjust the loss.

Nurses on a Vacation.

Miss Anderson and Miss Delaney, nurses at the hospital, who have been enjoying their annual vacation, will return to their duties tomorrow. Miss Messler will leave Friday to spend her vacation at Somerville and Whitehouse. She will spend a portion of her time in wheeling through the country.

Dividend Declared.

The board of directors of the City National Bank announce today that they have declared a semi-annual dividend of 4 per cent., payable on and after Tuesday, August 2d.

THEY WILL BID FOR COUNTY TROLLEY.

Bids to be Opened at Elizabeth Next Week.

LIKELY TIME EXPECTED.

THE OFFERS MUST COVER THE ESTIMATED COST $300,000.

If Not, the Valuable Franchise Will Not be Given Out and the Whole Scheme May Fall Through—Westfield and Elizabeth Company Withdrawn Application—Cranford People Object.

Bids for the trolley franchise over Westfield avenue, from Elizabeth to this city will be opened by the Union County Board of Freeholders at Elizabeth next week.

The Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company, which is the pioneer in seeking the right to construct such a trolley line by the route passing through Cranford, has withdrawn its application for right of way through that town, in order to change the route. Cranford is ready to grant this company a franchise, but is opposed to the Bergen plan, which contemplates the widening of North avenue and Westfield avenue the entire distance of twelve miles at an estimated cost of $300,000.

The bids will be received at 2:30 o'clock at the Court House in Elizabeth, Aug. 4th. John Kean, as a starter, offered $100,000 last fall for the franchise, and it is expected a lively competition will be witnessed in the bidding.

The estimated cost is $300,000, and if that amount is not offered it is not thought that the franchise will be given out.

CUPID WINS EVANGELIST

APPROPRIATELY, THE MARRIAGE TOOK PLACE IN A PARSONAGE.

Miss Nancy Jordon and Willis Franklin Matthews, a Colored Evangelist, United in Marriage—Many Present.

There was a gathering of friends, many congratulations and a delightful time generally last evening in honor of the marriage of Miss Nancy Jordon and Willis Franklin Matthews, the colored evangelist, which took place at 214 West Seventh street.

The bride was an estimable young colored woman, who has served in the employ of Rev. and Mrs. C. L. Goodrich, at the Congregational church parsonage, where the ceremony took place.

The maid of honor was Miss Mary Lenner, the bridemaids were Miss Lelia Bolden and Miss Harey Jackson. The best man was William Burden, and the usher was Edward Wilson.

The bride was very becomingly attired in white organdie over silk, with silk trimmings and a gracefully arranged veil. Her bouquet was of red and white roses. The maid-of-honor wore pink silk and carried sweet peas. The bridemaids wore white gowns with silk linings and pink ribbons, and carried white and pink roses.

After the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. C. L. Goodrich, the guests to the number of thirty or more, were hospitably entertained by the bride and a delightful evening was spent.

LANDED ON PORTO RICO.

Report of Capt. Higginson Concerning the Action.

COMMENDS AMERICANS.

TROOPS LANDED ON THE ISLAND WITHOUT TROUBLE.

Sailors Cleared Away a Small Body of Spanish Troops and Then All Was Easy—Boats Of Massachusetts Assisted.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Washington, July 27, 12:49 p. m.—The following despatch was received at the War Department this morning from Captain Higginson of the battleship Massachusetts at St. Thomas:

"Arrived here with Gen. Miles and the troops today at 9:15 o'clock. Landed them safely.

"There were no batteries outside of the harbor. The Gloucester then entered the harbor and landed a company of sailors under Lieutenants Huse and Woods, who dispersed a small company of Spaniards.

"They hoisted the American flag. I wish to commend Wainwright and his officers for their gallantry in capturing Guanica.

"The transports discharged the men on board without opposition. They were assisted in landing them by the boats from the Massachusetts.

"Have telegraphed Sampson.

SPAIN'S KING ILL.

He is Suffering from Measles—Fact Has Been Suppressed, Fearing Trouble.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

London, July 27, 10:20 a. m.—A despatch from Madrid says the little Spanish king, Alphonzo, is suffering from a slight attack of measles. The news has been suppressed in Spain, it being feared it might cause trouble at the Spanish capital.

The physicians in attendance are worried because of the fact that the king is naturally delicate and they fear that the present disease may be supplanted by something more serious.

ONE WHEELMAN OBEYED

THE OTHERS FAILED TO APPEAR BEFORE THE CITY JUDGE.

It Was the Opening of the Campaign Against Riders Without Lights—Six Were Ordered to Appear—Two Were Women.

The police started in on their campaign against wheelmen last night, and captured five or six during the evening. The night was a poor one for the work, as there were few riders out, and these were nearly all law abiding citizens who carried their lamps properly lighted or else left the streets before 8:21 o'clock after which lamps had to be lighted.

Of the half-dozen caught without lights, two were women, and none of the six, with one exception, appeared at court this morning in accordance with the officer's request. John Olstrum, who did appear, was allowed to go with a suspension of sentence, as it was very evident that his light had just gone out when he was stopped.

Warrants will be issued for the arrest of the others and they will be haled before the City Judge at once and probably fined as heavily as the law allows.

TEMPERANCE FOLK HERE

GATHERED FROM ALL OVER THE STATE IN QUARTERLY SESSION.

Most Worthy Patriarch Rev. A. G. Lawson, from Camden, Speaks—Hall Trimmed with American and British flags

The quarterly session of the Grand Division of the Sons of Temperance, of New Jersey is in progress today in Red Men's Hall, in the Elkwood Building. They are the guests of Howell Division at dinner.

The session was called to order at 10:30 o'clock by Grand Worthy Patriarch Bodine, of Camden, who presided and read his quarterly report. The report showed that the order stood in about the same condition as it did in April, without much increase in membership.

At 11 o'clock Most Worthy Patriarch Rev. A. G. Lawson, of Camden, was introduced by Past Grand Worthy Patriarch E. K. Drake, of Elizabeth, and Right Grand Scribe Henry B. Howell, of Trenton, for whom Howell Division, of this city, was named. This was Rev. Mr. Lawson's first official visit, and he made a short address.

Right Grand Scribe Henry B. Howell read a letter from President McKinley's private secretary acknowledging the receipt of patriotic resolutions passed by the session at their April meeting.

Grand Scribe VanAken, of New Brunswick and Grand Treasurer Hoagland, of New Brunswick, read satisfactory reports. There are about 60 delegates present from New Brunswick, Dunellen, Newark, Elizabeth, Roselle, Camden and Trenton. At 12:45 they sat down to dinner provided by the ladies of Howell Division. The hall is prettily decorated with British and American flags.

DOEN'T KNOW HIM.

Haverly Says Douglass is Not His Advance Agent—Suggests Fraud.

A young man calling himself George Douglass arrived in this city Monday announcing himself to be the advance agent for J. H. Haverly's Minstrels, who are to appear at Music Hall, August 4. Maze Edwards, manager of Music Hall, has now received a telegram from Haverly, stating that Douglass had sent him a dispatch asking for money, but that he has no acquaintance with any such person. He adds that Dauglass is undoubtedly a fraud, and one who should be looked out for, and suggest that Mr. Edwards have the police investigate the case. Mr. Haverly's own agent, he says, will arrive tomorrow.

A Fatal Fire.

Charles Conover, of Elmwood place, received word yesterday telling him of the death of his uncle, Peter Hoffman, of High Bridge. Mr. Hoffman suffered from the recent disastrous fire at that place and owing to exposure and hard work, was taken ill and his advanced age would not permit of his recovery. The funeral services will be held tomorrow.

To Become a City's Charge.

Mrs. Kelly, of West Fourth street, an aged and poor woman, who has been helped by the local G. A. R. Post and Woman's Relief Corps, will, very soon, be transferred to the City Industrial Home, where she can be more comfortable. Her present residence is not pleasant nor suitable.

A Sensible Move.

The trees along the line of the Brunswick Traction Company on the property of G. W. Metlar, near New Brunswick, have been cut down. John G. Wilson, a conductor of the company, was killed by coming in contact with one of the trees about six weeks ago.

WAS ON THE VERGE OF THE CONFLICT.

Charles Dencklau Returns from Port Antonio, Jamaica.

HAS MANY CURIOS WITH HIM

MADE FRIENDS WITH NEWSPAPER MEN AT THE FRONT.

Port Antonio was the Headquarters for the Correspondents—They Gave Dencklau Trophies from the Battlefield—He was In Charge of a Gang of Plumbers—His Experiences There.

Charles Dencklau, of Boston, has just returned from Port Antonio, off the island of Jamaica, and is visiting his mother, Mrs. Charles Dencklau, of 323 East Second street. Having been directly in the midst of the Spanish-American conflict, he has witnessed all the horrors of war without having been engaged in it, and returned with a number of curious things from the West Indies, among the most interesting being implements of Spanish warfare taken from the scenes of several battles.

Mr. Dencklau is a plumber by trade, and last January was sent in charge of a number of men to Port Antonio, which is a little island belonging to Great Britain, near Jamaica. The men were engaged in putting the plumbing in a large hotel on the island, owned by the Boston Fruit Company, and intended for a winter resort.

Cable communications were established at this hotel with all the world, and during some of the engagements the hotel was a stopping place for the various newspaper men reporting the progress of the war for the New York papers.

The Journal despatch boat, the "Three Friends," ran into Port Antonio every three hours for awhile and soon Mr. Dencklau was well acquainted with the Journal men who were braving the thickest of the fight in their determination to get the news. Being so close to the scenes of battles, these newspaper men had begun collecting arms, cartridges and other relics, some of which they gave to their friends. Mr. Dencklau received part of a shell from a machine shop in Baracoa, which was destroyed by the American troops, also a rusty sword taken from the deck of the Infanta Maria Theresa, a Mauser cartridge taken from the belt of a wounded Spanish soldier at Guantanamo Bay and a Mauser rifle barrel and lock taken from the deck of the Infanta Maria Theresa.

Both sword and gun are rusty and blackened, and look as if they had been in fire. The gun stock is gone, probably burnt away.

Besides these things Mr. Dencklau brought home other curious articles from the islands, none of which, however, are of so much interest to his friends as the Spanish arms. Mrs. Dencklau spent the last three months with her husband, and they both expect to return this winter.

EUCHRE AT THE HUNTERSTON.

A Successful Progressive Euchre Party Held There Saturday Evening.

A progressive euchre party took place Saturday evening at the Hotel Hunterston, which was very largely attended.

Mrs. William Farmer officiated in a very efficient manner during the evening.

The first prize for ladies was drawn by Mrs. Ogden; Mrs. Balsh, second, and Mrs. Meeker, third.

Clarence Smith won first prize for gentlemen; Mr. Broadbent, second, and W. V. R. Smith came in also for the honors by being third.

A vote of thanks was passed to Mrs. Gregory, Mrs. Farmer and Mrs. Balsh for arranging the party so successfully. Supper was provided in the dining room by Mr. Webb, where they all adjourned, thus terminating a very enjoyable evening.

NOT TO WALK WITH SMOKERS.

The Young Women of the W. C. T. U. Take a Strong Stand.

[Special to The Daily Press.]

Asbury Park, July 27—In the W. C. T. U. meeting in Ocean Grove yesterday, Mrs. Kate Raphael made a report and gave an idea of the compact into which the members of the Union have entered, binding themselves not under any circumstances to marry a man who is not a total abstainer and who has not given up smoking.

They also have pledged themselves to accept no invitations to go out walking with a man who smokes cigarettes, cigars or pipes, or who drinks anything stronger than soft drinks.

ADMIRAL SAMPSON'S REPORT

A Graphic Description of the Greatest Naval Battle fo Modern Times

Washington, July 27.--The cabinet discussed the report of Admiral Sampson and Commodore Schley on the destruction of Cervera's fleet anl decided that it should be made public this morning.

The combined report, as stated heretofore, includes those of Captain Evans, Captain Taylor and Captain Clark, making about 7,000 words and telling an intensely interesting story of the great naval battle. Parts of the report, especially that of Commodore Schley, are thrilling in their description, and the remarkable part of all of them is that they show no friction

U. S. Flagship New York, First Rate.
Off Santiago de Cuba, July 15.

The Secretary of the Navy:

Sir: I have the honor to make the following report upon the battle with and the destruction of the Spanish squadron commanded by Admiral Cervera off Santiago de Cuba, on Sunday, July 3, 1898:

2. The enemy's vessels came out of the harbor between 9.35 and 10 a. m., the head of the column and appearing around Cav Smith at 9.31 and emerging from the channel five or six minutes later.

3. The positions of the vessels of my command off Santiago at that moment were as follows: The flagship New York was four miles east of her blockading station, and about seven miles from the harbor entrance. She had started from Siboney, where I intended to land, accompanied by several of my staff, and go to the front and consult with General Shafter. A discussion of the situation and a more definite understanding between us of hte operations proposed had been rendered necessary by the unexpectedly strong resistance of the Spanish garrison of Santiago. I had sent my chief of staff on shore the day before to arrange an interview with General Shafter, who had been suffering from heat prostration. I made arrangements to go to his headquarters and my flagship was in the position mentioned above when the Spanish squadron appeared in the channel. The remaining vessels were in or near their usual blockading positions, distributed in a semi-circle about the harbor entrance, counting from the eastward to the westward in the followin gorder: The Indiana about a mile and a half from shore; the Oregon the New York's place between the two; the Iowa, Texas and Brooklyn, the latter two miles from the shore west of Santiago. The distance of the vessels from the harbor entrance was from two and one-half to four miles, the latter being the limit of day blockading distance. The length of the arc formed by the ships was about eight miles. The Massachusetts had left at 4 a. m. for Guantanamo for coal. Her station was between tht Iowa and Texas. The auxiliaries Gloucester and Viven lay close to the land and nearer the harbor entrance than the large vessels, the Gloucester to the eastward and the Vixen to the westward. The torpedo boat Ericsson was in company with the flagship and remained with her during the chase until ordered to discontinue, when she rendered very efficient service in rescuing prisoners from the burning Vizcaya. I inclose a diagram showing approximately the positions of the vessels as described above.

ADMIRAL SAMPSON.

4. The Spanish vessels came rapidly out of the harbor at a speed estimated at from eight to ten knots, and in the following order: Infanta Maria Teresa, flagship, Vizcaya, Cristobal Colon and the Almirante Oquendo. The distance between these ships was about 800 yards, which means that, from the time the first one became visible in the upper reach of the channel until the last one was out of the harbor, an interval of only about twelve minutes elapsed. Following the Oquendo, at a distance of about 1,200 yards, came the torpedo boat destroyer Pluton and after her the Furor. The armored cruisers, as rapidly as they could bring their guns to bear, opened a vigorous fire upon the blockading vessels and emerged from the channel shrouded in the smoke of their guns.

5. The men of our ships in front of the port were at Sunday "quarters for instruction." The signal was male simultaneously from several vessels, "The Enemy's Ships Escaping," and general quarters were sounded. The men cheered as they sprang to their guns, and fire was opened probably within eight minutes by the vessels whose guns commanded the entrance. The New York turned about and steamed for the escaping fleet, flying the signal "Close in toward harbor entrances and attack vessels," and gradually increasing speed, until toward the end of the chase she was making sixteen and one-half knots and was rapidly closing in on the Cristobal Colon. She was not, at any time, within range of the heavy Spanish ships, and her only part in the firing was to receive the undivided fire from the forts in passing the harbor entrance and to fire a few shots at one of the destroyers, thought at that moment to be attempting to escape from the Gloucester.

6. The Spanish vessels upon clearing the harbor, turned to the westward in column, increasing their speed to the full power of their engines. The heavy blockading vessels which had closed in toward the Morro at the instant of the enemy's appearance, and at their best speed, delivered a rapid fire, well sustained and silenced the Spanish fire. The initial speed of the Spaniards carried them rapidly past the blockading vessels, and the battle developed into a chase in which the Brooklyn and the Texas had at the start the advantage of position. The Brooklyn maintained this lead. The Oregon, steaming at amazing speed from the commencement of the action, took first place. The Iowa and the Indiana, having done good work, and not having the speed of the other ships, were directed by me, in succession, at about the time the Vizcaya was beached, to drop out of the chase and resume blockading station. These vessels rescued many prisoners. The Vixen, finding that the rush of the Spanish ships would put her between two fires, ran outside of our column and remained there during the battle and chase.

7. The skillful handling and gallant fighting of the Gloucester excited the admiration of everyone who witnessed it, and merits the commendation of the navy department. She is a fast and entirely unprotected auxiliary vessel--the yacht Corsair--and has a good battery of light rapid fire guns. She was lying about two miles from the harbor entrance, to the southward anl eastward and immediately steamed in, opening fire upon the largs ships. Anticipating the appearance of the Pluton and Furor, the Gloucester was slowed, thereby gaining more rapidly in high pressure of steam, and when the destroyers came out she steamed for them at full speed and was able to close at short range, where her fire was accurate, deadly and of great volume. During this fight the Gloucester was under the fire of the Socapa battery. Within twenty minutes from the time they emerged from Santiago harbor the careers of the Pluton and Furor were ended, and two-thirds of their people killed. The Furor was beached and sunk in the surf; the Pluton sank in deep water a few minutes later. The destroyers probably suffered much injury from the fire of the secondary batteries of the battleships Iowa, Indiana and Texas, yet I think a very considerable factor in their speedy destruction was the fire, at close range, of the Gloucester's battery. After rescuing the survivors of the destroyers, the Gloucester did excellent service in landing and securing the crew of the Infanta Maria Teresa.

8. The method of escape attempted by the Spaniards--all steering in the same direction and in formation--removed all tactical doubts of difficulties and made plain the duty of every United States vessel to close in, immediately engage and pursue. This was promptly and effectively done. As already stated the first rush of the Spanish squadron carried it past a number of the blockading ships, which could not immediately work up to their best speed. But they suffered heavily in passing, and the Maria Teresa and the Oquenlo were probably set on fire by shells fired during the first fifteen minutes of the engagement. It was afterwards learned that the Maria Teresa's firemain had been cut by one of our first shots, and that she was unable to extinguish fire. With large volumes of smoke arising from their lower decks aft these vessels gave up both fight and flight and ran in on the beach--the Maria Teresa about 10.15 a. m., at Nima, six and one-half miles from Santiago harbor entrance, and the Oquenlo about 10.30 a. m., at Juan Gonzales, seven miles from the port.

9. The Vizcaya was still under the fire of the leading vessels; the Cristobal Colon had drawn ahead, leading the chase, and soon passed beyond the range of the guns of the leading American ships. The Vizcaya was soon set on fire, and, at 11.15 she turnel in shore and was beached at Ascerraderos, fifteen miles from Santiago, burning fiercely, and with her reserves of ammunition on deck already beginning to explode. When about ten miles west of Santiago, the Indiana had been signalled to go back to the harbor entrance, and at Ascerraderos the Iowa was signalled to "Resume blockading station." The Iowa, assisted by the Ericsson and the Hist, took off the crew of the Vizcaya, while the Harvard and the Gloucester rescued those of the Infanta Maria Teresa and the Almirante Oquendo. This rescue of prisoners, including the wounded from the burning Spanish vessels, was the occasion of some of the most daring and gallant conduct of the day. The ships were burning fore and aft, their guns and reserve ammunition were exploding, and it was not known at what moment the fire would reach the main magazines. In addition to this a heavy surf was running just inside of the Spanish ships. But no risk deterred our officers and men until their work of humanity was complete.

10. There remained now of the Spanish ships only the Cristobal Colon; but she was their best and fastest vessel. Forced by the situation to hug the Cuban coast, her only chance of escape was by superior and sustained speed. When the Vizcaya went ashore the Colon was about six miles ahead of the Brooklyn and the Oregon, but her spurt was finished and the American ships were now gaining upon her. Behind the Broklyn and the Oregon came the Texas, Vixen and New York. It was evidentfr om the bridge of the New York that all the American ships were gradually overhauling the chase, and that she had no chance of escape. At 12.50 the Brooklyn and Oregon opened fire and got her range—the Oregon's heavy shell striking beyond her—and at 1.20 she gave up without firing another shot, hauled down her colors and ran ashore at Rio Torquino, 48 miles from Santiago. Captain Cook of the Brooklyn went on board to receive the surrender. While the boat was alongside I came up in the New York, received his report, and placed the Oregon in charge of the wreck to save her if possible, and directed the prisoners to be transferred to the Resolute which had followed the chase. Commodore Schley, whose chief of staff had gone on board to receive the surrender, had directed that all their personal effects should be retained by the officers. This order I did not modify.

The object of the blockade of Cervera's squadron was fully accomplished, and each individual bore well his part in it, the commodore in command of the second division, the captains of the ships, their officers and men.

ANOTHER SURRENDER

Spanish Army at Holguin About Ready to Yield.

AFFAIRS AT GUANTANAMO

Many Spanish Soldiers Ill. Our Ships in Guantanamo Harbor. Effect of Shells at the Bombardment at Santiago. Th Terms of Surrender Violated by Spaniards Who Sunk a Spanish Gunboat. An Uncommen Promotion.

Guantanamo Bay, Santiago de Cuba, July 26.--It is difficult to see how the large body of Spanish troops at Holguin can fail to surrender very soon, although reinforced by the Spanish forces from Gibara. Holguin is one of the commanding points in eastern Cuba, and the surrender of its garrison will be an important event of the war. News from there is expected soon, and upon it will depend some of the plans of our commanders.

The Vixen and Suwanee returned to Santiago yesterday morning, convoying the prize ships brought here for disinfection. The main body of the fleet is here, coaling and cleaning, as well as the facilities of the bay will permit.

The movements of the other ships under Rear Admiral Sampson's command, except those engaged in the Porto Rico expedition, depend upon the decision of the authorities at Washington, and the impression is growing among the naval officers of high rank in these waters that it is not advisable to send a fleet to Spain without previously enabling the ships to undergo thorough preparation, including going into dry dock in several cases.

The list of vessels in Guantanamo bay up to yesterday morning included the flagship New York, the Brooklyn, Iowa, Indiana, Oregon, Marblehead, Detroit, Newark, Yankton, Hornet, Ericsson, Rogers, Wampatuck, Samoset, Vesuvius, Celtic, Vulcan, Alvarado, five colliers and one transport.

A Boston fruit steamer arrived here yesterday morning loaded with fruit, in consequence of a request upon the part of Rear Admiral Sampson, but the steamer refused to sell anything, and to each ship was given a supply of fruit, which was much appreciated.

No news has been received here from Porto Rico.

Colonel Ewers, who was sent by General Shafter to receive the surrender of the 5,000 Spanish troops at Guantanamo, arrived here on Sunday night, with two of General Toral's officers, and proceeded to Caimanera and Guantanamo yesterday. The colonel expected to return last night. It is said that 1,700 of the Spanish troops of the Guantanamo district are on the sick list. After they have surrendered the work of tending the sick, feeding the healthy and maintaining order among the prisoners will probably devolve upon the navy.

The Nipe bay engagement was quite hot, but there were no casualties on the American side. The Spanish gunboat Jorge Juan was riddled by our shells. It is believed that about 200 men deserted from her after opening the Kingston valves.

A fleet bulletin just issued in regard to the investigation of the effect of the navy's shells at the bombardment of Santiago de Cuba says: "Twelve houses were completely wrecked inside and one house was burned. Sixteen eight-inch shells struck within three blocks on the Calle de Marina. These excavated the ground to a depth of about four feet and to a length of about ten feet. The street was macadamized. It is judged from the fact that many of them struck near the water's edge that a number of the shells must have gone into the bay. Army officers have stated that thirty or forty went beyond the northern edge of the bay into the Spanish lines.

"A dozen or more of the shells had not exploded. In four of them the base had been simply blown out. In one case, a four-inch shell which was probably a stray shell fired during the demonstration at Aguadores on July 1, had gone through a tree and had exploded in the ground beyond.

"When the severe effect of the eight-inch shells is considered, it is a matter for congratulation that it was not necessary to continue the bombardment longer and fire thirteen-inch shells, as the squadron had prepared to do. The effect of these latter would undoubtedly have been of a most disastrous character to the town.

"The board has completed its investigation and will make a detailed report later."

The Spaniards last night sunk the Spanish gunboat Sandoval, which has been lying near Caimanera. This is looked upon as being a gross breach of the terms of the surrender, which the Spaniards then had knowledge of, especially considering the fact that food has been sent by the United States navy into Caimanera.

First Sergeant of Marines Kinnie of the New York, went North yesterday evening on the Texas, to get his commission as second lieutenant of marines. This is almost the only case of such promotion on record in this branch of the service.

Orders to Gen. Lee.

Washington, July 27.--Orders have been issued for the equipment of the Seventh army corps with arms and all necessary material for active service, and it is understood that the corps will be sent to Porto Rico.

The Seventh corps is commanded by Major General Fitzhugh Lee and is encamped at Jacksonville. It consists of about 10,000 men.

Safe Conduct for Spanish Steamers

Gibraltar, July 27.--In accordance with instructions received from Washington, the United States consular agent here has issued safe conducts to the Spanish steamers Isla de Luzon and Isla de Panay, now at Cadiz, to proceed to Santiago de Cuba and return to Spain with the surrendered Spanish troops.

To Visit Our Military Hospitals.

Washington, July 27.--At the request of the German embassy the secretary of war has granted permission to medical officers of the imperial army to visit American military hospitals.

CHESS TOURNAMENT CLOSED

It Results in a Tie Between Pillsbury and Tarrasch.

Vienna, July 26.--With yesterday's play in the thirty-eighth and final round of the international chess tournament ended the most remarkable and exciting contest that has ever occurred in the annals of the royal game, and ended in such a way as to give the most general satisfaction to all who have followed the course of the long and stubborn struggle. Chief honors for the time being belong equally to Pillsbury, America's young champion, and Dr. Tarrasch, the first player of Germany, who finished up their record breaking race with scores once more on a level. The friends of both freely concede the credit as much to one as to the other, for each has made grand and untiring efforts and put up a remarkably game fight. It remains, however, for them to play a test match of four games to determine the individual supremacy between them, as well as the possession of the first prize of $1,500. The first game of this contest will be started to-morrow morning and it is needless to say that the opening of hostilities is eagerly looked forward to. The games must of necessity contain great chess, but of the outcome of the duel no one cares to predict.

DISPOSITION OF SHAFTER'S ARNY

To Be Brought to Montauk Point to Recuperate.

Washington, July 27.--The troops at Santiago under General Shafter will be brought home in transports and encamped at Montauk Point, N. Y. The instructions to General Shafter caution him to await the extermination of the yellow fever, and special stress is placed on the necessity of exercising the greatest care that the disease be kept out of the transports which visit Santiago. The troops held in reserve at Montauk Point will undoubtedly be of the large army destined for Havana province in the autumn. The military officials expect that the severest campaign of the land forces will be that before Havana, where the enemy is especially powerful, and the fortifications substantial. It is still a question whether the operations against the Spanish in Havana shall be by aggressive attack or siege. A great deal depends upon the blockade now in force. If this is maintained strictly by the navy, the work of the army will be easier than if--as is charged in some quarters--the Spaniards are able to evade the vigilance of the American ships.

A PRISON INQUIRY.

Terrible Conditions Revealed in Santiago Prisons.

Santiago de Cuba, via Hayti, July 26.--General Shafter recently appointed a prison commission to inspect the Spanish prisons. They were found to be in the most terrible condition. Prisoners were discovered in some of them who have been confined for years without trial for crimes the maximum punishment for which under Spanish law would be two months. The commission will sit daily until these cases can be reviewed.

Several of the Spanish justices have sent in their resignations to General Shafter, saying that they cannot take the oath of allegiance. The high courts of justice will be closed until other appointments can be made.

Orders for Grant's Troops.

Chattanooga, Tenn., July 27.--Orders were received yesterday for General Grant's command, the Third brigade, to leave at once for Newport News. The regiments immediately prepared to break camp and board cars at Rossville.

Soon after the Third brigade leaves the First brigade of the Second division will leave.

Unless some changes are made the Twelfth will be the only New York regiment to move. General Wade says that probably ten days or more will be consumed in moving the Second and Third divisions of the First corps.

Miss Schley Requested to Leave.

London, July 27.--The papers here continue to confuse Miss Jessie Schley, daughter of Charles Schley of Milwaukee, and a cousin of Commodore Schley with Miss Shafter. Miss Schley recently arrived in Madrid on a peace mission, without the approval of her father, but neither the queen regent nor any responsible person would receive her. It was added that she will probably be requested to depart as early as possible. A dispatch from Madrid this morning says "Miss Shafter" has been requested to leave Spain forthwith.

Cumberland Nail and Iron Company Fails

Bridgeton, July 27.--The Cumberland Nail and Iron Company went into the hands of a receiver yesterday. The court appointed former Mayor John Smalley.

Half a million dollars' worth of property is involved. The mortgage against the plant amounts to $175,000.

Kenney Jury Disagrees.

Wilmington, Del., July 27.--The jury in the case of Senator Kenney were unable to agree upon a verdict and were discharged.

It is said that since the case went to the jury that about twenty-five ballots were taken, and in nearly every instance the vote stood 7 to 5 for acquittal.

LANDED AT PORTO RICO

The Stars and Stripes Now Float Over Another Spanish Island.

ONLY SLIGHT RESISTANCE

The Expedition Under Gen. Miles Reached Porto Rico Monday Morning. A Landing Was Effected at Guanico Near Ponce. The Spanish Troops Put Up a Fight but Were Soon Driven Off.

Port of Guanico, Porto Rico, July 25 (2 p. m.), via St. Thomas, July 26 (morning).--The United States military expedition, under command of Major General Nelson A. Miles, commanding the army of the United States, which left Guantanamo bay during the evening of Thursday last, July 21, was landed here successfully to-day, after a skirmish between a detachment of the Spanish troops and a crew of thirty belonging to the launch of the United States auxiliary gunboat Gloucester, formerly J. Pierpont Morgan's steam yacht Corsair.

Four of the Spaniards were killed but no Americans wert hurt.

The American troops will be pushed forward promptly in order to capture the railroad leading to Ponce, which is only about ten miles east of this place.

From Ponce there is an excellent military road running eighty-five miles north to San Juan de Porto Rico, the capital of the island.

The whole of General Brooke's force, with the New Orleans, Annapolis, Cincinnati, Leyden and Wasp, are expected here within twenty-four hours.

The ships left Guantanamo bay suddenly on Thursday evening, with the Massachusetts, commanded by Captain F. J. Higginson, leading. Captain Higginson was in charge of the naval expedition, which consisted of the Columbia, Dixie, Gloucester and Yale. General Miles was on board of the last named vessel. The troops were on board the transports Nueces, Lampasas, Comanche, Rita, Unionist, Stillwater, City of Macon and Specialist.

The voyage from Guantanamo bay to this port was uneventful.

At noon yesterday General Miles called for a consultation, announcing that he was determined not to go by San Juan cape, but to go by Mona passage instead, land there and surprise the enemy.

The course was then changed and the Dixie was sent to warn General Brooke at Cape San Juan.

Port Guanico (also written Guanica) has been fully described by Lieutenant Whitney of General Miles's staff, who recently made an adventurous tour of Porto Rico.

How the Landing Was Made.

Port of Guanico, July 26.--Early this morning the Gloucester, in charge of Lieutenant Commander Wainwright, steamed into Guanico harbor, in order to reconnoitre the place. With the fleet waiting outside, the Gloucester braved the mines which were supposed to be in this harbor, and, upon sounding, found that there were five fathoms of water close in shore.

Guanico bay is a quiet place, surrounded by cultivated lands. In the rear are high mountains, and close to the beach nestles a village of about twenty houses.

The Spaniards were completely taken by surprise. Almost the first they knew of the approach of the army of invasion was the announcement contained in the firing of a gun from the Gloucester, demanding that the Spaniards haul down the flag of Spain.

The flag floated from a flagstaff in front of a block house standing to the east of the village.

The first couple of three-pounders were fired into the hills, right and left of the bay.

The fighting yacht purposely avoided firing into the town.

The Gloucester then hove to within about six hundred yards of the shore and lowered a launch, having on board a Colt rapid fire gun and thirty men under the command of Lieutenant Huse.

The boat was sent ashore without encountering any opposition.

Quartermaster Beck thereupon told Yeoman Lacy to haul down the Spanish flag, which was done, and they then raised on the flag staff the first United States flag to float over Porto Rican soil.

Suddenly, about thirty Spaniards opened fire with Mauser rifles on the American party. Lieutenant Huse and his men responded with great gallantry, the Colt gun doing effective work.

Normon, who received Admiral Cervera's surrender, and Wood, a volunteer lieutenant, shared the honors with Lieutenant Huse.

Almost immediately after the Spaniards fired on the Americans, the Gloucester opened fire with all her three and six-pounders, which could be brought to bear, shelling the town.

The Remains of Two Heroes.

Fortress Monroe, Va., July 27.--The body of Hamilton Fish, Jr., sergeant of Rough Riders, who was killed at Santiago, was taken to New York yesterday morning by his father, Mr. Nicholas Fish, who brought it from Cuba. The small crowd on the wharf at the time the body was taken aboard the ferryboat reverently stood uncovered while it was borne past.

The body of A. K. Capron, captain of Rough Riders, was sent to Washington last night.

White's Sentence Approved.

Washington, July 27.--Secretary Long has approved the findings and sentence in the case of Civil Engineer U. S. G. White of the navy, tried before a general court martial at Brooklyn for negligence while in charge of the construction of timber dock No. 3. Mr. White will be suspended for three years and retain his present position in the grade of civil engineer until he shall have lost two numbers.

Garranza Gone at Last.

Montreal, July 27.--It has been learned that Lieutenant Ramon Carranza, the Spanish spy, sailed from Quebec on Sunday last. He did not sail on the Ottoman with Senor du Bosc two weeks ago on account of having heard that the United States government had laid plans to kidnap him. He spent the intervening time in a little village near Quebec.

A PEACE MESSAGE.

French Ambassador Carried It to the President Yesterday.

Washington, July 27.--This official statement was given out at the White House late yesterday:

"The French ambassador, on behalf of the government of Spain, and by direction of the Spanish minister for foreign affairs, presented to the president this afternoon at the White House a message from the Spanish government looking to the termination of the war and the settlement of terms of peace."

Owing to the importance of the communication the ambassador adopted the usual diplomatic procedure of reading the communication from the original in French, the translation being submitted by M. Thiebeaut.

In the conversation which followed the reading of the proposition neither the president nor the ambassador entered upon the question of the terms of peace.

The instructions of the ambassador had confined him to the one essential point of opening peace negotiations and it was evident that the president desired to consider the proposition at this moment before giving any definite reply.

The Spanish proposition was considered at a meeting of the cabinet, held after Ambassador Cambon's departure. It is not expected that a definite answer to Ambassador Cambon's representations will be drafted at once, but further consideration will be given to it.

When it became known that Secretary of State Day, the French ambassador, M. Cambon, and his first secretary, M. Thibeaut, were in conference with the president, and that the interview had been arranged for between Secretary Day and M. Thibeaut, it was construed everywhere to mean that proposals of peace were under consideration.

This conference began at the White House at half past three o'clock.

The conference of the French ambassador and Secretary Day with the president lasted an hour.

Spain's peace proposals find the United States with a foothold in Porto Rico.

It is the present temper of the officials to require the independence of Cuba, the cession of Porto Rico and Guajan island to the United States, and a coaling station in the Philippines.

The manner in which the peace negotiations shall be conducted, in case the United States accepts Spain's tender, has not been determined upon, but it is understood that the method likely to be adopted is to have General Horace Porter, United States ambassador at Paris, and Senor Leon Castillo, the Spanish ambassador at Paris, carry forward the negotiations from the point arrived at by the president and Ambassador Cambon.

The Olivette Sets Sail.

New York, July 27.--The United States transport Olivette, which has been for the past week taking on supplies for the wounded soldiers at the front, sailed from Brooklyn last night for Santiago. The officers in command declare that the Olivette is the best equipped supply ship that has been sent as yet to the seat of war. In her hold are stored all manner of delicacies, and the medical department has put on board a large quantity of drugs and hospital supplies.

The supplies shipped by the transport are intended for all branches of the service. While the greater part of her cargo will be devoted to ameliorating the condition of the wounded at the hospitals in El Caney and Santiago, the ship also carries a great many tents and much clothing, which will be most welcome to the soldiers encamped in and about our new Cuban city.

A corps of army surgeons will go to Santiago by the transport, and they will be accompanied by thirty-four women nurses, twenty of whom are negroes. Major C. C. Sniffen of the paymaster's department, who is to pay the soldiers at Santiago, had in his custody when the Olivette sailed $750,000. He took with him as assistants four army paymasters and four pay clerks. The money is in gold and was removed from the sub-treasury Monday afternoon upon a truck surrounded by a strong guard of marines from the transport.

Icebergs Numerous.

New York, July 27.--Icebergs are unusually thick just now off the banks of Newfoundland. Yesterday the German steamer Pica came to port and reported having seen 32 of the wandering glaciers, a number of them over 300 feet high. The Hogan line steamer Masconomo arrived here to-day from Sunderland, July 12, on her maiden trip. Captain John Jenkins, who brought her in, says that 44 icebergs were sighted during the voyage, the largest being between latitude 50.50, longitude 46, and latitude 48, longitude 50.

An Earthquake at Juneau.

Juneau, Alaska, July 21 (via Port Townsend, Wash., July 26).--The steamer Dora came in last night with a few Valdes passengers, and a number from Cook's inlet. Not much progress in mining has been made on the inlet this season owing to the high water. The Dora picked up a big scow adrift near the entrance of Cook's inlet. The scow had aboard about 180 tons of coal and a large cargo of lumber. Juneau had two shocks of earthquake yesterday morning, but no damage was done.

The Casualties at Santiago.

Washington, July 27.--General Shafter's detailed report of the American casualties in the battle of Santiago has been received at the war department, and is now being prepared for publication. The total number of casualties was 1,595. Recapitulated, the American losses were: Killed, 23 officers and 208 enlisted men; wounded, 80 officers and 1,203 men; missing, 81 men. The missing are supposed to be dead, as, so far as known, the Spanish forces took no prisoners.

Havana Cable Restriction.

New York, July 27.--The central cable office of the Western Union Telegraph Company advises that after today all messages to or from Havana must be in the Spanish or English language, by order of the United States government.

Feeding the Soldiers.

From the different military camps, State and National, there come reports of the hardships that the volunteer soldiers are enduring. In some locations the food is said to be of poor quality, in others there is little food of any kind. The water supply is complained of. New Jersey, too, is listening to complaints of the same order. Soldiers are now writing from Fort Hancock that their food supply is limited and of a poor quality. Then again other Jersey boys encamped at the same fort say that they are receiving excellent treatment. It is rather difficult to understand just what the situation is at Fort Hancock. Nobody expected that the life in the army was to be a luxurious one and that the rations would equal those at home. Nevertheless, it is not the intention of either State or National authorities to starve the Nation's sons or give them anything that is not strictly wholesome.

If the situation at Fort Hancock is really as bad as some are inclined to believe, then an investigation should be made without delay and the blame for the trouble located and the evil corrected. It is not encouraging to fight for one's country and be half starved when that is not necessary. It is possible, however, that some of our boys are inclined to exaggerate the situation and make a mountain out of a molehill.

Our Good Name.

It is sad, indeed, when the fair fame of Union county is dragged into the mire by one of her citizens who happens to wield the pen in an editorial sanctum. This time our friend in the fair town of Westfield, the editor of the Union County Standard, has gleaned from the news of the county several affrays that cause his usual good nature to drop dangerously near the zero point and to relieve itself in the following disheartening paragraph:

Fighting seems to be the "proper thing" just now in this part of the county. A family fight here Sunday night, a "free for all" at Cranford the same night, and now comes the report that an Italian "mix up" occurred at Graceland Sunday afternoon, in which one of the men was stabbed in the arm. No arrests have been made in either of the three cases.

Never mind, Editor Pearsall, it is said that it is always darkest before dawn. Perhaps even now the county will suddenly develop some traits of wonderland goodness.

At any rate, spare the name and fame of Union county, and if "copy" runs short and you need a paragraph to complete the column, just review the good things that have happened here of late—the fresh air camps, the Red Cross benefits, and all the other worthy happenings.

Cranford Redeems Herself.

Cranford has redeemed herself. Her doughty little editor of the Cranford Chronicle appreciates the fact and heralds it forth in an inspired paragraph in his editorial columns. The carnival, that event of past years, is not to be. Some said that the Cranford folk were slow, but they did not look behind the mask that hid the motives of the promoter of the carnival. Now they have been unmasked. Instead of a carnival Cranford is to have a river fete which, as The Chronicle so aptly says, "Will not only give an evening of pleasure to the townspeople and their guests but will aid the Red Cross Society in its work.

WOUNDED LEAVING THE OLIVETTE.

One of the most touching incidents of the war with Spain was the landing of the wounded from the Olivette at Brooklyn. Thousands of those who had seen the brave boys marching gaily through the streets on the way to the front at times during the past three months beheld the other side of the picture then—the saddest side.

A Candid Critic.

Felix Weingartner, an eminent German conductor, has uttered some interesting opinions apropos of the London opera season, where he heard the most perfect and perfectly trained voices in the world singing in the Wagner music dramas. Wagner's musical theory was a revolt from the old operatic school of "coloratur" singing, acrobatic vocalism and mere tunefulness on the lyric stage. He composed operas or music dramas to embody through this art vehicle the workings of human emotion along lines of definite action, using all the other arts as background and accessory, raising the theory of Gluck, his predecessor, to a higher power. But in his disdain of the defects of the old Italian school he also ignored its beauties, particularly the exquisite fascination of sensuous charm which perfectly sung melody has for the music lover. He taught that mere singing was a subordinate feature of opera, the majority of German musicians became his disciples, and German singers tended to care less and less for beauty of tone and finish of vocal style. When Weingartner, the critic in evidence and a strong Wagnerite, for the first time heard the matchless singing of the Covent Garden artists, it came on him as a delicious revelation. He was fain to acknowledge that after all singing as such is the paramount charm in the effect of the music stage, and that without it opera is but "sounding brass and a tinkling cymbal," however much it may embody the virtues of faith and hope. His judgment has the ring of truth. Great as was the genius of Wagner, genuine and farreaching as were many of the art truths he enforced, there is a distinct reaction against the hard extravagance of many of his pet theories as a matter of executive practice.

The sentence of Mrs. Martha Place, the Brooklyn murderess, to the electric chair, unless commuted, will be the first instance of this kind of capital punishment in the case of a woman. Natural as is one's sentimental aversion to the capital punishment of women, the circumstances in the Place crime were such as to extinguish all pity. If legal taking of life is ever right, this is one of the instances.

The "fake" interviews with Admiral Cervera sent broadcast through the land would have stamped him as a garrulous old woman in uniform instead of a proud and gallant gentleman heartbroken over the misfortune of war. They have made hotter war on his dignity and reputation than did Schley's guns.

The price of modern warmaking is well illustrated in the case of the Brooklyn in the recent naval engagement. The missiles she hurled at the Vizcaya in a few minutes cost $31,000.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Two prominent citizens of Netherwood engaged in a little argument in front of Emery's Hotel in Scotch Plains Friday night, that came near ending in blows. Bad words are said to have flown around like chaff and had it not been for the interference of their friends, a disgraceful fight would have occurred.

While the repairs made to Park avehue under the railroad bridge may be in accordance with the best principles of road making, they certainly do not please the wheelmen of the city. There are numerous stones of fair size lying about the roadway that make wheeling there unpleasant and even dangerous at night. To one who is unaccustomed to the city, the stones are apt to be discovered through the agency of a tumble.

The sight of one of Uncle Sam's soldier boys in his blue regimentals is now attracting little or no attention. When the war first opened the sight of a blue coat caused many heads to turn but they are fast becoming frequent even here in Plainfield, and the soldier boy no longer is considered a great curiosity. He has, however, to answer a multitude of questions, considering everything that has happened, is likely to happen and of which there is not the slightest likelihood of happening. He is expected to know everything about the war or else his friends are greviously disappointed.

Not a day passes but there are several applications for work at the local factories, some times the applications amount up to over a score. Some of the men in search of work are from this city, others have been traveling about this section, meeting with refusals at every hand but still pressing on with the hope that the next one may result in steady work. While once in a while there is a vacancy that can be filled, most of the workmen are turned away. They include not only common laborers but skilled mechanics who ordinarily command high wages. They are now willing to work for almost anything that will keep body and soul together.

There are queer signs displayed in every city, which find their way into print, and Grand Rapids has its share, but the palm is yielded to the following, which has drifted in from the far East. Mrs. Marshal, an indigent widow, went into the laundry business on a small scale. She had her sign painted upon the shutters of her front window like this:

No I
Mrs. Mar shall La undress
All work punctually done
Open at 7 o'clock
See specimens in this window.

The next morning when she went out to see what caused the crowd in waiting there, she found that the left blind had been blown back by the wind and the sign hardly read as she meant it should, although it accounted for the presence of the crowd.—Herald, Grand Rapids.

Ann Ford, who was discharged this week after spending ninety days in the Union county jail, holds the record for time served in that institution. She has been sentenced fifty-eight times to terms of either sixty or ninety days, chiefly the latter, and the total time she has served would aggregate over eleven years. All her sentences have been for drunkenness and disorderly conduct. Mrs. Ford is now about sixty-three years old. She was one of the pioneer settlers at Elizabethport. Her husband has been dead a number of years, and her oldest son, ashamed of his mother's habits, went to Montreal about fifteen years ago and now occupies a prominent position in the Singer Sewing Machine Works there. All of Ann's children have left Elizabethport, because of her intemperate habits, and all are doing well in other places. She still, however, retains some property in Elizabeth.

Miss Bessie Frazee, of Greenbrook, has gone to Newark, where she will spend the summer.

Walter G. Runyon, of North avenue, has returned from a short business trip out of town.

Mrs. J. W. Griggs is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Staats, of North avenue.

Mrs. Frank Wynkoop is visiting relatives at Doylestown, Pa., for a short time.

Miss Mabel Walker, of Greenbrook, has been entertaining friends from Westfield.

Miss Lillian Staats, of North avenue, will enjoy a week's vacation in August.

Squire Luckey and family spent yesterday in Plainfield with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Corle, of Plainfield, were visitors in town yesterday.

Mrs. Lulu Beetham, of Greenbrook, is entertaining friends from Plainfield.

Mrs. Abbott, of Church street, has been visiting Bound Brook friends.

Miss Nellie Brown was the guest of relatives in Plainfield yesterday.

NEW MARKET.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

New Market, July 27—The marriage of Miss Maude Titsworth, of this place, to Prof. Green, of Brooklyn, will be celebrated this evening at the home of the bride's mother. The wedding will be attended by only the near relatives of the contracting parties.

The marriage of Miss Hannah Lillian Larkin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Larkin, of this place, to Jay William Crofoot, of Alfred, N. Y., will take place Tuesday, August 2d, in the Seventh-Day Baptist church, at 12 o'clock noon.

There will be an important meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the First Baptist church next Friday afternoon in the church.

There were several boating parties on the lake yesterday afternoon, and a number of fishermen were seen along the banks of the lake.

Loren Fletcher, of Boston, who has been visiting his parents, Rev. and Mrs. Frank Fletcher, has returned home.

Mrs. Clarence White, of Red Bank, has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Coriell.

It is expected that the new addition to the Public School will be completed next week.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Johnston spent Tuesday with relatives in Plainfield.

Mrs. George Stillger is entertaining her niece and nephew from Brooklyn.

Miss Minnie Squires, of Rahway, visited friends in town Monday.

Robert Walpole and son spent Monday crabbing at Elizabethport.

Miss Minnie Hosinger is enjoying a week's vacation.

Mrs. Nancy Wilcox is quite ill at her home.

WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Westfield, July 27.—There is a great deal of talk here in relation to the way that the Board of Health quarantines cases of contagious diseases. A case in point is the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Hohenstein, on Prospect street. Their little daughter has the diphtheria and a card has been tacked to the house but the members of the family come and go at their pleasure and are not bothered by the Health Inspector and this the Board calls quarantining a house.

Hugh McGilvery, who was one of the fighters in the "racket" that took place Sunday night, is laid up with a broken shoulder blade and his brother Gus has left the town.

The Township Committee holds its regular monthly meeting Friday evening.

LINCOLN.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Lincoln, July 27.—A number of the people of this town held a meeting a few evenings ago, and organized a branch of the Christian Endeavor Society with Miss Gertrude Wrench and Miss Etta Naylor as promoters. The next meeting will be held in the school hall this evening, when arrangements will be completed for a musical and literary entertainment to be given during the latter part of August.

Two men have been examining the new stores on the Boulevard with the object of opening a first-class restaurant with pool room attached.

It is a gratifying sight to Lincoln residents to witness this week the laying of the long looked-for trolley tracks along the Boulevard.

William Gullick, foreman of the polishing department, returned Monday evening after spending three days with friends in Newark.

Henry Othmer, of New York City, spent Sunday in town with his brother-in-law, Fritz Brugger.

Miss Ella Wagner has been confined to the house during the past few days with an attack of malaria.

THEATRICAL.

Current Dramatic Attractions That Plainfielders Can Witness.

Sullivan's Troubadours continued their successful performance in Stillman Music Hall last evening. The programme was an entire different one from that presented Monday night and found as great favor with the audience. The showery weather had its effect on the size of the audience which was a little smaller than that of Monday night. Considering the night, however, the showing was good. Sullivan gave selections from "The Marble Heart" very satisfactorily. The performance closed with Nelson's farce comedy, "The Secret," a very laughable affair.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

Union is Strength

—says the proverb. A child can break a single twig with ease, but a strong man could not break many if tied together.

The strength of this great Piano business lies in the union of many good features. It is because of the irresistible number of advantages a purchaser secures here that we do our immense trade.

It is not merely money saving, or best Pianos, or easiest terms, or greatest satisfaction that brings nine out of ten buyers to us, but it is all of these qualities combined; these advantages are real and actual.

Pay us TEN DOLLARS and you can have a Piano at once.

IS A BORN SOLDIER.

Brigadier General Charles King Noted for Bravery.

The war has made few men as happy as Ca[illegible] (now brigadier general) Charl[illegible] the novelist. It will interfere [illegible] his literary work, but successful as he has been with the pen, his friends say that his larger love is for the sword. In all the years of his retirement he has never ceased to be a soldier, and in that capacity has found as much to do in his community as his working hours would allow him to.

He is a small man for a warrior, being not more than five feet four inches in height, but every inch is a soldier. He is as straight as the traditional Indian, and seems taller on that account, as all men of military carriage do.

CHARLES KING.

Captain Charles King was born October 12, 1844, at Albany, N. Y. He comes of a family that is distinguished in literature and politics. His father, Rufus King, was for some years minister resident for pontifical states at Rome, and during the civil war became brigadier general of volunteers. His grandfather, Charles King, LL. D., was president of Columbia College. His great grandfather, Rufus King, was one of the signers of the Constitution, was long United States senator from the state of New York, and was twice minister at the court of St. James. On his mother's side Captain King is descended from the Indian apostle, John Eliot.

One year after the birth of his son, Rufus King resigned from the engineer corps of the army and removed to Milwaukee, Wis., to become editor and proprietor of the Milwaukee Sentinel. Thus it came about that Charles's boyhood was spent in the growing West and on the shores of Lake Michigan, where he still makes his home. In 1858 he was sent to New York city to be educated at the grammar school of Columbia College by Dr. Charles Anthon, and in June, 1861, he passed his examination for the freshman class in the college. But the civil war had begun, and within twenty-four hours after he had passed his examination, Charles King turned up in the camp of the Wisconsin volunteers at Washington, D. C., drum sticks in hand.

For a few weeks he was busy teaching his fellow badger boys the use of the drum sticks, and then, at the organization of the Wisconsin brigade, the command of which was tendered to his father, the sixteen year old boy was made mounted orderly at brigade headquarters.

In this capacity he saw his first real soldiering in Virginia. In October, 1861, with the promise of a cadetship at West Point, from President Lincoln himself, Charles King began to take even a livelier interest in military affairs, and in June, 1862, he entered on his academic career and graduated four years later.

From the fall of 1866 until January, 1869, Lieutenant King was attached to Light Battery K, First Artillery, serving at New Orleans. On the latter date he was transferred to Light Battery C, at Fort Hamilton, New York. He served a few weeks on recruiting service at Cincinnati, Ohio, in the spring of 1869, but was ordered to West Point as instructor in cavalry tactics and horsemanship. At the military academy he served as commandant of Company C.

On April 7, 1872, the international race, gentlemen riders, was ridden on the old Metarie track under the auspices of the Metarie Jockey Club. England, Ireland, Austria and France were represented. The challengers were Count Victor Crenneville of the Austrian Hussars and Captain George Rosenlecher of France. But Lieutenant Charles King, returning to the city from a tour of inspection through Mississippi, heard of the unaccepted challenge open to the United States, and at once obtained General Emory's permission to take up the gauntlet.

A great crowd was present on the day of the race and the judges' stand was a beautiful sight. It was too soon after the war for a Yankee to have many friends among the fair ones of New Orleans, and, while the blue and gold bars of Captain Rosenlecher, the scarlet and white of the Austrian, the cherry red and dark blue of Mr. Stuart, who rode for England, and the green of Ireland, were to be seen everywhere among the parasols or ribbons and colors of the ladies, not more than one or two had the courage to wear King's colors. He was attired in the colors of his old college, Columbia, sky blue and white, and looked the gentleman rider to perfection. It was a beautiful race. The "Yank" won it by just two horse lengths. After the gold mounted whip was presented to him from the judges' stand and the other gentlemen had cordially congratulated the victor, he took his prize across the track and laid it in the lap of the young lady who had accompanied General and Mrs. Emory to the scene, and who wore the aide-de-camp's colors. She has that whip yet, and shakes it at him sometimes, but has never used it on their children. They were married the fall following.

In an engagement at Diamond Butte on May 23, 1874, King's gallantry won from President Grant a recommendation to the Senate for the brevet commission of captain. The Senate referred the matter to the military commission, and there it was lost. On November 1, 1874, King was dangerously wounded at Sunset Pass. He was then saved from falling into the hands of the savages by the devotion of Sergeant Bernard Taylor, a devotion carried to the point of insubordination, for the latter refused to save himself, although ordered to do so, and held the howling Apaches in check until reinforcements arrived.

It was characteristic of King that he should have exposed himself to the certainty of torture and a horrible death by ordering Sergeant Taylor to leave him. And it is gratifying to note that Congress awarded a medal of honor to Taylor. King himself gained no recognition. His only brevets were his wounds received in action.

In the study where Captain King writes his soldier stories is the veritable Navajo blanket in which the soldiers bundled their crippled leader and bore him down the mountain side when the fight was over. King in everything, save that crippled arm of his, is a soldier. With him it is the soldier and the soldier life that predominates.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

NAMING THE MONTEREY.

Was Named in Honor of a Victory but Not of a Battle.

The story of the naming of the big coast defence monitor Monterey, that is on guard now at San Francisco, has never been told in print. When preparations for her launching were being made at San Francisco, Irving M. Scott, general manager of the Union Iron Works, was at Washington and a number of Californians wired him to use his influence with Benjamin F. Tracy, then secretary of the navy, to have the ship named for some California town, and Scott hit upon Monterey as a name that appealed to him as appropriate and the request was accordingly preferred.

"I'll see what I can do," said the amiable secretary, and ringing a bell, he summoned the head of the department having the matter in charge. When the matter was explained the chief of bureau replied:

"But you know, Mr. Secretary, the rules require that ships of that class shall be named in honor of some naval battle in which the Americans have participated. So far as I know there has never been a battle of Monterey."

This rule has been changed since, but Mr. Scott, seeing the corner he was in, as the matter stood, retorted promptly:

"Yes, it is true that there has never been a battle of Monterey, but let me tell you a story. In 1846, when we were having our little unpleasantness with Mexico, an American man-of-war was lying in the harbor of Mazatlan. Near him lay an Englishman who had an uncomfortable way of keeping her guns pointed in the direction of the American. Now, that Yankee skipper, who was typical of his class, got it into his head to raise his flag at Monterey, Cal., which was the capital of that territory, and it so happened that the Englishman got just the same notion just about the same time. The Yankee suspected something of the kind, and made up his mind not to be outwitted.

"Late that afternoon he sent a lot of his men ashore, and when the boats returned to the ship without them the Britisher made up his mind that they would not be back until the following day. Satisfied with his conclusion, he sat down to wait. But the Yankee was a hustler, as Yankee sailors always are. The night was as dark as a stack of black cats, and along about 10 o'clock the American boats, with muffled oars, rowed back to the ship, and in the inky darkness that Yankee skipper slipped his cables and warped his ship out of the harbor, without the fact even being suspected by the Englishman. When day broke he was fifty miles up the coast, scudding along before a ten-knot breeze.

"The other fellow saw he had been outgeneraled, but he made an effort to rectify his blunder. He had a smart crew and a fast ship. There was no reason, he figured, why he might not overtake his rival and beat him to Monterey. He tried it, and came very nearly making a success of it. He sailed into Monterey Harbor just two hours behind the American and dropped his anchor in time to see the Stars and Stripes rise to the flagstaff in the plaza and flutter to the breeze. Monterey and California were ours."

"Don't say another word, Scott," said Secretary Tracy. "That ship shall be the Monterey."

And Monterey she is.—San Francisco Call.

Absent-Minded Club Woman.

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, on one occasion, presented herself at a club of which she is a member with her bonnet wrong side in front. Afttr some hesitation lest Mrs. Howe should feel hurt, a sister member informed her of the mistake.

"What a blow to my vanity!" said Mrs. Howe, with an amused smile. "I thought I was receiving an unusual amount of attention as I came down town on a car, but attributed it solely to my own attractions."—Woman's Exponent.

ABILITY OF THE WEAK MIND.

Instances Where Idiots Achieved Wonderful Success.

Insane people and maniacs frequently present neofilia and great artistic activity, and idiots frequently display special aptitudes in which they become superior to normal men, some of them becoming true prodigies, as is shown by Dr. Peterson in The Popular Science Monthly, October, 1896, especially in arithmetical and musical ability, with a particular inclination to imitate in models, drawings, and pictures the objects which they have before them.

One of the most curious examples of this is "Blind Tom," a pure-blooded negro, born in Georgia in 1840. Born blind he showed no intelligence except for sounds. He could not speak a word, but he could repeat any sound which he heard. Merely by the aid of sound he could repeat Greek, Latin, German and English texts, however long after he had heard them recited, could play on the piano from memory any piece, however difficult to follow, and had learned by memory five hundred pieces of music.

Among cases of extraordinary memory in idiots Morel cites a cretin who remembered the date of the funerals of all the persons who had died in his parish within thirty-five years, with the names of those who had taken part in these funerals. Morel also cites the case of an idiot who could not count up to twenty, but who knew the names of all the Saints in the calendar with dates of their respective feasts.

As to the imitative faculty the most curious cases are cited. At the asylum of Earlwood there was an idiot who constructed a perfect model of a ship with all its more minute details. Geoffry Mind, a cretin who died in 1814, drew cats with so much skill that his drawings are preserved in all the leading museums of Europe. Gideon Buxton, the famous lightning calculator, who died in 1702, was stupid; and Z[illegible] Colburn, exhibited at the age [illegible] as a lightning calculator, could [illegible] learn anything. He had six toes [illegible] many characteristics of degeneracy. Dasah was absolutely a fool, and yet he could multiply mentally numbers of eight and ten figures.

A LAPSE OF MEMORY.

Or Why Pat Forgot Where He Buried the Bottle.

"Pat where did you get the whiskey?" asked one section hand of another.

"Whist!" said Pat. "Oi swoiped it from the private car dat was here."

"Pat, the brass collars are going to miss it, by and by. You better hide it," said the first speaker.

"Let's take this handcar and run down the track a ways and bury it," said Pat.

The two got a handcar and told the foreman they were going down the track to get some potatoes for dinner. Away they went down the track about a mile.

"This is a good place," Pat. The two got off the car and buried the bottle near the track.

"How will we know where we buried it?" said Pat.

"Cut a notch in the side of the car," said his companion. So a notch was cut in the side of the car above where the bottle was buried and the two tarriers returned to their work. That evening they decided to go and dig up the bottle. Away they went.

"Where is the place?" asked Pat.

"I cut a notch in the car to show," said the other.

"And begorra I forgot all about it and moved the car," said Pat.—Topeka State Journal.

Production of Olive Oil in Sicily.

An interesting account of the way in which olive oil is produced in Sicily is given by the United States Consul at Catania. The olive tree grows equally well in the valleys and on the mountain sides; but those on the lower ground furnish an oil which is richer, and can be stored for a longer time without deterioration. The grinding and pressing of the olives are performed in a very primitive fashion. First, the olives are placed on a circular platform of masonry about several feet in diameter, upon which a heavy millstone is turned by means of a pole to which the donkey is attached. While the stone revolves a man is constantly engaged in turning the pulped olives over and over with a spade. In half an hour about one hundred kilogrammes will have been pulped in this way, when the mass is put in soft rush baskets, which are piled in a heap in the press—an arrangement with a heavy wooden screw—which is worked by six men. About half the oil is expressed in this fashion, the rest being extracted by subsequent operations. The fresh oil is green in color, and is placed in earthen jars for eight days to settle and clarify. It is then ready for use.

A Roman Custom.

In Roman times a man's signet was the most important of his possessions. It served the purpose of a signature, for all business transactions were ratified by it, and as in those days locks and keys had not long been invented, the stores and valuables of many houses were still kept strictly under the seal of the owner. It was a felony to make two signets alike, and hence in the gems of the ancients we have the most marvelous compendium of their customs, manners and beliefs.—Century Magazine.

Animals Hate Castor Oil.

There is no plant which animals so detest as the castor-oil plant. A goat will starve rather than eat it, and those destroyers of everything green, the locust and army worm, will not feed upon it.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County.

[OFFICIAL.]

Regular meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, held on Thursday, July 7, 1898, at 2:30 p m.

Roll-call showed all members present—17.

The minutes of the previous meeting were on motion approved as read.

COMMUNICATIONS

From J. T. MacMurray, city clerk of Plainfield, stating that by an ordinance adopted on December 20, 1897, two new election districts had been created in said city, one in the Third and one in the Fourth Ward. It would be necessary for the county to furnish booths and ballot boxes for said new election districts. The booths now provided for other election districts in said city, were in bad order and needed considerable repairing.

On motion of Freeholder King, received and placed on file.

From County Attorney Codington as follows:

July 7, 1898

To the Honorable the Board of Chosen Freeholders:

Gentlemen—I beg herewith to submit a certified copy of the finding of the Supreme Court in the case of Dodd vs. Blore.

On January 6 last, I gave my written opinion to your honorable body to the effect that it was within the power and province of the Board of Chosen Freeholders to appoint a warden in place of John C. Blore, then the incumbent, and that said Blore could not hold the office.

The case was taken up on quo warranto, and the Supreme Court sustains the opinion given by me in the matter, and holds that the defendant's claim is without legal support and renders judgment in favor of Dodd.

(Signed)
Respectfully submitted,
W. R. Codington,
County Attorney.

The decision of the Supreme Court was as follows:

N. J. Supreme Court.

State ex rel.
Chas. W. Dodd.
vs.
John C. Elore.
Per Curiam.

Quo Warr.:

The defendant in this information rests his claim to the office of warden of the Union County Jail wholly upon the Veteran Act of March 31, 1897.

As this act is limited by its title to Veterans "In the public service of the State of New Jersey," and therefore according to our consitution, its provisions as to cities, counties, towns and villages are inoperative, (Kregh vs. Hudson Freeholders, Supreme Court, June 7, 1898), (Hardy vs Orange, Court of Error, March 7, 1898), it cannot affect the office now in question and the defendant's claim is without legal support.

The demurrer to the information must be overruled and judgment entered for the relator.

(A True Copy,)
Wm. Riker, Jr., Clerk.

No objections being offered, the director ordered that the two papers be received and placed on file.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

By committee on new bridge in Springfield Township:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County:

Gentlemen—Your committee to whom was referred the matter of the advisability of erecting a new bridge over the west branch of the Rahway river, on Mountain avenue, in Springfield Township, would report recommending that a new iron beam bridge be built at said point, the cost of which is not to exceed $1,200.

(Signed)
J. Martin Roll,
M. M. Scudder,
John H. Tier,
Committee.

Freeholder Farrell moved that the report be received, and its recommendation adopted, and on roll-call it was so ordered by a unanimous vote.

Freeholder Roll, chairman of the County Road Committee, reported progress on matters relating to widening of Westfield avenue, etc.

Mr. Roll said that the engineers had prepared plans for two routes through the townships of Cranford and Westfield. In view of the large property interests involved, he thought it would be advisable for the entire Board to go over said Westfield avenue and familiarize themselves with the work that would have to be done. The report was received.

NEW BUSINESS.

By Freeholder Hulskamper:

Resolved, That a Committee of three be appointed with power to examine and repair culvert on Bayway near Linden Township, Elizabeth, N. J., cost not to exceed $185 00

Freeholder Brucklacher moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll call it was adopted unanimously.

The Director appointed as the said Committee, Freeholders Hulskamper, Miller and McCandless.

By Freeholder Wahl:

Resolved, That a Committee of three be appointed to examine and report as to the advisability of building a new bridge across New Providence Ave. in New Providence, at a cost not to exceed $175 00.

Freeholder Farrell moved the adoption of this resolution, and on roll-call it was unanimously adopted.

The Director appointed as the said Committee, Freeholders Wahl, Robison and Swain.

By Freeholder Miller:

Resolved, That the Elizabeth Drawbridge Committee be, and are hereby empowered to have the mason work on South Front St., bridge repaired, cost not to exceed $300.00.

Freeholder Hulskamper moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll-call it was adopted unanimously.

By Freeholder Miller:

Resolved, That the Elizabeth Drawbridge Committee be, and are hereby empowered to have the mason work, and also planking on Bridge St. bridge repaired, cost not to exceed $250.00.

Freeholder Brucklacher moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll-call it was adopted unanimously.

By Freeholder Roll:

Resolved, That the committee of the whole of this board meet at J. Keron & Sons on Morris avenue, Elizabeth, Monday, July 11, 1898, at 9 a. m., for the purpose of going over Westfield avenue, and examining the lines as laid down for widening said avenue and the locating thereon of a trolley road.

On motion of Freeholder King the resolution was adopted without dissent.

By Freeholder Farrell:

Resolved, That when this board adjourns, it adjourns to meet on Thursday, July 14, 1898, at 2:30 p. m.

On motion of Freeholder Miller, the resolution was adopted without dissent.

The following bills audited and approved were read and on roll-call ordered paid, viz.:

MR BRUCE AND CAPT. LATHERS.

Born a Slave, He Easily Overcame Race Prejudice.

On one of his latest visits to New York Mr. Bruce told of an experience which he had just after he was elected Senator from Mississippi, and it was an experience which illustrates the tact and good sense which always characterized him, and which explained much of the success and respect which he gained by his public life in Washington. It was announced that the Senator would go to Washington from his Mississippi home by one of the Mississippi steamboats, at least as far as St. Louis, on his way. The captain, a man of the name of Lathers, was a typical Mississippi steamboat captain, and he was erported to have said that he would show the black Senator when he got aboard of his boat that he would have to keep his place on that boat, and if he put on any airs because he happened to be Senator, the captain would teach him manners.

As soon as Bruce boarded the steamboat he sought the captain, and he said to him, "Captain Lathers, I am going to Washington, and a part of the way as passenger on your steamboat. My name is Bruce, and possibly you have heard of me. What I wanted to say is that I know perfectly well what the feeling of many people who are travelers regarding persons of my color is. They cannot help it, and I cannot help it, and I am going to give them no occasion for any annoyance while I am a passenger on your boat. I simply ask you that you see to it that I am made as comfortable as possible and I assure you that you will have no reason for complaint."

The bluff captain stepped back a pace or two, looked Bruce over, and then held out his hand, and said, with great emphasis: "By ——, you shall sit at my table; you shall sit on my right hand on the entire trip and if any man objects he will have to fight me. A man who can talk as you have, and who is as fair as you are, is a —— sight better fitted to be a United States Senator than some of the white Senators I have carried on this boat," and on that entire trip of some three days the captain made Bruce his guest.

The same quality served Bruce admirably in the Senate and it was one of the most impressive of Washington sights to see the mulatto Senator and his colleague the aristocrat Lamar, walking daily together up the avenue to the Capitol. Lamar, the scholar, the orator, the fine type of Southern chivalry and cultivation, had the highest respect for Bruce and preferred his companionship in the daily walks to and from the Capitol to that of any other Senator. Afterward when Lamar became Secretary of the Interior, Bruce went to see him, and said that he had procured a good many appointments in the Interior Department; in fact, a good many more than his share, and he had come to see his former colleague so that he might take counsel with him in respect to such action in the way of removals as Lamar might have in mind.

Thereupon, Lamar said to him: "Bruce, not one of the men who have been appointed at your recommendation shall be removed while I am here, except for such cause as would make you remove them yourself if you were Scretary of the Interior.—Philadelphia Press.

ONE WRINKLE OF THE FIRE ENGINE

Various Reasons for Keeping the Ground Under the Fire Box Wet.

Every fire engine has a pipe around its firebox, from which a spray of water may be thrown upon the ground under the grate. When an engine is at work at a fire two iron shields are placed on the ground, one against the inner side of each wheel, to protect it from injury, from coals or sparks from the fire.

The heat from an accumulation of live coals dropping through the grate bars might chip the stone of the granite pavement or melt the tar with which in many stone pavements the seams between which the blocks are filled. Keeping the ground wet prevents this. The spray keeps the live coals from injuring or marring asphalt pavements upon which the engine may stand at work.

An accumulation of hot ashes and cinders under the grate would throw out a heat that would inconvenience the engineer. Keeping the ground wet under the fire box does away with that source of discomfort in working the engine.—New York Sun.

Dogs Meet a train.

The Oriental express, the famous train from Paris to Constantinople, arrives at the Turkish capital three times a week at a certain hour in the afternoon. When the train comes in there are always many dogs ready to receive it. Before the passengers have had time to get out, the dogs jump into the carriages and search, everywhere under the seats and in corners for the scraps of luncheon left by the passengers, and when they have found all the pieces they go away.

The remarkable thing is that they never come at any time except when the Oriental express is due; that they never make a mistake in the day, and always remember that between Friday and Monday there are two days and not one. They pay no attention to local trains, because little or no food is left in them, owing to the short rides the passengers take.—Buffalo News.

No Occasion to Worry.

Mrs. Dewtell—Here is a piece in the paper, Ephraim, from a well-known scientist saying that if it wasn't for the atmosphere around the earth the ocean would become boiling hot from the sun's rays. Dreadful to think of, isn't it?

Mr. Dewtell (calmly)—Well, there hain't no use gittin excited over it, 'Mandy. I reckon when they do away with the atmosphere it won't make much difference to folks whether the ocean biles or not.—New York World.

HE HAD NEVER THOUGHT.

And Was Therefore Fooled for Twenty Years.

Two men were walking down Ninth street when they came in sight of a jeweler's shop, from which was displayed a wooden imitation of a clock.

Said the tall man: "Do you know why the hands of these dummy clocks invariably point to 8.20?"

"As a matter of fact," said the short man, "they don't invariably. When they do, it is because it displays the hands to the best advantage."

"Not at all," returned the tall man, with a tinge of coming triumph in his voice. "It is because it marks the exact moment when President Lincoln was assassinated in Ford's theater."

"Does it, indeed?" exclaimed the short man, stopping his companion right under the clock. "Do you happen to have heard what play was on the boards that fatal night?"

"Our American Cousin," replied the other promptly.

"Right, my son. Now, pay attention. The shot was fired during the second scene of the third act. Theaters then, as now, began the performance at 8 o'clock, and so you would have me believe that it required only twenty minutes to play two entire acts and one scene of the third? Do you believe that yourself?"

The tall man reflected for ten seconds, and then said blankly: "Well, to think that I've believed that stupid lie for twenty years!"—Philadelphia Times.

The President's Possible Cow.

"Just after President McKinley's inauguration he had his relatives who were in the city at a family dinner at the White House. It was a large company, and a very good dinner. Dear old Mother McKinley was there, but she was not very talkative. She was too happy for words. But she kept a sharp eye on the dinner, and no detail of it escaped her. She was impressed by the quantity of cream served with the fruit and coffee, for she looked up at her son in her sweet way and said:

"'William, you must keep a cow now.'

"Some of the younger members of the family party found it difficult to suppress a smile, but the President, with his usual tact and graciousness, replied:

"'Yes, mother, we can afford to have a cow now, and have all the cream we can possibly use.'"—Lady's Home Journal.

A Letter to Jane.

The following letter from one of the new recruits was found near Fort McPherson:

"Dear Jane: Jane, I'm in trouble. I've done enlisted in the army, an' I'm sorry fer it. I wish I was home. Jane, will you do me this one favor? Write to the War Department an' tell the President the children is down with the measles, and your old rheumatism is broke out ag'in, an' you needs me at home. Will you do this much fer me, Jane? Oh, Jane, I'm in deep trouble! Jane—my dear Jane—if the children ain't got the measles, send 'em over in the Green neighborhood. The Greens is always got 'em, an' the children 'll be shore to ketch 'em there. Will you do this fer me, Jane? Oh, Jane, don't forsake me! Ain't I your husband?"—Atlanta Constitution.

WHEN LEE RAN FOR GOVERNOR.

To be the Descendent of an Illustrious Name Has Its Drawbacks.

General Lee has been handicapped by a great name. It has stimulated his pride and ambition, but it has not inspired any vanity. When asked if this heritage had hindered or helped him, he said:

"It has been a heavy load. I have had the reputation of a lot of ancestors as well as my own to look after. Whatever good I have done has been credited to them, and whatever of evil has been charged to me and magnified, because people said they had a right to expect much better things of a man of my blood and breeding.

"When I was running for governor of Virginia, John Wise said that if my name had been Fitzhugh Smith, I never would have secured the nomination. I replied that I had known a good many men named Smith and would have been as proud of that name as the one I wore. In that way I got the votes of all the Smiths in Virginia, and a letter from a man who told me 'never to forget Captain John Smith, our first settler, who killed Pocahontas.'"—Chap Book.

READING FOR BLIND.

A UNIQUE FEATURE OF THE CONGRESSIONAL LIBRARY.

Pleasure Taken by the Sightless in the Room Set Apart for Them—Fields of Literature Open to Them—A Daily System of Readings.

All good Americans should hope to visit the Congress Library before they die. It is one of the world's wonders, well worth a trip across a continent to view.

A sign points a directing hand to the reading room for the blind, and following it you enter the strangest room in the library, and, indeed, the strangest reading room in the world, for this is the only library known to contain special provisions for the blind. The idea of having reading room for the blind was suggested to Mr. Young, the librarian, by a woman whose heart had been touched by the plaint of a blind girl friend that there was so little opportunity for the most helpless class of persons in the world to have access to the literature for which they longed.

The room dedicated to this purpose is of good proportions, shady, cool, with great windows filled with growing plants, the touch and scent of which are a constant delight to the readers. The furniture suits the room and numbers among its pieces an unusually fine carved desk of historic value and a table to match. The blind appreciate this furniture very much and are proud of it, often feeling of the carving and speaking of its beauties. Around the walls of the room are ranged the cases containing literature for the blind, and the room is divided in the center by a large screen, behind which the readers can retire and so escape the observation of casual visitors. On the carved table is a beautiful vase, a gift from a Washington woman, and it is daily filled with cut flowers, which come as offerings from seeing people to their less fortunate friends.

The special attendant in charge of this room has a large responsibility resting upon her. She is Miss Etta Josselyn Giffin. The privilege of reading in a room by themselves meant two things to the blind. It afforded an opportunity to read books that had hitherto been unobtainable, and it was an acknowledgment of them as a class. This acknowledgment is especially dear because their complete dependence on the good will of their seeing friends has made them looked upon as objects of charity, and this public recognition of them as a class possessing the intelligent needs of seeing people is soothing to their natural desire for independence. The collection of literature at their service embraces all the standard works, the Bible, encyclopedias, Dickens, Thackeray, Eliot, Emerson, the great and minor poets, &c., and many musical compositions.

The cost of printing for the blind is so great that only the well-to-do can attempt the collection of an individual library; hence the benefit of a reading room to them. The Bible, for instance, which can be condensed into a pocket edition for ordinary readers and bought for 2 cents and even less, when published in finger print covers a series of eight volumes, and costs $100. A prayer book sells for $20, and a common writing slate for $1.25. This slate consists of a table, guide and stylus, and the rapidity with which the blind write is marvellous. As they read, they frequently pause to jot down on the slate some comments on the book they are studying. Their writing is done from right to left, though they read from left to right. The correspondence among themselves is a great source of entertainment, education, and comfort, and where several are gathered in the reading room, after the reading is finished, a smart interchange of slates goes on, each reading with his fingers the thoughts jotted down by the others.

After the reading room for the blind was opened the library officials were anxious that everything possible should be done which would tend toward its successful and permanent operation. One suggestion that has resulted in constant and increasing pleasure came from David Hutcheson, superintendent of the general reading room. It occurred to Mr. Hutcheson that if each day a good reader could be secured to read aloud to the blind visitors for an hour, they could become acquainted with much literature that has not yet been reproduced in the publications for the blind. With the co-operation of Miss Giffin, this plan was worked out. Mr. Hutcheson was a little timorous of its continued success, fearing it would be difficult to secure readers for each day, but, on the contrary, more readers have offered their services than dates can be found for, and very celebrated readers at that. The first person to read aloud was Mrs. John Russell Young, wife of the Librarian. Thomas Nelson Page, Kate Douglas Wiggin, Grace Greenwood, Frank Stockton, and many other authors have contributed their quota to the daily reading matinee. On several occasions celebrities have given little talks rather than readings, and these are especially appreciated, particularly when they relate to travel. These readings have proved a most interesting feature of the reading room, and greatly extended the scope and opportunity of the room's frequenters. Many blind persons desired to avail themselves of the privileges of the reading room, and were unable to do so, because they had no one to bring them to the library, so Miss Giffin interested a number of women who were willing to act as escorts to the afflicted ones, and these escorts day by day bring their charges to the readings.

It is interesting to note that their is no distinction of color or nationality. The first reader was a colored man, and the second a young white girl, who asked for Emerson'e Essays, saying she was "hungry for Emerson." The literature called for by the readers is of a remarkably high order. The very concentration required of the blind for their reading creates a high order of intelligence, and a desire to learn of the best. The room is well patronized every day, even in bad weather, though on wet days more men than women are observed. Many pleasant and lasting friendships are formed among the readers, and a system of correspondence maintained Many letters of inquiry about the room are constantly received from residents of other cities.—New York Sun.

THE THREE KRUPPS.

And Their Wonderful Gun Works at Essen, Germany.

The city of Essen is located in the center of a hilly valley, which abounds in coal and iron ore, and the digging for both and the melting of the ore and casting the metal into ingots and rolling it into bars have been the occupations of the inhabitants for centuries past. Frederick Krupp, the founder of the great works bearing his name, was born in 1787, and when crucible cast steel was first introduced into England, and its importation from there into Germany had been made impossible through the edict of Napoleon, called "the continental sperre," F. Krupp began to produce crucible cast steel, first in small quantities for files, stamps, rolls for coins and shears, but only slowly could he convince and persuade German manufacturers to use his cast steel, and after a life full of disappointment and hardships, he died in 1826, after a long and severe illness, leaving to his son Alfred little else than the old homestead, which still stands in the midst of the great works and the secret of his invention.

Alfred Krupp's energy and enterprise soon conquered. His first success was to be able to furnish a cast steel of a varying degrees of hardness, thereby increasing its adaptability for many new purposes. Next came the invention of the weldless car wheel tires, which were patented in 1853 in all countries, and furnished him capital for enlarging his plant. In 1865 he interested himself in coal mines, iron ore mines and furnaces, which should furnish the material for his own works, and in 1867 he began to reap the harvest from his experiments, inaugurated long since, with steel cannons, and the great Franco-German war of 1870-71 proved beyond doubt their superiority as against the old bronze cannons. Since then the success of these works and their growth has been phenomenal, and when Alfred Krupp closed the busy and successful and philanthropic work of his life in 1877 at Villa Huegel, his princely home on the side hills of the valley of the Ruhe, the city of Essen, in recognition of his great work, erected in his memory a beautiful monument on the most prominent square of the city, and deputations from many nations mourned at his grave.

Essen is a city of ninety-six thousand inhabitants, and over twenty thousand of this population are employed in the works of the able and energetic son of Alfred Krupp, Friedrich Alfred. Over 1,200 acres of ground are covered with buildings and machinery. Many coal mines furnish fuel for the works, over 400 iron ore mines furnish the metal and large iron ore deposits in Spain, near Bilbao, have been purchased in addition, and a special fleet of steamers has been built which bring over 300,000 tons of this Spanish ore from Spain to the German coast and up the Rhine. Twenty furnaces at Duisburg and Neuwied-on-the-Rhine are reducing this ore for the Krupp works and are owned or controlled by them.—Iron Age.

"TOAST" IN A CUP.

Origin of the Use of the Word for After-Dinner Speeches.

The word "toast" used for describing the proposal of a health in an after-dinner speech dates back to the medieval times, when the loving cup was still regarded as an indispensable feature of every banquet. The cup would be filled to the brim, with wine or mead, in the center of which would be placed a piece of toasted bread. After putting his lips thereto the host would pass the cup to the guest of honor, seated on his right hand, and the latter would in turn pass it on to his right hand neighbor.

In this manner the cup would circulate around the table, each one present taking a sip, while drinking towards his right hand neighbor, until finally the cup would come back to the host, who would drain what remained and swallow the piece of toast in honor of all the friends assembled at his table.

History teaches that the ancient Greeks, the Romans, the Assyrians and the Egyptians were in the habit of drinking one another's health at dinner. Indeed, at Athens, the etiquette concerning what may be described as the liquid courtesies of this kind was very strict and elaborate, being known by the name of Philothe." The participants in the repast were in the habit of drinking to one another till they could carry no more, and they would pour out the remainder of the wine on the altar of any pagan deity that might happen to be handy.

At Rome the same custom prevailed. Post-prandial oratory, however, was severely condemned as out of place, and while the Greeks contented themselves with exclaiming, as they put the cup of wine to their lips, "I salute you; be happy," the Romans restricted themselves to the exclamation, "Propinc," which is

Bits of Information and Comment Gleaned From the Great National Game —Latest Scores of the League Teams

The High Bridge baseball club and the German Hills, of Easton, played an exciting game at High Bridge Saturday afternoon. T. Lyons, of this city, who filled the position of shortstop for the home team, distinguished himself by making a three-bagger in the commencement of the ninth inning, when the bases were full and two men out. It won the game for High Bridge. The final score was seven to four.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Albert L. Schomp rode his wheel to Princeton Tueday.

A. L. Schomp and Harry Cuming will go to Asbury Park tomorrow on their wheels to stay two or three days.

Miss May Ross, Miss Ida Spicer and J. D. Spicer, of West Fifth street, and J. A. Ross, of Bound Brook, have returned after a short wheeling trip to Asbury Park.

Tomorrow night will occur the next scheduled run of the Y. M. C. A. bicycle squad. The destination of the party is Newark and, as Plainfield now leads the district for the banner, a good attendance is desired so as to keep up the record.

The races which were to be held at Maltby's track this afternoon at 5 o'clock, have been postponed until Saturday afternoon, August 6, at 4 o'clock. The entries will remain over until Friday, August 5. The reason for the postponement is that the track is unfit to use as a result of this morning's storm.

The following weekly membership report of the League of American Wheelmen was issued yesterday by Secretary Bassett: New York 89, total 20,718; Pennsylvania 92, total 19,992; Massachusetts 137, total 12,507; New Jersey 29, total 5,708; Illinois 19, total 3,041; Indiana 72, total 2,112; Ohio 20, total 2,776; Wisconsin 4, total 1,639; Connecticut 5, total 1,668, Missouri 4, total 1,205; Michigan 17, total 1,935; Maryland 6, total 1,490; Rhode Island 4, total 1,648. A TRIPLE AFFAIR.

Three Young People Celebrated Their Birthdays Together Yesterday.

A triple birthday celebration was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Denton, of Prospect Hill, when her daughter, Miss Pauline Denton, and her cousin, Miss Nellie Brown, of Dunellen, and Howard Armstrong, of Brooklyn, celebrated the anniversaries of their birthdays together. The young women are sixteen years of age, while the boy is five years old. It happens that the birthdays of the celebrants fall on the same day, and this year it was arranged to unite in the celebration. The affair was one of pleasure to all. A number of young friends of those in whose honor the event was given were present The guests presented many useful and pretty gifts, and Miss Denton received a bicycle.

It was planned to serve refreshments on the spacious lawn surrounding the house, but the weather prevented. Instead a sumptuous repast was served in the house. After an exchange of happy greetings the young folks departed well pleased with the celebration provided.

BIG TIME AT COONTOWN.

Women of Methodist Church Gave a Successful Festival Last Night.

The largest gathering every held in the Coontown M. E. church, of which Rev. George Bowers is pastor, took place last night, the occasion being a festival given by the Ladies' Aid Society of the church. The programme included an overture from violin, piano and cornet, by Messrs. Frazee, Guttman and Creiger; an exhibition of sleight-of hand by John H. Carney; graphophone selections under the charge of George Voehl, and German dialect recitations by John H. Carney. The latter's description of how Dewey took Manila and the manner in which he raised Old Glory at that place aroused the patriotic spirit of the audience, and cheer after cheer was given the speaker. At the close of this number the entire audience joined in singing "The Star-Spangled Banner." Sixty quarts of ice cream were sold during the evening. As a result of the affair a donation of $30 was made to the church.

DEATH OF RANDOLPH DUNHAM.

Passed Away Suddenly After an Illness of Only a Week.

Randolph Dunham died last night from acute bright's desease, after an illness of only a week. He made his home with Daniel Randolph, of Spooner avenue, and the funeral will be held from the house 210 Spooner avenue Friday morning at 10 o'clock. Mr. Dunham was employed as clerk in the office of the Potter Press Works.

He was born in this city, and comes from good old Seventh-Day Baptist stock. Eight years ago he moved to Roselle, and was principal of the public school there until two years ago when he moved to this city. He then secured his position in Potter's. He was unmarried and leaves no near relatives. He was forty-seven years old.

Off for the Shore.

Although the clouds are heavy today, that is no sign that it will rain or be disagreeable tomorrow when the members of the First Baptist church Sunday-school, together with its missions and Grace P. E. church, will go on their annual excursion to Asbury Park. The First Baptist church has a reputation of conducting a first-class excursion, and all who accompany them can vouch for the good time had. They are good people to go with and every arrangement has been made for an enjoyable time. The train will leave Plainfield at 8 o'clock in the morning and will leave Asbury Park at 6:30 tomorrow night, stopping at Long Branch both ways. Tickets can be purchased of the committee or at the North Avenue station tomorrow morning.

—All bills against the city must be in the hands of the City Clerk by Thursday night to insure payment at the meeting of the Council on Monday.

MISS THURSBY'S MEDAL.

It Was Given Originally by Czar Alexander II. to Tietjens.

No one can meet Miss Emma Thursby without noticing that she wears always about her neck or fastened at some part of her gown, a large medal. Its history is full of interest. Alexander II, Emperor of Russia, was an ardent lover of music. At the time of his visit to Great Britain he heard for the first time at her majesty's theatre in London Therese Caroline Tietjens, the great prima donna of the day. She was then giving her impersonation of Valentine in "The Huguenots."

Alexander was enchanted with her mighty soprano voice. She became a great favirite with him, and he would never miss, if possible, an opportunity to hear her sing. As a mark of his favor he presented her with the medal, simply requesting that at her death she would bequeath it to one as great as she.

The medal is fully three inches in diameter and is of Persian antiquity, although the large turquoise in the center is a Russian amulet. It is supposed to prosper the wearer and is a token of distinction. In its peculiar workmanship it is without a rival. A very long chain, also Persian in design, is attached to the medal. On the death of Mme. Tietjens, in England, October 3, 1877, it was found that she had willed the medal to Hermine Rudersdorff, who was then probably the best appreciated concert singer in Europe. She had been born at Ivanowsky in the Ukraine, where her father was known as a famous violinist. In 1871-2 she was engaged by the Boston Festivals and afterward made her permanent home in this country. Her singing of Medea at the Crystal Palace is still remembered by many. After she retired from public life she devoted herself to the teaching of music. Miss Emma Thursby was one of her pupils.

Miss Thursby was born in Brooklyn. She studied under Achille Erani and at Milan under San Giovanni and Lamperti. While she was completing her studies in America with Mme. Dudersdorff, the latter had an opportunity to become acquainted with her voice. At the time of her extended trip through Europe she was greeted everywhere with enthusiasm. In Sweden the people took the horses from her carriage that they might have the honor of drawing it themselves. It is not surprising that to so beloved a pupil Mme. Rudersdorff should have bequeathed the medal. It is said to be the only ornament Miss Thursby ever wears.—New York Sun.

HORSES IN AMERICA.

So Common That Even Beggars May Ride The Poorest Have Nags.

The land of the kangaroo and the wombat, where the mammal was nothing unless marsupial, till the European arrived on the scene, may now be called the land of horses. In New South Wales the sight of a beggar on horseback excites no surprise. The poorest settler has a nag or two of his own, and his children may be seen riding to school like little lords. A one-horse township would be inconceivable in a country where each village, almost, has its race meeting. With a population scarcely over 1,250,000, the colony owns more than 500,000 horses. And she now exports horses on a rapidly increasing scale. In 1895 the colony exported 1,063 horses, of the estimated value of £12,745; in 1896 the number was 8,138, value £123,500, and last year there was a further increase, India being the leading customer, Austrialian horses being found admirably adapted for military purposes in that part of the British empire. Horses are exported also from New South Wales to Victoria, New Zealand, Western Austrialia, Fiji, the Straits Settlements, Java and the Philippine Islands.—Household Words.

The Sailors' Hen Coop.

A sailorman is fond of pets, but a ship is no place for animal life. However, there are few ships, sail or steam, that do not carry out of port a coop of hens and a rooster. These seem to be for company, or association, or something of that sort, for the oldest mariner never heard of one of the hens being killed for the mess, and a hen at sea absolutely refuses to lay eggs, and small blame to them.

The hen coop is generally placed on the forward deck, near the fo'c'sle, in which the sailors live. They have a box of sand in which to roll and are made as comfortable as possible. After one or two voyages the hens become excellent sailors, and it is a queer sight to see them balance themselves on their sealegs when the ship tosses and rolls.

When the ship is in dock the fowls are always driven into their coop and kept there until the ship is at sea, when they are released and given the freedom of the deck. At night they seek the shelter of their coop of their own accord.—Kansas City Star.

SEWARD'S COSTLY DESPATCH.

The Bill Was $15,000, and One of the Results Was the Fall of Maximilian.

It was during our own serious troubles in the early sixties that France and Austria undertook to plant an empire on this continent in the neighboring state of Mexico. Although warned off by our State Department, American diplomatic methods seem never to inspire any particular amount of awe in European foreign offices. In this case they were simply ignored. And the two allied powers continued their work of setting up an Emperor in the land of Montezuma. However, with the ending of our war and the readjustment of our own internal affairs, attention was again directed to what was going on in Mexico against the avowed wishes and policy of the American Government.

At this period Napoleon and Eugenie were dazzling the world with the splendors of the court of the second empire. A great number of our own people from all sections of the country were residing in Paris, to which city it was jokingly said "all good Americans wanted to go after death." Americans were in evidence at all the brilliant fetes of the empire. The American colony in Paris as an organization dates from this period.

At the height of this happy state of affairs Secretary Seward's despatch notifying the imperial Government that Mexico must be evacuated came like the proverbial thunderclap out of a cloudless sky. The despatch yet holds a place in France's official memory. The cable was almost in its infancy, and communication through it was very costly. Secretary Seward did not economize his words, but talked as fluently and went into as many details as though he were seated at a table opposite the French Minister of Foreign Affairs.

The despatch cost $15,000. If Napoleon III. had been skeptical before as to the intention of the United States, Seward's coolness in holding a conversation at such a price convinced the Emperor and his ministers that the American Government would stand by what the Secretary said, and France came to the conclusion to let Maximilian "go it alone" as Emperor of Mexico.

The withdrawal of the French troops was ordered, and this led directly to Maximilian's tragic death at Queretaro in June, 1867.

Up to this time the Americans who spent immense sums of money in Paris were warmly received at the Tullieres, and in fact encouraged to come, for nothing more contributed to the stability of the empire than keeping the shopkeepers of Paris in good humor and plenty of American gold circulating throughout France. Under such conditions the Emperor was at liberty to run the country as he pleased.

After Secretary Seward's costly despatch had had its results—not only in the withdrawal of French troops from Mexico, but in a diminution of Louis Napoleon's prestige—the glories of the American colony at the Imperial court began to wane. Since then only on extraordinary occasions does it exhibit any of its old-time brilliancy. Under the new dispensation of republican Government it is a matter of such difficulty for an American to get an invitation to the Elysee as to be hardly worth the trouble incurred.—Washington Post.

ENDEAVORERS TO MEET BY THE SHORE.

Features of the State C. E. Convention This Fall.

TO MEET AT ASBURY PARK.

SERVICES WILL BE HELD IN THE BIG AUDITORIUM.

There Will Be Many of the Leading Endeavorers of the Eastern States Present—A Great Programme Has Been Arranged for the Occasion.—Special Features of the Convention.

The Christian Endeavorers of New Jersey are promised an unusual treat in their twelfth annual State convention, which will be held at Asbury Park Sept. 28th, 29th and 30th. Those who attended the State convention held at Atlantic City three years ago recall it as a unique and delightful experience, and in all probability this year's convention will be a very similar gathering. Even greater care has been used in the selection of speakers, and the programme is filled with good things.

The greater part of the meetings will be held in the Asbury Park auditorium, but the "quiet hour" service and department conferences on Thursday morning, the 29th, will take place in the First Presbyterian church; the Junior rally Friday afternoon will be held at the Ocean Grove auditorium, and the sunrise prayer meetings, always such a pleasant feature of conventions, will be held on the beach, as they were at Atlantic City.

Amos R. Wells, the "Caleb Cobweb" of The Christian Endeavor World, will deliver an address at the Thursday afternoon meeting, and will also speak at the Junior rally. The annual address of the State president, Rev. Cornelius Brett, of Jersey City, will be delivered Thursday evening, and the annual convention sermon at the closing service Friday night will be by Rev. R. S. McArthur, D. D., of New York. Among the other noted speakers will be Bishop Walters, of Jersey City; Rev. S. Parks Cadman, D. D., of the Metropolitan Tabernacle, New York; Rev. Amory H. Bradford, of Montclair, the well-known writer, and Rev. J. H. Owens, of Paterson.

Among the interesting features of the convention will be open parliaments, a missionary session, denominational rallies, and a reception and model sociable.

FUNERAL OF MISS AMERMEN.

It Was Held From Her Late Home in the Borough Yesterday.

The funeral services of the late Miss Pearl A. Amermen were held yesterday morning at 11 o'clock from the home of the parents on Stone street, in the borough. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends, including a number of the members of the Junior Epworth League of Grace M. E. church. The services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Gardner, pastor of Grace M. E. church. He spoke words of consolation and comfort to the bereaved ones and referred to the lovely Christian character of the departed.

During the service Miss Grace and Alice Carroll sang two favorite selections. The floral display was beautiful and many offerings were from the friends of the departed. Interment took place yesterday afternoon at New Vernon, N. J.

Adventist Tent Meeting.

Tonight the services at the tent, corner of Somerset street and Linden avenue, will include a discourse on Mal. 4:5, "The coming of Elijah, the prophet." This is reported to be a very thrilling and interesting discourse, and should enlist full consideration.

Ho! For the Daughters of Liberty Day.

Some special features arranged for August 3d, the day of grand rally at Boynton Beach, of the Daughters of Liberty. Clarence Hiffmann, of this city, one of the finest zelethone players in the United States, will give an exhibition of his talent at Boynton Beach. There will also be patriotic singing by Vail Bros., and a laughable stump speech by Charles Mumford, entitled "One of the Six."

Visited Paterson Red Men.

Great Junior Sagamore William Newcorn, of Miantonomo Tribe, No. 118, I. O. R. M., went to Paterson Tuesday night and assisted in consolidating three tribes into one of 187 members. After the organization the visiting Red Men were entertained elaborately. Mr. Newcorn returned part of the way home with Great Sachem Smythe, of Long Branch.

George Feiring, of the fire department, started on his vacation yesterday.

ANOTHER BOULEVARD.

IT WILL BE MADE FROM METUCHEN TO PERTH AMBOY.

A Wealthy Resident of Metuchen Proposes to Widen the Present Road Thirty Feet—Will Give His Land—Trolley to go There.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Metuchen, July 28.—Another boulevard, with a trolley running through, is proposed for this part of New Jersey.

Charles A. Bloomfield, a wealthy clay-dealer, has just published an address to the Raritan Township Committee on the subject of widening Perth Amboy avenue. Mr. Bloomfield owns land on both sides of the avenue for a distance of 2,000 feet, and he offers to give thirty feet of his property, along its entire length, to make the roadway that much wider. Mr. Bloomfield calls attention to numerous beautiful boulevards in many parts of the country, and points out the possibility of making Perth Amboy avenue equal to the rest of them.

It is expected that trolley tracks will be laid along this road within the next few months, and that is the immediate cause of Mr. Bloomfield's offer. He contends that the road is too narrow to permit trolley tracks with safety, and he says that making it thirty feet wider is a necessity. The road is now macadamized. Along the entire length of the road from Metuchen to Perth Amboy, a distance of six miles, there are very few houses that would have to be moved if Mr. Bloomfield's suggestion is carried out.

WEDDED AMID FLOWERS

CHARMING MARRIAGE IN A NEW MARKET HOME LAST NIGHT.

Miss Lucy Maude Titsworth United in Marriage to Prof. Frank L. Green, of Brooklyn—Bride Wore Beautiful Gown.

[Special to The Daily Press.]

New Market, July 28—The marriage of Miss Lucy Maude Titsworth, daughter of Mrs. Lucy Anne Titsworth, of this place, to Prof. Frank L. Green, supervisor of one of the public schools of Brooklyn, was celebrated last evening at the home of the bride's mother at 8 o'clock, in the presence of only the near relatives of the contracting parties.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. F. E. Peterson, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, and it was a very simple, yet beautiful service. The bride was prettily gowned in white organdie over white silk trimmed with satin ribbons, and she carried a bouquet of bridal roses. Both she and the groom were unattended.

The decorations about the house were exceedingly pretty and consisted of an arrangement of lillies, palms, ferns and sweet peas. In the parlor and dining room were the decorations the most attractive.

Following the ceremony a reception was held and Mr. and Mrs. Green were showered with the best wishes of their relatives, who wished them a happy and successful journey through life. During the reception a pleasing wedding supper was served, after which the bride and groom left the scene of festivities to enjoy a wedding trip. On their return they will reside at 391 Vanderbilt avenue, Brooklyn.

A costly and useful collection of gifts were received by Mr. and Mrs. Green showing the high esteem in which they are held by their many relatives and friends. The guests present were from Plainfield, Dunellen, New Market, New York and Brooklyn.

SITUATION AT CRANFORD.

Westfield and Elizabeth Company Wants Entire Route Acted On at One Time.

The statement in yesterday's Daily Press that the Weatfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company has withdrawn its application for a right of way through Cranford, was not exactly correct. The fact is the company has filed a new petition for a franchise over Center street in Garwood from South to Spruce avenues, and has asked the Township Committee to defer action on the petition for a franchise on South avenue from Center street to the Linden township line until the new petition has been advertised, etc., as required by law, and reaches such a position that an ordinance covering the entire route desired can be acted on at one time. What the company wants is a franchise on South avenue through its entire length in Cranford township, and a franchise for a distance of some 800 feet on Center street.

SHIP LOST HER WAY.

Transport Found Under Guns of San Juan.

CHARLESTON FOUND HER.

THERE WAS A MISUNDERSTANDING ABOUT PLACE.

There Were Twelve Hundred Troops Aboard—She Was Not Seen By Spaniards—Is Now Safe With Rest Of Fleet.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Off Cape San Juan, July 27, via despatch boat to Port Haytian, Hayti, July 28, 1:25 p. m.—One transport of the Porto Rican expedition became lost from the other transports of the fleet.

It was the Mobile, which sailed from Charleston with twelve hundred men from the Sixteenth Pennsylvania and the Sixth Illinois. Of them thirty-five were ill with typhoid fever.

Last night, the cruiser Cincinnati accidentally found the lost transport within gunshot of the fortications of San Juan.

She led the transport seaward at once and this morning took her to join the remainder of the fleet. The trouble was caused by the fact that it was understood the rendezvous was to be off Fajario instead ot Guanica.

JERSEY'S YOUNGEST RECRUIT.

He Writes From Camp Voorhees and Tells Of Camp Life.

The Daily Press has received a letter from Chris Sorensen, Jr., the youngest recruit at Camp Voorhees, Sea Girt. It wrs written from the Y. M. C. A. headquarters of the camp. July 26th. Sorensen says that he receives The Press every morning and that it is quite a treat as there is very little reading matter to be had there. He also says that there are about 1,800 men now in the camp and that they expect to be ordered south in a short time. Most of the men are from Jersey City; there are only three from Plainfield in the whole regiment.

Sorensen encloses a copy of the general order giving the daily routine at Camp Voorhees, the leaflet also includes the general regulations governing the regiment.

Wanted Money From a Boy.

Charles McCann, a lad of sixteen years living on West Third street, was accosted by an unknown man on the corner of Third and Liberty streets last night about 11 o'clock. The stranger asked him for money. McCann, who was frightened, believing it an attempted holdup, ran home as fast as possible without answering the stranger. He is unable to describe him.

His Bill Was Outlawed.

The case of Robert Guttridge vs. Benjamin Sutton was tried yesterday morning in Justice Moffett's court, and the verdict, no cause for action, rendered. Guttridge sued for a bill, which the Judge claimed came under the statute of frauds and was outlawed. Pope & Runyon represented the plaintiff and Codington & Swackhamer the defendant. The plaintiff has taken an appeal.

BLAME FRENCH LINER.

BOARD OF INQUIRY IN BOURGOGNE DISASTER FIXES BLAME.

The Cromartyshire is Exonerated—The French Liner Was Far Out of Her Course—It Recommends New Courses.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Halifax, Can., July 28, 12:42 p. m.—The decision of the Court of Inquiry into the Bourgogne disaster fixes the blame on the French line of steamships.

The captain of the Cromartyshire is fully exonerated from all blame for the accident. The French liner was out of her course and the error lies with the captain of that craft who went down with his ship.

The court of inquiry recommends that new courses for the Atlantic liners be selected and that vessels be compelled to follow them to prevent the recurrence of such terrible catastrophies.

RAIN FOR BAPTISTS.

SO THEIR EXCURSION TO THE SHORE WAS POSTPONED.

The Date Now Set is August 30th—Thirty Cars Were Ready This Morning to Take Excursionists Despite the Weather.

There is no end of bravery among the members of the Sunday-school of the First Baptist church but this morning was too much for any of them. Today was the day set for the annual excursion of that Sunday-school, its missions and the Grace P. E. church Sunday-school but the weather was against them and the excursion has been postponed.

When the morning dawned and the rain came down in torrents, there was mourning in the land. All the small children who had planned to spend the day on the beach saw their anticipated holiday vanish in the clouds of mist. The morning was too bad even for a Baptist to consider a trip to the seashore and there were few indeed who took the trouble to hurry to the station to see if perchance the excursion might be going afterall.

The Jersey Central railroad did its part, however, despite the rain and two long trains, numbering all thirty cars, were on the siding at an early hour. The committee from the Sunday-school hurried to the scene. There was a hurried conference and it was unanimously decided to postpone the excursion.

It is now announced, after a conference with the railroad officials, that the excursion will take place Tuesday August 30th.

DID HE SWEAR?

The Trial of Adam Fritz Will Take Place in the City Court Saturday.

A trial that will awaken the interest of people from all parts of the city and borough is set down for Saturday morning in the City Court. The parties are Councilman Walter L. Hetfield and Adam Fritz, the well-known horse dealer. The charge against Fritz is for using profane and indecent language.

The prominence of the parties and their popularity will excite great interest in the case, and there is likely to be as big a crowd present to hear it as there was in Justice Nash's court last summer when James Duncan Smedberg was arraigned to stand examination on a charge of robbing Harry Marshall of his jewels.

Fritz has said that he will be his own lawyer and will defend himself. It is likely that he has taken legal advice upon the matter. He has the reputation of saying whatever he intends to say in a forcible and perspicuous manner.

FOUND HIS PAINTINGS.

They Were Recently Brought to Light in Vermont's Capitol.

An interesting item appeared in the Burlington, (Vt.) Daily News under date of July 25th, 1898, concerning Julian Scott, the famous war artist of this city. Mr. Scott is at present visiting in Vermont and on the above date he called at the capitol building in Montpelier. While there he discovered that a number of his paintings had been brought to light. Mr. Scott left the paintings in charge of one of the clerks several years ago, and since then he had given them very little attention or thought. The paintings were shown to Mr. Scott and he immediately recognized them as his own. The paintings are valuable and are prized very much by Mr. Scott.

SPANIARDS STARVING.

Surrender of Guantanamo Reveals Much Suffering.

TOOK PLACE TUESDAY.

SEVEN THOUSAND SPANISH TROOPS LAID DOWN ARMS.

Two Thousand of Them Ill—Suffering Worse Than in Santiago—Lieut. Col. Ewers Received the Surrender—Will Remain.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Santiago de Cuba, July 27, via Playa de Este, July 28, 2:05 p. m.—The representatives of the United States Government formally took possession of the seven thousand Spanish troops and the fortifications at Guantanamo yesterday.

Lieutenant-Colonel Rosell informed the Spanish commander of the surrender of Gen. Toral's forces, which included those at Guantanamo.

He says the conditions at Guantanamo are awful, and that the troops are literally starving. For the last eight days they have had no food.

On mounting guard the soldiers were obliged to sit, being too weak to stand, and it was impossible to make them build trenches, as they fell from exhaustion.

There are 2,000 sick in Guantanamo, suffering from diseases being increased by hunger.

The French cruiser, Rigault de Genouilly, was refused permission by Rear-Admiral Sampson to land grain and provisions for the relief of the French colony at Guantanamo.

All hope was abandoned, and the sufferers were awaiting death from starvation. The conditions at Guantanamo, Col. Rosell says, are worse than they were at Santiago.

Lieut. Col. Ewers of the Ninth Infantry received the surrender of Guantanamo yesterday. The Spanish troops will remain in the town until transported.

KNOWS HOBSON WELL.

PLAINFIELDER ESCORTED HIM TO NEW YORK SATURDAY.

Robert Luckey Met Lieut. Hobson at Jersey City and Accompanied Him To New York — Met Other Heroes.

The comings and goings of Lieutenant Hobson, the hero of the Merrimac incident in the attack on Santiago, have attrracted no little attention since his return to this country. Personal acquaintanceship with Hobson and the other naval heroes of the present war is considered something to be proud of. Robert Luckey, of 311 Orange place, this city, is among those who are personally acquainted with Hobson, as well as Sampson, Schley, Sigsbee and others who have prominently figured in the past events of the war.

Saturday morning, Mr. Luckey was at Jersey City when Lieutenant Hobson arrived. He then had the pleasure of escorting that naval man from there across the Hudson river and to the office of the Merritt Wrecking Company on Wall street.

Mr. Luckey has personally known Lieut. Hobson from the time he was a naval cadet at the Annapolis Naval Academy. He has met many of the principal officers of the American navy through his connection as a member of the firm of Luckey & Sammis, importers and tailors, Broadway and Fulton street, New York.

TIRED OF WEDDED LIFE

MRS. MUELLER SAYS HER HUSBAND LEFT HER AFTER TWO MONTHS.

She is Now Suing for Divorce—Has Been Compelled to Support Herself and Child.—The Testimony Was Taken Yesterday.

Testimony was taken yesterday in Justice Newcorn's office, before Judge Bartine, of Somerville, in the divorce case of Lena Mueller, petitioner, against Nicholas Mueller, defendant. Mrs. Mueller applied for total divorce on the grounds of desertion.

The testimony was all taken yesterday for the petitioner, the defendant not appearing.

Mrs. Mueller, who lives in Union Village, back of Scotch Plains, testified that she and Nicholas Mueller were married on November 17, 1893. After a happy honeymoon and two months of married life, Mueller left his young bride, and has not lived with her or attempted to support her since. He is believed to be in New York.

The couple had one child, which the mother is trying to care for as best she can by daily toil. The marriage occurred at Millington.

She lived for a while at Spotswood, moving recently to Union Village.

Mrs. Mueller saw her husband once in New York, while she was in a hospital there, quite ill, and says that he promised to provide for her if she would return to Union Village. He has not done so, however, so she sues for divorce.

Mrs. Mueller's maiden name was Lena Gerlack. William Newcorn is her attorney.

CO-OPERATION NOT PAYING.

So the Association is Stirring Up Interest to Improve its Condition.

A meeting of the Co-operative Association of Plainfield was held last evening in the basement of Reform Hall. There was a good attendance. Previous to the regular meeting the Board of Trustees of the association was held when some private matters were discussed.

It is a fact that the association is not doing as well as the members would like, and an effort is now being made to place it on a paying basis. For this reason the members were able to secure the presence of James Rhodes, of Cambridge, Mass., secretary of the Co-operative Union, who told the members something regardings of the English system, which he claims to be very successful in other places.

After listening to Mr. Rhodes the members decided to hold a meeting next Saturday evening at the store, corner of Central avenue and West Second street, when Mr. Rhodes will give another talk on co-operation. The members have arranged to serve tea at 7 o'clock Saturday evening, and it is earnestly hoped that all the members will try and be present.

Grandfather Lives in the Borough.

James C. Whitely, the lad, whose remarkable voice is to be heard every evening this week at Music Hall with Sullivan's Troubadours, lived in Plainfield at one time. His grandfather, Special Marshal Francis Whitely, now lives on Steiner place. His father and mother lived on that street ten years ago, when Mr. Whitely conducted a restaurant on North avenue in the store now occupied by Smalley's meat market. They moved to Brooklyn from here and now reside there.

TEMPERANCE MEN OF JERSEY GATHER.

Quarterly Session of Grand Division, S. of T.

HELD HERE YESTERDAY.

A PUBLIC MEETING WAS HELD DURING THE EVENING.

Rev. Mr. Lawson Had to Return to Asbury Park in the Evening—There Were a Number of Other Speakers Present—Distinguished Visitors Were There Also—The Afternoon Session.

The quarterly meeting of the Grand Division, Sons of Temperance, which was held in this city yesterday, came to a close last night with a public meeting in Reform Hall.

The afternoon session began soon after two o'clock, and was occupied with the transaction of routine business, and lasted until six o'clock. Several of the delegates stayed for the evening meeting, but most of them were obliged to go home.

The propogation committee reported a small fund in hand, and other money promised. The money will be used to reorganize the order in different parts of the state where it formerly existed, but has now been given up. It is the desire of the committee to make the order a power for good in New Jersey, and this can only be done, they think, by establishing new branches where they formerly existed as well as in places where the Sons of Temperance have never been.

There are now 600 members in the State, and a small increase was reported since the April meeting.

Rev. Mr. McKane and Elder Benjamin H. Hand, of the Christian church, were introduced, and made a few remarks. Mr. McKane is a member of Howell Division. Mrs. Hayward, of Newark, also spoke. The latter part of the session was given up to listening to remarks by different members of the organization. A vote of thanks was extended to Howell Division for the hospitable manner in which the Division had entertained the delegates. After deciding to meet in the fall at Metuchen, the business session was adjourned.

The attendance at the evening session was quite large. The original programme was so long that several numbers had to be omitted. Most Worthy Patriarch Rev. A. G. Lawson, of Camden, who was expected to talk, had to go to Asbury Park last night and speak there so was unable to be present at the meeting. The programme included talks by several members. Among the speakers was James Perrine, of Brooklyn, the first Worthy Patriarch of Howell Division, and the only charter member now living, or connected with the order.

Three pieces of music formed the orchestra. There were vocal selections by Mrs. Manley. The other speakers were Mr. Drake, who instituted Howell Division, and Right Grand Scribe Henry B. Howell, of Trenton, after whom Howell Division was named. Mr. McLeod, Mr. Murray and Mrs. Hayward, of Newark, also spoke.

The address of welcome was delivered by Worthy Patriarch M. Armstrong. Benjamin W. Hand offered prayer.

LAW STUDENTS WANT HOLIDAY.

Petition the Local Lawyers in Rhyme to Give Them Saturday Afternoon.

Several months ago the law students in this city determined that they deserved the Saturday half-holiday. At a meeting they drew up a petition, which has so far been signed by eleven students and four or five lawyers.

It is how planned to present it to the lawyers in a few days with a request that it be heeded.

The petition is in verse, and cites several reasons why Saturday half-holidays should be granted. Several lawyers have promised to sign the petition if some other lawyer signs it, but the students will appoint a committee to interview all the lawyers, and try, if possible, to obtain their signatures.

Valuable Horse Hurt.

A valuable black mare owned by William VanSyckle, the North avenue butcher, fell down on East Third street yesterday afternoon and sustained severe injuries. Her forelegs were badly skinned, as was also her face. She was being driven to a butcher wagon at the time and Mr. VanSyckle's young son was driving with a slack rein. The horse stumbled and before Mr. VanSyckle's man, who was in the wagon, could catch the reins, the animal went down. The horse is now out of use and will be laid up for sometime.

William Woodland, of the borough, is having his vacation.

COM. SCHLEY'S REPORT

The Fighting Dutchman Tells of The Naval Fight.

PRAISE FOR MANY HEROES

Schley Reports to Sampson That the Victory Won by the Fleet Under Your Command Is Big Enough for All. He Gives Special Mention to Capt. Clark of the Oregon and Many Others Who Helped to Win the Victory.

In our issue of yesterday we presented our readers with the official report of Admiral Sampson relative to the destruction of Cervera's fleet. It was accompanied by reports of several other officers, who participated, among them that of Commodore Schley, which we give in full below. The two reports show that there was no friction between Sampson and Schley, but that the best of feeling prevails.

Washington, July 28.

North Atlantic Fleet, Second Squadron, U. S. Flagship Brooklyn, Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, July 26, 1898.

The Commander-in-Chief, U. S. Naval Force, North Atlantic Station:

Sir: 1. I have the honor to make the following report of that part of the squadron under your command which came under my observation during the engagement with the Spanish fleet on July 3, 1898.

2. At 9.35 a. m., Admiral Cervera, with the Infanta Maria Teresa, Vizcaya, Oquendo, Cristobal Colon and two torpedo boat destroyers, came out of the harbor of Santiago de Cuba, in column, at distance, and attempted to escape to the westward. Signal was made from the Iowa that the enemy was coming out; but his movement had been discovered from this ship at the same moment; this vessel was the furthest west, except the Vixen, on the blockading line. Signal was made to the western division, as prescribed in your general orders, and there was immediate and rapid movement inward by your squadron and a general engagement at ranges beginning at 1,100 yards and varying to 3,000, until the Vizcaya was destroyed, about 10.50 a. m. The concentration of the fire of the squadron upon the ships coming out was most furious and terrific, and great damage was done to them.

COMMODORE SCHLEY.

3. About twenty or twenty-five minutes after the engagement began, two vessels, thought to be the Maria Teresa and Oquendo, and since verified as such, took fire from the effective shelling of the squadron and were forced to run on the beach some six or seven miles west of the harbor entrance where they burned and blew up later. The torpedo boat destroyers were destroyed early in the action, but the smoke was so dense in their direction that I cannot say to which vessel or vessels the credit belongs. This, doubtless, was better seen from your flagship.

4. The Vizcaya and Colon, perceiving the disaster to their consorts, continued at full speed to the westward to escape, and were followed and engaged in a running fight with the Brooklyn, Texas, Iowa and Oregon, until 10.50, when the Vizcaya took fire from our shells. She put her helm to port, and, with a heavy list to port, stood in shore and ran aground at Ascerraderos about twenty miles west of Santiago, on fire fore and aft, and where she blew up during the night. Observing that she had struck her colors and that several vessels were nearing her to capture and save her crew, signal was made to cease firing. The Oregon proving vastly faster than the other battleships, she and the Brooklyn, together with the Texas and another vessel, which proved to be your flagship, continued westward in pursuit of the Colon, which had run close to shore, evidently seeking some good spot to beach if she should fail to elude her pursuers.

5. This pursuit continued with increasing speed in the Brooklyn, Oregon and other ships, and soon the Brooklyn and the Oregon were within long range of the Colon, when the Oregon opened fire with her 13-inch guns, landing a shell close to the Colon. A moment afterward the Brooklyn opened fire with her 8-inch guns, landing a shell just ahead of her. Several other shells were fired at the Colon, now in range of the Brooklyn's and Oregon's guns. Her commander, seeing all chance of escape cut off, and destruction awaiting his ship, fired a lee gun and struck her flag at 1.15 p. m., and ran ashore at a point some fifty miles west of Santiago harbor. Your flagship was coming up rapidly at the time as was also the Texas and Vixen. A little later, after your arrival, the Cristobal Colon, which had struck to the Brooklyn and the Oregon, was turned over to you as one of the trophies of this great victory of the squadron under your command.

6. During my official visit, a little later, Commander Eaton of the Resolute appeared and reported to you the presence of a Spanish battleship near Altares. Your orders to me were to take the Oregon and go eastward to meet her, and this was done by the Brooklyn with the result that the vessel reported as an enemy was discovered to be the Austrian cruiser Infanta Maria Teresa, seeking the commander-in-chief.

7. I would mention for your consideration that the Brooklyn occupied the most westward blockading position, with the Vixen, and, being more directly in the route taken by the Spanish squadron, was exposed for some minutes, possibly ten, to the gun fire of three of the Spanish ships, and the west battery, at a range of 1,500 yards from the ships and about 3,000 yards from the batteries, but the vessels of the entire squadron, closing in rapidly, soon diverted this fire, and did magnificent work at close range. I have never before witnessed such deadly and fatally accurate shooting as was done by the ships of your command as they closed in on the Spanish squadron, and I deem it a high privilege to commend to you for such action as you may deem proper the gallantry and dashing courage, the prompt decision and skillful handling of their respective vessels of Captain Phillip, Captain Evans, Captain Clark and especially of my chief of staff, Captain Cook, who was directly under my personal observation, and whose coolness, promptness and courage were of the highest order. The dense smoke of the combat shut out from my view the Indiana and Gloucester, but as these vessels were closer to your flagship no doubt their part in the conflict was under your immediate observation.

8. Lieutenant Sharp, commanding the Vixen, acted with conspicuous courage; although unable to engage the heavier ships of the enemy with his light guns, nevertheless was close into the battle line, under heavy fire, and many of the enemy's shots passed beyond his vessel.

9. I beg to invite especial attention to the conduct of my flag lieutenant, James H. Sears, and Ensign Edward McCauley, Jr., aid, who were constantly at my side during the engagement and who exposed themselves fearlessly in discharging their duties; and also to the splendid behavior of my secretary, Lieutenant B. W. Wells, Jr., who commanded and directed the fighting of the fourth division with splendid effect.

10. I would commend the highly meritorious conduct and courage in the engagement of Lieutenant Commander N. E. Mason, the executive officer, whose presence everywhere over the ship during its continuance did much to secure the good result of this ship's part in the victory.

11. The navigator, Lieutenant A. C. Hodgson, and the division officers, Lieutenant T. D. Griffin, Lieutenant W. P. Rush, Lieutenant Edward Simpson, Lieutenant J. G. Doyle, Ensign Charles Webster and the junior divisional officers, were most steady and conspicuous in every detail of duty contributing to the accurate firing of this ship in their part of the great victory of your forces.

12. The officers of the medical, pay and engineer and marine corps, responded to every demand of the occasion and were fearless in exposing themselves. The warrant officers, Boatswain William L. Hill, Carpenter G. H. Warford and Gunner T. T. Applegate, were everywhere exposed, in watching for damage, reports of which were promptly conveyed to me.

13. I have never in my life served with a braver, better or worthier crew than that of the Brooklyn. During the combat, lasting from 9.30 until 1.15 p. m., much of the time under fire, they never flagged for a moment, and were apparently undisturbed by the storm of projectiles passing ahead, astern and over the ship.

14. The result of the engagement was the destruction of the Spanish squadron and the capture of the admiral, and some 1,300 to 1,500 prisoners, with the loss of several hundred killed, estimated by Admiral Cervera at 600 men.

15. The casualties on board of this ship were: G. H. Ellis, chief yeoman, killed; J. Burns, fireman, first class, severely wounded. The marks and scars show that the ship was struck about twenty-five times, and she bears in all forty-one scars as the result of her participation in the great victory of your forces on July 3, 1898. The speed cone halyiards were shot away, and nearly all the signal halyiards. The ensign at the main was so shattered that in hauling it down at the close of the action it fell in pieces.

16. I congratulate you most sincerely upon this great victory to the squadron under your command, and I am glad that I had an opportunity to contribute in the least to a victory that seems big enough for us all.

17. I have the honor to transmit herewith the report of the cammanding officer and a drawing in profile of the ship, showing the location of hits and scars; also a memorandum of the ammunition expended and the amount to fill her allowance.

18. Since reaching this place and holding conversation with several of the captains, Captain Eulate of the Vizcaya, and the second in command of the Colon, Commander Controror, I have learned that the Spanish admiral's scheme was to concentrate all fire for a while on the Brooklyn, and the Vizcaya to ram her, in hopes, if they could destroy her, that the chance of escape would be increased, as it was supposed she was the swiftest ship of your squadron. This explains the heavyfire mentioned in the Vizcaya's action in the earlier moments of the engagement. The execution of this purpose was promptly defeated by the fact that all the ships of the squadron advanced into close range and opened an irresistible and terrific fire upon the enemy's squadron as it was coming out of the harbor.

19. I am glad to say that the injury supposed to be below the water line was due to a water valve being opened from some unknown cause and flooding the compartment. The injury to the belt is found to be only slight and the leak small.

20. I beg to enclose a list of the officers and crew who participated in the combat of July 3, 1898.

21. I cannot close this report without mentioning in high terms of praise the splendid conduct and support of Captain C. E. Clark of the Oregon. Her speed was wonderful and her accurate fire splendidly destructive.

Very respectfully,

W. S. SCHLEY,

Commodore United States Navy, Commanding Second Squadron, North Atlantic Fleet.

Off for Honolulu.

San Francisco, July 28.--The Philadelphia came down from Mare island and hoisted Admiral Miller's flag. She sailed at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon for Honolulu. GLOUCESTER'S PART IN THE FIGHT Commander Wainwright Modestly Tells His Story of Cervera,s Destruction.

Washington, July 28.--The following is the full text of the report of Lieutenant Commander Wainwright of the Gloucester, formerly of the battleship Maine, of the part his men took in the great naval victory off Santiago on July 3.

U. S. S. Gloucester,

Off Santiago de Cuba, July 6, 1898.

Sir: I have the honor to report that at the battle of Santiago on July 3, the officers and crew of the Gloucester were uninjured and the vessel was not injured in hull or machinery, the battery only requiring some slight overhauling.

It was the plain duty of the Gloucester to look after the destroyers, and she was held back, gaining steam, until they appeared at the entrance. The Indiana poured in a hot fire from all her secondary battery upon the destroyers, but Captain Taylor's signal, "gunboats close in," gave security that we would not be fired upon by our own ships. Until the leading destroyer was injured our course was converging necessarily, but as soon as she slackened her speed we headed directly for both vessels, firing both port and starboard batteries as the occasion offered.

"DICK" WAINWRIGHT.

All the officers and nearly all the men deserve my highest praise during the action. The escape of the Gloucester was due mainly to the accuracy and rapidity of the fire. The efficiency of this fire, as well as that of the ship generally, was largely due to the intelligence and unremitting efforts of the executive officer, Lieutenant Harry P. Huse. The result is more to his credit when it is remembered that a large portion of the officers and men were untrained when the Gloucester was commissioned. Throughout the action he was on the bridge and carried out my orders with great coolness. That we were able to close in with the destroyers, and until we did so they were not seriously injured, was largely due to the skill and constant attention of Passed Assistant Engineer George W. McElroy. The blowers were put on and the speed increased to 17 knots without causing a tube to leak or a brass to heat. Lieutenant Thomas C. Wood, Lieutenant George H. Norman, Jr., and Ensign John T. Edson, not only controlled the fire of the guns in their divisions and prevented waste of ammunition, but they also did some excellent shooting themselves. Acting Assistant Surgeon J. F. Bransford took charge of one of the guns and fired it himself occasionally. Acting Assistant Paymaster Alexander Brown had charge of the two Colt guns, firing one himself, and they did excellent work. Assistant Engineer A. M. Proctor carried my orders from the bridge and occasionally fired a gun when I found it was not being served quite satisfactorily.

Lieutenants Wood and Norman, Ensign Edson and Assistant Engineer Proctor were in charge of the boats engaged in saving life. They all risked their lives repeatedly in boarding and remaining near the two destroyers and the two armored cruisers when their guns were being discharged by the heat and their magazines and boilers were exploding.

Of the men mentioned in the several reports I would call special attention to John Bond, chief boatswain's mate. He would have been recommended to the department for promotion, prior to his gallant conduct during the action of July 3. I would also recommend to your attention Robert P. Jennings, the chief machinist, mentioned in the report of Mr. McElroy. I believe it would have a good effect to recognize the skill of the men and the danger incurred by the engineers' force.

Very respectfully,

RICHARD WAINWRIGHT,

Lieutenant Commander, U. S. N., Commanding.

To the Commander-in-Chief, U. S. Naval Forces, North Atlantic Station.

The King of Spain Ill With the Measles

Madrid, July 28.--Inquiries made at the palace here confirm the report that the king is suffering from the measles. But the attack is following its usual course.

Women as Station Agents.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company has eighteen women in its employ as station agents, and the superintendents are much pleased with the way in which they perform their duties. These women act as both freight and ticket agents, and it is said in their favor by the travelling auditors that their accounts are always perfectly straight. Another prominent feature of their work is the fact that their offices are cleaner than those presided over by men. Of the eighteen now in the service six are unmarried, and of the other twelve a majority are widows of former employees of the road.—New York Tribune.

Willing.

"No, madam," said Meandering Mike; "I'm sorry, but it's ag'in my principles. I can't split no wood."

"Well," she answered, "there will be a load of coal here this afternoon and—"

"I'm sorry ag'in; but I can't carry no coal. But I'll tell you what I will do. I'll compromise. Ef you've got a gas stove I'll turn on the gas fur ye."—Washington Star.

CONDITIONS OF PEACE

Spain Will Be Required to Yield Much to Obtain It.

NO TRIFFLING TOLERATED

Secretary Day and President McKinley Confer Relative to Spain's Communication. An Answer Will Be Given to Ambassador Cambon Friday. Spain Has Not Yet Asked for Terms

Washington, D. C., July 28.--Secretary of State William R. Day was in conference with the president yesterday relative to the answer to be given to Spain's peace message. Yesterday afternoon the president, with Mr. Day and Postmaster General Smith went over the situation and reviewed the course to be taken. A final conclusion will not be reached until the cabinet has an opportunity to take up Spain's noteand our projected answer. There will be no extra session of the cabinet and the matter will not be placed before the president's advisers until Friday, when reply will be definitely settled.

The Spanish government will have the answer by Friday night or Saturday morning.

It is likely that if the Spanish government is really in earnest in its desire for peace that our government will consent to an armistice as a preliminary. But it can be stated positively the president is determined to lose no ground through Spanish diplomacy.

Military operations are to go on steadily so far as the United States are concerned until the negotiations have advanced much farther than they are at present. They are subject to interruption at any moment by an armistice, but it must be said that this is scarcely expected immediately. It is realized that when the Spanish government learns the extent of the demands to be made by the United States the first effect will b to induce a reflex movement, which in turn will result in the continuation of active hostilities for a time.

This time it is expected, however, will be brief, perhaps so long as is necessary for General Miles to completely invest San Juan de Porto Rico. That stroke, it is thought, will bring the Spanish government to a realizing sense of hopelessness of further resistance, if it has not before that time yielded to the earnest representations of those European powers that have been so persistnt in their efforts to secure peace. Military experts allow two weeksas the maximum period of time necessary for General Miles to secure this commanding position and therefore it is hoped that within that space of time the Spanish government will have been brought, not exactly to the approval of a treaty of peace, but to an application for an armistice that in its conditions will amount to a concession of those things most desired by the United States government.

Negotiations Must Be Openly.

As to the terms to be imposed by the United States, it seems probable that our state department is again about to give the diplomats of the old world a lesson in straightforward dealing, abandoning the devious paths of old time diplomacy and striking straightforward and without double dealing and hair splitting toward the object in view. In such negotiations, conducted on the broad and high plane which has characterized the attitude of the United States government from the very beginning of the controversy with Spain which led up to the war, there will be little chance for the successful exercise of what is termed Spanish diplomacy. There will not be any disposition shown to take undue advantage of the position of a defeated and helplessnation, but to justify and secure the indulgent treatment that the United States are now in a temper to accord to the Spanish negotiations must be honestly, fairly, openly and directly conducted.

Has Not Been Requested to Name Terms.

Another point is the exact proposition made by Spain. There has been some misapprehension over this, owing to the publication of an alleged text of the proposition and other reports asserting that Spain asked President McKinley to state the terms of peace.

As a matter of fact the Spanish proposition does not mention the words terms and there is no request or suggestion in it that the president shall state the terms of peace.

Generally stated, two propositions seem included in all lists of demands, namely, first, the absolute independence of Cuba, with the provision that the island shall be absolved from responsibility for any debt heretofore charged against it by Spain. The last clause, it is expected, will cause some friction, inasmuch as it is certain to arouse to desperate resistance certain European holders of bonds issued by Spain based on the revenues of Cuba.

The second proposition is the absolute cession of Porto Rico to the United States, likewise unencumbered by a liability for any bonded indebtedness. It is believed that Spain has practically made up her mind to this condition before instituting the overtures for peace.

Another point upon which the United States, it is believed, will insist, is the cession of certain coaling stations in the Ladrones and Carolines, probably Guamisland on the former and Yap island in the latter, and perhaps one other in a different quarter of the world not yet designated. These territorial concessions, it is expected, will be regarded as sufficient by our government as compensation for the expenditures made by this country without a specific demand for money indemnity.

The Troublesome Philippines.

The last consideration is the one which promises to give more trouble than any other, namely, the settlement of the future of the Philippines. There is reason to believe that the president himself has not determined how this subject shall be treated. A coaling station is wanted there, but beyond that it may be that we will not care to go. An entirely different attitude might have been assumed by our government but for the course adopted by the insurgents under Aguinaldo, which, it is asserted, leaves the United States under no moral obligations to care for his people.

Since the war the insurgents have assumed a very imperious attitude and have conducted their military operations without particular reference to the wishes of the American commander, Admiral Dewey; have been generally intractable in their relations with our troops and sailors, and finally have set up an independent government of theirown absolutely without reference to the United States.

These things, it is held here, are quite sufficient to absolve our government from responsibility for what happens to Aguinaldo in the future, though, of course, it is not meant by this to assert that it has definitely made up its mind to relinquish all claims to the islands, beyond the coaling stations already referred to.

The Question of Indemnity.

Touching the question of indemnity, it may be stated that our government will not be in the mood to abandon any claim of this score if Spain, by further resistance, obliges it to go to the heavy expense of sending a naval expedition to Spain and of continuing on a large scale the military movements now under way.

EMBARKING FOR PORTO RICO

Troops Boarding Many Transports in the James.

Norfolk, Va., July 28.--There is great activity on the transports in James river, and many troops are going on board the Washington, Massachusetts, Roumania, Seneca and Leona, the latter having arrived yesterday morning. It is thought that the first of the Porto Rico expedition will leave to-day. Lighters are ready to take about three thousand of the men to Old Point to embark on the St. Louis and St. Paul, which may sail this afternoon. General Brooke, the commander of the expedition, it is stated, will sail on the former.

Brooke's Army Sails.

Newport News, Va., July 28.--At seven o'clock last evening the huge Massachusetts swung from the pier into midstream, the first transport prepared for the Brooke expedition to Porto Rico. The Roumanian followed and lastly the City of Washington. There they anchored until after midnight, when they started to join the St. Paul and St. Louis. By daylight the entire fleet was on its way to reinforce General Miles and assist him in maintaining the precarious foothold he has established in the island.

CAIMANERA HAS SURRENDERED

The Captives Are a Ragged and Hungry Lot.

Guantanamo Bay, Province of Santiago de Cuba, July 27.--Colonel Ewers has returned to Santiago after receiving the surrender of the Spanish troops at Caimanera.

He was accompanied by Mr. Brooks, the British consul, and officers from Caimanera. Colonel Ewers will probably return here after consultation with General Shafter.

Caimanera was found to be strongly defended and rifle pits and earthworks completely surrounded the village.

Only the smokestack of the Sandoval, the Spanish gunboat sunk at that place is visible above the water, and it is improbable that she can be raised.

The Spanish troops at Caimanera are a ragged and hungry lot.

Ensign Pratt, who had charge of the launch from the Marblehead which took Colonel Ewers to Caimanera, says that the Spaniards asked for permission to fire off their field pieces and muzzle loading guns, because they could not unload them.

The Marblehead went up toward Caimanera this morning for the purpose of raising the mines there.

NO WORD FROM DEWEY

Officials in Washington Could Not Confirm Reports of Fall of Manila.

Washington, July 28.--The officials in Washington received no word from Dewey up to late yesterday, despite the reports that Manila had surrendered.

The officials said they had no private information of the report, nor had they any word that even the dispatch boat had arrived at Hong Kong from Manila.

They acknowledged, however, that word was due from Admiral Dewey at this time and that it might come at any moment. What its nature would be, or when it would arrive, the officials at the war and navy departments were unable to predict.

Hawaii Hears of Annexation.

Honolulu, July 20, by way of San Francisco, July 28.--The steamship Coptic arrived from San Francisco on the evening of July 13, with the important news that the United States Senate had ratified the Newlands resolution making Hawaii a part of the United States. Long before the vessel had reached the harbor it was known that the steamer brought annexation news, the information being signalled to the Mohican.

Whistles of foundries, mills and steamers were turned loose and there was great noise and excitement. Fireworks were set off and 100 guns wre fired on the grounds of the executive building.

Fatal Powder-Mill Explosion.

Pinole, Cal., July 28.--At 1.40 yesterday morning an explosion took place in the nitroglycerine house of the Hercules Powder Company. No one was in the building. A crew was sent to clear away the debris, and at 4.15 a terrific explosion took place, killing five men and injuring twelve others, some fatally perhaps.

Prince Bismarck's Condition.

Hamburg, July 28.--The health of Prince Bismarck is again causing his friends uneasiness. He has been confined to his bed for three days and suffers from insomnia. His physician, Dr. Schweninger, Counts Herbert and William Bismarck, with their wives, are now at Friedrichsruhe.

Quarantined for a Week.

Tampa, July 28.--Five transports are now in quarantine here, which have arrived from Santiago to transport that part of the Porto Rico expedition in camp here. All will be required to remain in quarantine here for seven days so that the Porto Rico expedition from here cannot sail before ten days.

AFFAIRS AT SANTIAGO

Surgeon General Reports Many Cases of Fever.

A NEW FIELD HOSPITAL

The Dispute Concerning the Ships Taken in the Harbor Decided in Favor of Gen. Shafter. A Town Taken by the Cubans. The Price of Bread Fixed. The Discount on Silver. Many Cases of Fever Reported.

Santiago de Cuba, July 27.--A new field hospital will be established in the vicinity of General Shafter's hedquarters, near the trenches. The surgeon general says that there are, roughly, 2,000 cases of fever, 500 of which are of yellow fever.

Colonel Watson, commissarit, has been appointed chief of the custom house.

The dispute between Rear Admiral Sampson and General Shafter regarding the prizes in Santiago harbor, has been settled in favor of General Shafter. The four merchantmen and the gunboat, it is decided, were included in the capitulation of the city, and are military prizes.

Colonel Howard of the Eighth Ohio, dissatisfied with inaction at Santiago, has cabled to President McKinley, asking that his corps be put into active service in Porto Rico or ordered home.

At Songa, a small town eighteen miles from Santiago, on the railway line, a Spanish garrison of 350 men, commanded by Captain Carhaval, surrendered yesterday on being informed of the capitulation of General Toral. The surrender was made to the Cubans, and General Castillo's men will occupy the town.

Dr. Joaquin Castillo leaves in a few days for Washington with a petition by the Cuban residents of Santiago, regarding the exclusion of the Cuban army from the town.

General Wood to-day issued orders prohibiting the collection of a municipal tax. The local Spanish authorities were collecting a tax on merchants' goods for consumption, also a small tax on packages.

The local board for harbor improvement purposes had intimated to the civil governor that no taxes had been authorized.

General Shafter has issued a proclamation ordering every householder to immediately report to the mayor or military governor any death occurring in his household, a penalty for failure being fixed at thirty days hard labor in the streets. All policemen are ordered to report cases of malignant diseases in their district and all unsanitary conditions.

Bakers will be allowed to charge only twenty cents, Spanish, for a pound loaf of bread. This is made necessary by the famine prices which are charged for bread. Many cargoes of flour have come in, making excessive charges for bread unnecessary.

The Spanish store keepers still discount United States silver 50 per cent. Some refuse to take it at all.

DISPOSAL OF SHAFTER'S MEN

Surgeon Sternberg in Favor of Montauk Point.

Washington, July 28.--Surgeon General Sternberg has reported to Secretary Alger favorably on the selection of Montauk Point as an encampment for the troops under General Shafter in Santiago. The report says that the locality is healthful, cooled by breezes from the ocean, ample in area for the purpose, having a fine port, and easily supplied with good water. There has been objection to the selection of Montauk by army surgeons, some of whom have gone so far as to intimate that political and commercial interests prompted the suggestion. They declare that the loose, sandy soil, the absence of shade, and the presence of mosquitoes more than counterbalance any advantages the place may possess. An effort is obviously making by these men to connect in some way the Austin Corbin estate with the personality of Adjutant General Corbin and to make this a basis for attributing the choice of the place to favoritism.

The Camp at Tampa Abandoned.

Tampa, July 28.--Acting on a recommendation made by General Coppinger, the war department has ordered the removal of all the troops from Tampa who are not included in the number to be sent to Porto Rico on the expedition now in preparation. There are still in Tampa about eleven thousand soldiers; the expedition to Porto Rico will carry six thousand men, including the Fifth Unitel States cavalry, the Fifth United States infantry, two batteries of the Seventh artillery and a brigade under General Hudson, consisting of the Fifth Maryland, Second Georgia, and First Florida volunteer regiments. The other troops here are detachments of the First, Second and Third United States cavalry, four troops of Roosevelt's Rough Riders, the Third Pennsylvania, First Ohio, and One Hundred and Fifty-seventh Indiana regiments, all of whom are to be sent to Savannah immediately.

Peace Talk in Spain.

Madrid, July 28.--It is reported that the government will protest to the powers against the continuance of the American campaign by landing troops in Porto Rico after Spain has sued for peace.

The cabinet yesterday considered the consequences which are likely to ensue from the landing of the Americans in Porto Rico.

Senor Aunon, minister of marine, says that Admiral Cervera and his officers will not return to Spain with the officers and men from Santiago, but will be brought home after peace negotiations are opened with the United States.

The Spanish Transatlantic line steamers which are to bring the Santiago troops back to Spain have started for Cuba.

Whiskey for the Klondike.

Seattle, July 28.--The steamer Roanoke has sailed for St. Michael. She carried fifteen passengers, sixteen tons of freight, which included 6,000 gallons of whiskey for Dawson City.

Subscribers leaving the city for the summer season can have The Daily Press sent to their new address by notifying the buisness office. The address will be changed as often as desired. "Home news" will prove most interesting while you are away.

COMING EVENTS.

July 31—John Gilchrist from Living Water mission, New York, will speak at the Y. M. C. A. at 4:15 p. m. Whistling solos. Lemonade and fans.

Poor Advertising.

It is with regret that we notice the new signs that a number of the local merchants are having cut into the stone pavements in front of their establishments. A wandering painter and stone-cutter visited the city several days ago and made the rounds of the city. He first cut the names of the merchants on the stone and then colored them with crimson paint. As a result, the name is there to stay.

Now, while there is nothing absolutely objectionable in the signs, they do not seem to follow the usual business methods of the city. They seem to follow too closely, to please the public eye, on the practices of Baxter street, New York.

Considerable comment has been caused, much of which has been unfavorable, and many are inclined to believe them poor policy for the merchants.

Not only has the sign on the sidewalk an unsightly appearance, but it will necessitate the removal of the stone from the sidewalk in case of any change of owner or location. As regards its worth in advertising, the money spent thus could have been far more profitably spent in other methods of a more legitimate order.

A Cause for Sorrow.

Gen. Ballington Booth, the commander of the American Volunteers, is one of the leading characters of this age. His name and fame have been heard from ocean to ocean. Many thousands have assembled to hear him speak. It is really a shame that Plainfield should not accord such a man of note a reception worthy of his abilities. Last Monday night he appeared in the Y. M. C. A. hall under the auspices of the local Volunteer post. The audience was small, lamentably small. Gen. Booth has been here before, but never has he been asked to speak to so few. Knowing the temperament of the Plainfield people, one would imagine that they would turn out to hear such a speaker. Let us hope, however, that when any other great man of the day comes to this city he will receive more encouragement than the great Volunteer leader did.

The Weather Again.

Now the weather has been an old stand-by topic for conversation from time immemorial. Even our original parents in the Garden of Eden probably discoursed upon it. During the last week, however, any way would be excusable who referred to the remarkable weather we have been having. Everybody carries an umbrella now, no matter how promising the day.

It has rained or sprinkled now every day for nearly two weeks, and while the sun comes out at intervals, the weather can never be depended on. Once in a while it rains hard, but it is generally a fine mist that threatens to break into a shower, but, somehow, doesn't.

Delinquent Taxes.

The wisdom of the change made by the Common Council in placing Collector Bird in charge of the collection of delinquent taxes, with a slight increase in salary, is already apparent dispite Editor Runyon's protests. Thus far this month, Collector Bird has collected nearly $7,000 in delinquent taxes. Under the old method, 10 per cent. was paid for collection to the delinquent tax collector, who was appointed by the Council. Thus there is a saving of nearly $700 to the city. And yet Editor Runyon says that Mr. Bird's salary should be cut down. The Councilmen appreciate the situation, however, and rightly say that Mr. Bird is not paid too much for the work he does.

THE FARRAGUT.

The torpedo boat destroyer Farragut, recently launched at San Francisco, is built on the lines of the British torpedo boat destroyer Desperate, somewhat enlarged. She was christened by Miss "Betty" Ashe, of San Francisco, whose aunt was the wife of the late Admiral Farragut, for whom the new boat was named.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

While the peach crop will undoubtedly be less than a half an average one this year, it is almost sure to bring more clear money to the county than such a crop as we had last year. The fruit will be better and prices higher.—Hunterdon County Republican.

New Brunswickers and other Middlesex county people are directly interested in the trolley extensions now being made in Bound Brook and Dunellen. Months before the snow flies it will be possible to take a car at Sayreville bridge and ride straight through to Somerville or Plainfield. Manager Radel is certainly keeping his promise to give the people of this county a trolley service equal to any in the State. But what is the matter with the people of Perth Amboy. They certainly should hurry up their Board of Aldermen and see to it that the franchise is granted for the extension from Metuchen to Perth Amboy. That would practically gridiron the northern section of the county and give a perfect service from all the main distributing points in every direction.—New Brunswick Times.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Hopewell has a wonder. It is a fisherman who tells the truth. It is such a remarkable thing for a disciple of the immortal Izaak Walton to get anywhere near the truth that the farmers around Hopewell throng to the place where he is to gaze in open-eyed wonder at such a rare character. Even the good folk that rule the office of the Hunterdon County Democrat have taken exception to such unnatural conduct. Thus writes the scribe in that office:

F. M. Leigh, the telegraph operator at Hopewell, has been fishing twenty-two days this season, and admits to the reporter of the Hopewell "Herald" that he has caught but two small sunfish. Such an exhibition of veracity renders this Knight of the Electric Key unfit to associate with the club under the old elm in front of this office.

"What remarkable tree is this?" exclaimed a stranger walking down West Front street a few days ago, as he looked at a large tree laden with scarlet blossoms of a trumpet shape in the yard of I. M. Runyon. "It is the traditional clinging ivy and sturdy oak, with variations," answered the townsman, familar with the sight. Closer observation showed that the trunk of the large old tree was only a support for a fine trumpet creeper that had climbed to its very top and was sending out its brilliant flowers in every direction, producing an effect that might well impress a botanist with the thought that he had found a new and rare speciman of flowering tree.

Many of the people of Westfield are interested in the Fresh-Air work being done in that town, and many of them visit the Camp, to attend the religious meetings and to insist in the work there. One night recently, when a large number of Plainfield people were at the Camp, a mortherly Westfield woman was caring for one of the babies, holding in her arms, wrapped up in a quilt. One of the Plainfield young women entering into conversation with her, she asked if the latter did not think the child strikingly resembled its temporary nurse. The Plainfielder looked from one to the other. There was little to be seen of the baby but the top of its head, as it was so muffled in wrapping, but the formation of the forehead was much the same as that of the other, and the young girl replied that she "thought perhaps there was a resemblance." The Westfield woman laughed, as she loosened the baby's wrappings, and stood it up, disclosing the fact that it was an Italian child, with large rings in its tiny ears, and its nationality strongly marked in every feature. Probably she was not especially gratified at the supposed resemblance being so quickly agreed to, and the Plainfielder has come to the conclusion that it is scarcely safe to judge of a face by a very small portion of it.

THEATRICAL.

Current Dramatic Attractions That Plainfielders Can Witness.

John L. Sullivan, the veteran pugilist-actor, is booked to appear at Music Hall August 12, with a brand-new company. Corbett has been here, but this is the first appearance in Plainfield of the famous "John L."

TROUBADOURS STILL HERE.

The Flame Dance by Flora is Attracting Much Atteution.

The threatening weather kept pace with the appearance of Sullivan's Troubadours at Music Hall last evening, but, nevertheless, an enthusiastic audience came out to enjoy the performance. As usual, the programme was entirely different from this on preceding nights.

One of the novel features of the performance that has attracted unusual attention is the flame dance of "Flora," which forms a portion of her "transformation dance." The effect is positively marvelous and truly represents the waving, dancing light of a long tongue of flame.

To-night, "Oliver Twist" will be given as part of the performance.

ENDEAVORERS AWHEEL.

Will Conduct Another Meeting at Westfield Fresh Air Camp.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Congregational church are to have charge of the gospel meeting at the Westfield Fresh Air Camp tomorrow night. It is to be hoped the weather authorities will produce some good weather for the ocasion, for it is the intention of the society to go to the camp on their wheels. In case the weather is fit for wheeling the bicycle squad is requested to meet at 338 Franklin place, promptly at 7.15 o'clock. If the roads are not in sufficiently good condition, the Endeavorers will assemble at the North Avenue station in time to take the 7:03 train, returning by the train which leaves Westfield shortly after 9 o'clock.

—At the meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society of Warren chapel Tuesday evening, Miss Dolly Bolsterli, a delegate to the recent National C. E. convention, will make a report.

The Clearing Sale of Shirt Waists.

With the close of July comes the greatest price-cutting—the most attractive values ever offered. The remaining stock is divided into two lots, 49c. and 75c., former prices ranged from 75c to $1.50. There's not 200 waists in the entire assortment, so we advise an early call for the best selection.

Sailor Hats and Untrimmed Hats 49c.

This means that each and every hat, irrespective of former price, will be 49c. Of especial interest should the price be, as none have been less than 75c, and the styles offered are all of this season's production.

Men's Negligee Shirts 59c.

Sounds cheap, but the hundred or more shirts that go on sale have been selling at 75c., 85c. and $1. The patterns are all new and desirable, the kind that you would like. Clearing time is here, and the new price, 59c., will be the means of their quick disposal.

Men's Summer Underwear 20c.

Nearly 600 pieces gauze underwear to be 20c. This is ordinarily the best 25c underwear sold, but 20c will be the clearing price.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Dunellen, July 28.—Rev. A. I. Martine, of Church street, has returned from a visit with New York friends.

W. S. Stimpson, of Towanda, Pa., owns a house in the borough on the road leading to West Dunellen. About three weeks ago nine well-known young men of the borough paid a visit to the house and played havoc. They tore off blinds, roof, broke panes of glass, and in general caused much destruction. Paul Kratzel, of North avenue, is agent for the house, and he soon learned who committed the depredations. He has given them notice that if the damage is not repaired within a few days he will apply for a legal settlement.

North avenue, at present, is far from being in good condition. The recent rains have softened the ground, and this together with the laying of the trolley tracks, has made travelling difficult. It is to be hoped that the trolley company will soon have the street in excellent shape.

The first series of the Dunellen Building and Loan Association will run out about January 1st. This series has been running eleven years and all things considered this is remarkably quick time.

Last Tuesday evening Mrs. J. G. Taylor, of Church street, entertained a party of friends from out of town.

Next week the Board of Education will hold a meeting to talk over repairs for the schools.

The trolley poles are now up and the work of stringing wires will be started soon.

Miss Humble, of North Plainfield, has been visiting Mrs. Richardson, of North avenue.

Mrs. T. C. Bodine, of Church street, is stopping at the Howland House, Ocean Grove.

W. H. Terry, of Church street, spent yesterday at Metuchen with his mother.

On August 12th, Collector Day will sell a number of properties for taxes.

Miss Rosa Haynes is the guest of Mrs. Barker, of Nyack-on-the-Hudson.

An important regular Council meeting will be held Monday evening.

H. B. Watters is visiting friends at High Bridge for a short time.

NEW MARKET.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

New Market, July 28—Isaac Titsworth was the guest of Plainfield friends yesterday.

There are a number of boarders at the Nelson House this season, and life at this popular place is quite gay.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Nelson, of Basking Ridge, have been visiting Mr. Nelson's parents.

Miss Laura Emmons, of North Plainfield, has been visiting friends in town.

Miss Amy Burt, of Plainfield, called on friends in town yesterday.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Scotch Plains, July 28—Good Will Lodge, No. 101, K. of P., meet in their rooms this evening.

The Baptist Sunday-school have united with several Westfield schools in a grand excursion to Asbury Park and Ocean Grove Tuesday, August 2d. Nine schools will be represented on the excursion.

Mr. and Mrs. Vail and family, who have been boarding with Mrs. C. N. Flanders, have returned to their home in New York.

The small boys in town are arranging for a 5-mile handicap bicycle race, to be held shortly.

Miss Monte and daughter, Miss Florence, spent Tuesday with relatives in Plainfield.

Miss Olive Nicholl, of Brooklyn, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Nicholl.

Dr. J. H. Buchanan, of Plainfield, visited friends in town Wednesday.

WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Westfield, July 28.—The township committee will hold a meeting tomorrow evening at which time A. A. Gaddis, of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railroad Company will ask for a franchise to construct and maintain a trolley road from this town to Rahway and the committee will no doubt grant the petition as the people of the township have always favored the cross town line. Mr. Gaddis has procured all the consents required on the line from Westfield to Rahway but some of the property owners on Mountain avenue refuse to sign so that the company may have trouble in getting from here to Summit as it is now planed to go through the Borough of Mountainside by the Mountain avenue route.

The Harbson property in this town was sold at sheriff's sale today for $10,500 and was bought in by the Brooks estate. The sum for which it sold will not cover the mortgage as the first alone amounts to $12,000 and the second to $3,500.

The Westfield Water Company is trying to have the citizens of the town take the capital stock of the company but from what can be learned the investers are rather backward in going into the deal.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Miss Dora Grant, of West Fifth street, is visiting her relatives in Buffalo.

James Cannon, of Clinton, Mass., is visiting his brother, Arthur A. Cannon, of Craig place.

James DeGraff and family, of Central avenue, will spend a part of August at Shelter Island.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hazel, of Elizabeth, are visiting Mrs. Hazel's sister, Mrs. Frank Putnam, of Elm place.

J. H. McVey's daughter on whom an operation was successfully performed Monday, is resting comfortably today, and the physicians say the chances are for her ultimate recovery.

PEACH CROP SMALL.

Reports Regarding Crops Made By Nearby Weather Observers.

The climate and crop report of the weather bureau shows that the various crops in this section are doing well. Through this part of Jersey, however, tho reports come in that the peach crop will be light.

The reports from this section for the last week are as follows:

Plainfield—The frequent heavy rains have done much good to all crops and pastures; corn and other crops now look well. Highest temperature, 94 degrees: lowest, 66 degrees. Rainfall, 2.66 inches. John Neagle.

Somerville—All crops now growing fast; the very heavy rains on the 19th and 21st were needed; pastures much improved. Rainfall, 3.76 inches. P. Hardcastle.

Somerville—Oats being cut; peaches in this vicinity were doing well, until their growth was blasted by the hail storm of June 22d; corn growing rapidly. H. V. N Garretson.

South Bound Brook—Oats nearly all cut; corn growing well; early potatoes being marketed, crop light. A. F. Randolph.

Peapack—All vegetation improved by the heavy rain of the 20th; cutting of oats commenced; peaches are not "forcing," but the crop will be light; corn looks well and is growing rapidly. Asher Fleming.

Mired in a Trench.

A wagon loaded with several tons of crushed stone yesterday afternoon on East Second street mired to the hubs in the trench recently opened for the laying of pipes to carry off the surface water. It was slow, tedious work to get the wagon out and required the efforts of half a dozen horses and several men.

Been in the Peach Country.

Isaac P. Runyon, the lawyer, was in the peach growing district of Somerset county yestersday and reports that the crop is very scarce, none but young orchards bearing. He says the quality of the fruit is excellent, and that a better article can be sold this year for $1.25 a basket than for many years past.

—The steamer Cleopatra will arrive in New York Monday. Among the passengers is J. H. Manning, secretary of the Y. M. C. A., Plainfield, who has been attending the international Y. M. C. A. conference in Switzerland.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

BROCADES BIDDING FOR FAVOR.

Pink Is the Desired Color Under Thin Materials.

(By special arrangement with the N.Y. Sun.)

Brocaded materials of all sorts are making a bid for favor, and the prospect now is that autumn will bring this particular variety of dress goods to the front once more. Fashion, like history, is sure to repeat itself, even though it is never quite on the same old lines. Venetian guipure lace and insertion is the trimming on the baptiste gown, and a pretty touch of color is given by the belt and collar band of pale yellow green satin.

A delicate shade of yellow pink is one of the most favored colors for the silk linings under transparent materials of white, ecru, pale blue and gray. Some of the light India silk gowns are quite as pretty as the muslins, one model dotted over with tiny tea rose buds and lined with pink silk being especially charming.

A series of broad tucks, sloping toward the front to give a pannier effect without the old time puffiness, is one of the modes of skirt decoration seen on thin gowns. Wide bias folds are sometimes substituted for the tucks, as they can be arranged in the various desired forms much more easily. It is evident, too, among the latest gowns, that folds are a decided feature of dress trimming, an example of which is a white crepe de chine, trimmed up to the knees with wide folds of the same stuff put on in waved lines all around. The bodice is similarly decorated with bands of Venetian lace between the folds. A contrasting color is sometimes employed for this mode of trimming, white taffeta being used with striking effect over figured fou-lards. The folds may be put on to lap a trifle over each other, or separated by their own width with a row of lace insertion between, as you fancy, and still another pretty mode of using them is to head each one with a tiny ruche of chiffon or satin ribbon, bearing a narrow space between the folds.

"OLD ROSY'S" REPRIMAND.

He Took It Like a Sensible Man and a Gentleman.

The late General Rosecrans ran up against a Tartar once, but he had the good sense not to let his ruffled dignity cause him to loose his temper. The story, as told by Colonel James T. Sterling, is as follows:

Company A of the Seventh Ohio was formerly the Light Guards of Cleveland, and was one of the best drilled companies in the army. It was commanded by Captain Creighton. The Seventh Ohio was in West Virginia in 1861, and "Old Rosy" was in command. The supplies for the army were brought up the Kanawha river in boats which were unloaded by details from the regiment. General Rosecrans had ordered that soldiers on duty must wear their equipment. Company A was sent out to unload a boat and Captain Creighton permitted the men to take off their equipment and their coats as well while engaged in this hard work. When the work had been completed the men and officers sprawled out on the grass for a rest, and then General Rosecrans and some of his staff rode up. The general looked at the soldiers a minute and then called for the commanding officer. Captain Creighton did not know General Rosecrans, but he rose to his feet.

"Who commands this company?" asked the general.

"I do, to the best of my ability," replied the captain.

"Don't you know, sir?" inquired the general, sternly, "that it is against orders to allow the men to remove their equipments when on duty?"

"I have heard some such order," replied Captain Creighton, "but the man that issued it never did a day's work in his life. When my men have to work hard I'll see him in the other place before I'll let them swelter with their accoutrements on."

"Old Rosy stared at the cool captain a moment and then rode down toward the boat.

A soldier approached Captain Creighton and said:

"Do you know who that is?"

"No, and I don't care."

"That's General Rosecrans, the commander of this department."

"Whew!" ejaculated Captain Creighton. "Company fall in!"

Without question it was the finest company in the command. When the general and his officers rode back from the boat, the company, in full equipment stood in perfect order and gave him a "present" in such splendid style as to attract his attention. General Rosecrans returned the salute and requested the captain to put his men through the manual. When it was finished the general raised his hat, and, turning to the captain, said:

"I think that a company that can handle muskets as well as that should be allowed to unload a steamer without anything on, if they want to."—Detroit Free Press.

WHEN SOLDIERS TRAVEL.

Their Comfort Well Looked After by the Government.

"When soldiers in the service of the United States are travelling their comfort is pretty well looked after," says F. F. Horner, general passenger agent of the Nickel Plate.

"The government requires the railroad company to provide sleeping cars for the officers and also for the privates if it is possible to procure the cars. Of course, if men are to be carried in very large numbers, on short notice, such arrangements would be impossible, but even then we would have to provide them with ordinary day coaches. The volunteers who answer the present call will be carried in tourist cars if their journey lasts through a night. Otherwise they will go in day coaches. I don't think that any other country on earth looks after its soldiers so well. When I was soldiering we considered a freight car perfectly satisfactory. We generally had to walk. Being packed into a freight car on a hot summer day was rather uncomfortable, and the men usually secured ventilation by knocking holes in the sides of the car with the butts of their rifles. When the officers remonstrated the boys would say that they were just making loop holes to shoot the 'Johnnies.'"—Buffalo Commercial.

Emeralds are Scarce.

It is reported that emeralds are steadily disappearing. In the fifties and sixties emeralds were the favorite jewels, and were worn strung on a thread like pearls. Now emeralds are no longer polished into a round form, but are polished like diamonds. Faultless stones of a deep color have always been as valuable as diamonds. The reason of the scarcity of emeralds is the decrease in production in the Ural mountains. Emeralds were first discovered on the right bank of the Tokowoler, near Katharineburg, in the year 1830, and in the first years the harvest was a rich one.

JUST A TIGER STORY.

A Man's Narrow Escape From Furnishing a Square Meal.

The shikari was a little stunned by the tiger's onslaught; he recovered consciousness, however, in a few minutes, when he found himself lying on the tiger's back and in full sail toward the heart of the jungle.

Fortunately, he was not seriously hurt, as the tiger had gripped him by the arm just above the elbow. There he lay quite helpless; what was he to do? Any movement on his part might have made his condition far worse; so he lay perfectly quiet, and shut his eyes as if he were dead. Soon the tiger arrived at his den, which was no more than a hollow scooped in the sand at the foot of a large tree. There the tiger deposited him and covered him over loosely with some sand. Luckily for him his face was uppermost when he fell, otherwise he would have had no other alternative between death by suffocation and death from the tiger if he had dared to move. As it was, he could manage to breathe gently, and even to have an occasional glimpse under his eyelids.

After this operation of partial burial the tiger ran ahead a few yards, but returned instantly, as if he had some misgivings in his mind. Seeing, however, all safe, he bounded forth, but again returned to make assurance doubly sure. He kept up this method of self persuasion for a few times, till, feeling quite certain about the matter, he finally went away on his mission. After waiting a few minutes to see that the tiger had really gone, our shikari sprang up and climbed the tree just over the den, and hid himself well among the leaves. He had not long to wait for the denouement, for the tiger soon returned, accompanied by a tigress and a couple of cubs (like a generous and exemplary husband and father, the tiger evidently scorning to eat on the sly).

They came along with many a joyful catlike gambol in anticipation of the great feast, and found the den—empty! Such a lamentation over the lost dinner then arose as was never heard before in the whole animal kingdom; in fact, the tigers persisted so long in their piteous cries, that our shikari began to have some doubts as to the righteousness of defrauding the poor creatures of their hard-earned wages; but he was prevented from offering himself to them in a moment of misguided magnanimity by the thought of his own wife and children, whose claim upon him was obviously higher.—Cornhill Magazine.

PROFESSOR CAMERON'S HAT.

Mischievous Students Convert It Into Buttonhole Bouquets.

Henry Clay Cameron has been professor of the Greek language and literature at Princeton University for a great many years, and like many of his vocation, is a man of marked peculiarities. One of his eccentricities is to wear an old plaid shawl over his shoulders, summer and winter, and a hat of unique pattern. It has always been a mystery where Prof. Cameron gets his hats. No dealer in the latitude and longitude of Princeton keeps them in stock, and there is a tradition among the students that the professor purchased a quantity many years ago and always has a supply to draw from when he needs one.

As long as any one can remember it has been the practice of each class during the second term of the sophomore year to steal Prof. Cameron's hat and cut it up into little square pieces, which are distributed among the students and worn by them in the buttonholes of the lapels of their coats like badges or bouquets. The professor expects it and takes it good-naturedly. He makes no particular effort to protect his property, but one day in each year—and it is often the coldest of the winter—he is compelled to go home from recitation bareheaded or wrap his old gray shawl around his old gray head. The next morning, if the professor takes the trouble to glance around the class room, he can identify the fragments of his hat pinned to the coats of his pupils, but the trick is so old and the professor is so accustomed to it that he treats it with indifference.

The Power of His Eye.

It has been told of Van Amburgh, the great lion tamer, that on one occasion when in a bar-room he was asked how he gained his wonderful power over animals. He said:

"It is by showing them that I am not in the least afraid of them, and by keeping my eye steadily on theirs. I'll give you an example of the power of my eye. You see that fellow? He's a regular clown. I'll make him come across the room to me, and I won't say one word to him."

Sitting down, he fixed his keen, steady eye on the man. Presently the fellow straightened himself up, rose from his seat and came slowly across to the lion tamer. When he was close enough he drew back his arm and struck Van Amburgh a tremendous blow over the chin, knocking him clean over the chair, with the remark:

"You'll stare at me like that again, won't you!"—Golden Days.

How He Knew.

"Begorra, an' it's har-rd to collict money these days." "Is you bin tryin' to c'lect some, Mr. Murphy?" "Divil a cint; but there's a plinty tryin' to collict from me."—Truth.

"Now, Thomas," said a certain Bishop, after taking his servant to task one morning, "who is it that sees all we do, and hears all we say, and knows all we think, and who regards even me in my Bishop's robes as but a vile worm of the dust?" And Thomas replied, "The missus, sir."—Tit-Bits.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Braunschweig.

Braunschweig. Hier beschäftigt man sich seit längerer Zeit mit dem Projekt eines Stichkanals von Braunschweig an den geplanten Mittellandkanal. Die Handelskammer für das Herzogthum Braunschweig hat jetzt über die Rentabilität eines solchen Kanals eingehende Erhebungen angestellt und faßt deren Ergebniß kurz dahin zusammen, daß der Bau des Kanals sich für Braunschweig und Umgebung als unumgänglich nothwendig und aller Voraussicht nach auch als rentabel erweisen werde.

Großherzogthum Hessen.

Darmstadt. Ein Rechtsanwalt, der als Vertheidiger vor dem Schöffengericht die Wendung gebrauchte, wenn der Angeklagte verurtheilt werde, so sei dies ein Verbrechen an seinem guten Rufe, wurde wegen Ungebühr zu einer Geldstrafe von 20 Mark verurtheilt.

Bingen. Das hier seit kurzer Zeit bestehende Rheinische Technikum wird gegenwärtig von 212 Schülern besucht. Die Anstalt befaßt sich ausschließlich mit der Ausbildung junger Leute im Maschinenbau und in der Elektrotechnik. Das neue von der Stadtverwaltung erbaute Gebäude wird am 1. Oktober der Anstalt übergeben und ist mit elektrischem Licht und mit Centralheizung ausgestattet.

Gießen. Der älteste Stadtverordnete, der Vorsteher der jüdischen Religionsgemeinde, Meyer Homberger, ist kürzlich im 79. Lebensjahre gestorben.

Mainz. Eine Versammlung städtischer Armenpfleger sprach sich im Anschluß an die Resolutionen der 17. Jahresversammlung des Deutschen Vereins für Armenpflege und Wohlthätigkeit zu Gunsten der Errichtung eines städtischen Obdaches für obdachlos gewordene Familien aus.

Worms. Die Stadtverordnetenversammlung verlieh dem Oberbürgermeister Küchler anläßlich dessen Ernennung zum Finanzminister das Ehrenbürgerrecht.

Bayern.

München. Die Umbauten im Krankenhaus links der Isar, wofür 1,220,000 Mark genehmigt waren, haben um etwa 300,000 Mark mehr gekostet, da sich im Laufe der Arbeiten noch verschiedene Bauvornahmen als nothwendig erwiesen haben. — Die Theresienwiese wird zufolge eines jüngst gefaßten Magistratsbeschlusses nach Ablauf der jetzigen Grundverpachtungsverträge nicht mehr verpachtet.— Der Handelsredakteur des früheren „Fremdenblattes," Eugen Pfleiderer, der auf Weihnachten des Jahres 1891 mit Hinterlassung einer tüchtigen Unterbilanz aus München flüchtig wurde, ist kürzlich in Hoboken gestorben. Er studirte dort Rechtswissenschaft und wollte Advokat werden.

Bamberg. Fabrikant Manz stiftete anläßlich seiner Ernennung zum Kommerzienrath für die Arbeiter seiner Schäfte- und Schuhfabrik eine Altersversorgungskasse mit einem vorläufigen Fonds von 5000 Mark. Weitere 1000 Mark wurden an die Arbeiter vertheilt.

Dettelbach. Bei denkbar günstiger Witterung feierte der hiesige Gesangverein das Fest seines 50jährigen Bestehens. Ueber 1000 Sänger aus ganz Unterfranken hatten sich hierzu eingefunden. Besondere Ehrungen wurde den beiden noch lebenden Gründern, dem Buchbindermeister V. G. Basch in Dettelbach, der heute noch aktiver Sänger ist, und dem eigens aus Baltimore hierhergeeilten Privatier Karl Valentin Schlör zu Theil.

Kulmbach. Dieser Tage wurde dahier durch Herrn Dekan Raps im Beisein der übrigen Geistlichkeit und der beiden städtischen Kollegien die neue Gottesackerkirche eingeweiht. Die gesammte großartige Friedhofsanlage kostet der Stadt 160,000 Mark.

Nürnberg. Der hier zusammengetretene deutsche Verein der Gas- und Wasser-Fachmänner ernannte Dr. Auer v. Welsbach in Wien zum Ehrenmitglied des Vereins wegen seiner großen Verdienste um die Gasindustrie.

Pasing. Die Doppelbahn Pasing-Brock, die im heurigen Landtag genehmigt wurde und wegen des sehr starken Zugverkehrs auf dieser Linie dringendes Bedürfniß ist, soll noch in diesem Sommer in Angriff genommen werden. Der Bau dieser 15½ Kilometer langen Linie ist auf 620,000 Mark veranschlagt, so daß der Kilometer beinahe 40,000 Mark kostet.

Regensburg. Bischof Ignaz von Senestrey vollendete am 13. Juli sein 80. Lebensjahr. Seit 40 Jahren nimmt der Bischof den Regensburger Bischofstuhl ein und oft hat seine streitbare Persönlichkeit in kirchlicher und politischer Beziehung die Oeffentlichkeit beschäftigt.

Vilshofen. Der frühere Stadtschreiber Friedrich Wolf wurde vom niederbayerischen Schwurgerichte wegen Unterschlagung von Amtsgeldern zu 2½ Jahren Zuchthaus und fünf Jahren Ehrverlust verurtheilt.

Würzburg. Die vom bayerischen Staat in Betrieb zu nehmende Kettenschleppschifffahrt von Lohr bis Würzburg wurde offiziell eröffnet.

Don't Go It Blind.

There's No Need To In Plainfield. The Way Is Almost Hedged With Guide Posts.

Have you ever read a newspaper article, a glowing account of some incident told in elusive words to lead you on and found it ended up with a proprietary medicine advertisement? Made you mad didn't it? And were you convinced of the merit of the article? We think not, because it told the experiences of some stranger in a far away town; to take his word for it, was like 'going it blind.' It's a very different thing when a statement is prescribed from a citizen, from people we know, and that's the case here.

Mr. C. H. Lippencott, of 39 Chatham street, says: "After my experience with Doan's Kidney Pills I cannot do otherwise than speak in the highest terms of them. I was a victim of kidney complaint for some time. My chief trouble was a dreadful backache which was so bad in damp weather or when I took cold that I could not get about. I was in the hardware business at this time and the heavy lifting and being on my feet so much greatly aggravated the troubles. I was at my worst last spring when I concluded to try Doan's Kidney Pills which I got at L. W. Randolph's drug store. It only required a few doses to convince me that I had got hold of the right remedy. My backache disappeared before I had finished the first box and I have not felt it since. You are at liberty to refer anyone to me and I will gladly give my experience in detail."

PATIENT ANGLERS.

Strangely Enough, Nervous Persons are the Best Waiters for a Bite.

It is one of the curiosities of human nature that the most nervous and excitable people are often the most patient fishermen with hook and line.

A somewhat amusing story is told of a Minister of the Interior, M. de Corbiere, who was accustomed to get up every morning very early and go out with a hook and line to quiet his nerves on the banks of the Seine. There came to Paris a man from the provinces who had made application for a certain office, a sous-prefecture in the country. The office seeker had no influence with the Minister, but in some way he learned where the spot was to which the Minister went to fish.

Providing himself with "tackle," he rose still earlier than the Minister, and when M. de Corbiere went to his favorite place he found a stranger installed there, paying no attention to the minister, and apparently quite ignorant of his identity.

The Minister went somewhere else, and got up earlier the next morning; but on arriving at the place he found the same man installed there. Again and again this happened. It was useless to try to forestall the man. He was at the spot before the slightest break of dawn. At last the Minister approached the man and said politely: "You seem to be very fond of fishing, sir?"

"I am, sir," answered the other "and for the present I employ it as a means of passing the time while I am awaiting a response to an application which I have made to the Minister of the Interior."

"You are looking for an office?"

"A small prefecture, sir, in the country. I have waited a long time, and may have to wait still longer, but we fishermen, sir, know how to be patient."

"Will you kindly give me your name and address, sir? I have a little influence, perhaps, at the Department, and I shall be glad to mention your case. Between fishermen, sir—"

"Ah, I thank you! Here is my card."

That evening the office-seeker received his appointment and went no more to the banks of the Seine, and the Minister thereafter fished in peace in his accustomed spot.—Youth's Companion.

Knew His Business.

Early in the World's Fair year a well known Chicago Board of Trade man got caught in a crowd at the terminal station and never afterward saw a gold watch for which he had paid $250 a few months before.

Three weeks later another timepiece which cost $200 disappeared in precisely the same way. Since then the broker has carried a watch which from outward appearances would be dear at $1.50. The cases are of nickel, thinly plated with gold, which has worn off in spots. The works, however, are as costly as can be bought in the Chicago market.

Tuesday night he came down town to hear the election returns. In front of a newspaper bulletin he was rudely jostled by a crowd of shouting partisans. When he reached home his watch was missing, from its accustomed vest pocket. He mourned a good deal and swore much more volubly and with far greater emphasis than his wife ever had known him to employ before.

While preparing to retire, however, he found the missing watch. It was in a hip pocket and the chain guard was fastened to a suspender buckle behind. The enterprising thief who had stolen the watch had taken time to glance at it, and believing it worthless had slipped the watch back into another pocket and fastened the chain.

Who says that Chicago pickpockets are not expert? And who ever heard of one being beaten at his own game before?—New York Herald.

A Question of Age.

A middle-aged woman entered a Woodward-avenue car, and finding every seat occupied, hung on a strap and prepared to stand. Presently another woman rose and offered her seat.

"No, thank you," said the woman who was standing. "I will not deprive you of your seat."

"But I insist," said the woman am much better able to stand than you are."

"What makes you think so?" asked the other woman, suspiciously.

"Because I am the youngest."

The gauntlet was thrown. The older woman did not hesitate to pick it up.

"There may be two opinions about that," retorted the angry passenger. "I'm sure any one can see with half an eye that you are no chicken."

The passengers were getting excited, and one man said under his breath.

"Now comes the tug of war."

Then the woman who had resigned her seat concluded to take it again, but first she sent in another deadly shaft:

"No, I'm no chicken, and don't care to be, but I would rather be a chicken than an old hen."

And she flopped into her seat, which, however, was now occupied by a smart woman who knew when to seize a bone of contention.—Detroit Free Press.

HOLY WINDING SHEET

HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS SAW THE CELEBRATED RELIC.

First Display In Thirty Years of the Venerated Shroud In the Cathedral of Turin—King Humbert Consents to the Public Exposition of the Relic.

The special correspondent of the Brooklyn Eagle at Rome, writing under the date of June 5 about the exposition in the cathedral of Turin of the holy winding sheet, says:

Great interest has been excited during the last ten days by the exposition in the cathedral of Turin of the celebrated relic known as the santissimo sindone, or holy winding sheet, the clean, fine linen cloth wherein, we are expressly told by the four evangelists, Joseph of Arimathea, assisted by Nicodemus, wrapped the body of Jesus, which he had begged of Pilate after the crucifixion on Mount Calvary. This relic is a sheet of the finest linen, without seam, measuring nearly five meters in length by two meters in breadth, tapering toward the extremities and bound all around by a protective band of silk, formerly azure in hue, but now greatly faded and worn by age. On the sacred sheet are visible, marked in blood mixed with funereal spices, the signs of the wounds in the hands and in the feet, the wound in the side, the puncture of the crown of thorns, the marks of the beard and of the hair and the entire figure of Jesus, of the height of meters 1.78. The body of Christ having been deposited on the lower half of the long, narrow sheet, the upper portion was then doubled over the corpse, whence the holy winding sheet received the dual impress of the bleeding remains.

History does not trace the means taken to preserve carefully for ten centuries this precious relic from the hands of the Saracens and of the iconoclasts. Tradition states it to have been amid the relics borne by the Christians of Jerusalem who in 1099 went forth to meet Godfrey of Bouillon, their deliverer. In 1148 the then grand master of the Knights of St. John presented it in gift to Amadeo III, count of Savoy, who bore it to Cyprus, where he died. In 1330 Godfrey, count of Charny, Lord of Lirey and of Savoisi, in Champagne, brought the sindone with him from the east, and in 1453 his niece and heiress, Margaret of Charny, widow of Humbert Della Roche, visiting Chambery, restored the holy winding sheet to the house of Savoy, by whom it was translated first to Vercelli, thence in 1578 to the church of St. John the Baptist, in Turin, and finally, in 1683, the holy relic was definitely collocated in the royal chapel of the Santo Sindone, or Sudario, the masterpiece of Guarini, built by command of Duke Charles Emanuel II of Savoy expressly for that purpose. This magnificent domed structure attached to the cathedral of St. John is lined with black marble, which has a singular effect and contains numerous funeral monuments of the house of Savoy, amid them that of its founder, Duke Charles Emanuel II, who died in 1675. In 1532 the ducal chapel of Amadeus V, in Chambery, custodian of the relic, took fire, and the strength of the heat fused the silver urn inclosing the sindone, which suffered no other damage save being slightly smoked here and there.

In his commentaries on the sacred Scriptures Cornelius a Lapide inclines to the opinion that the title sindone, applied to the holy winding sheet, owes its origin to the town of Sidon in Phœnicia, where they first wove this species of fine linen, used by the Jews for burial purposes. More modern authorities, however, including Georgiacodis, basing their views on the etymology of the word sidone, deem it derived rather from the Greek term sindon, which signifies precisely damask linen, as Greek scholars can read in any encyclopedia, whereas in the name of the Phœnician city, Sidon, no trace of n exists between the i and d. Since its collocation in the metropolitan chapel of Turin in 1683 the SS. Sindone has been but 12 times—including the present year—exposed to public veneration. Within this century it was exposed in 1815 for the passage through Piedmont of Pope Pius VII, returning from captivity in Savona; in 1842 and in 1868, on occasion of the respective marriages of Victor Emmanuel I and Humbert of Savoy. No exposition has taken place within the last 30 years, until King Humbert, at request of the archbishop of Turin, consented that the sacred relic should be solemnly exposed to public veneration from May 25 to June 2, current, in the cathedral of Turin. It is computed that no less than 700,000 persons, pilgrims from all parts of Italy, accompanied in most cases by their respective archbishops or bishops, prostrated themselves in pious homage before the holy winding sheet during the ten days it was enthroned with royal honors on an appropriate altar in the cathedral of St. John Baptist in Turin.

The Priest Had No Time For Gossip.

In the new volume entitled "Social Hours With Celebrities," by the late Mrs. W. Pitt Bryne, recently published in England, is a story told by Cardinal Wiseman, who had a great fnnd of Irish anecdotes. A rough Irish lad entered the confessional of a priest and hinted at sanguinary revelations. "What, murther is it ye mane?" said the priest. "Indade an it is, father, an many of them. What, father, now, if it moight be a matter of six or eight?" He recounted a grewsome list. "I don't think there were any more," he said doubtfully as he closed. "Now, what were all these people?" sternly demanded the confessor. "Well, father, they were just tax githerers." "Tax githerers, is it, ye say?" exclaimed the priest. "Now, why didn't ye tell me that at first? There was no need to be takin up me time. Ye don't come here to gossip; ye come to confess yer sins!"

MUCH RESPECTED PRIEST.

Father Kelly's Good Work Among the Men at Camp Alger.

One of the most interesting features of camp life at Camp Alger is the work of Father Kelly among the men of the Seventh Illinois regiment. The good he is doing can never be measured. He knows every man in the command by his first name and all about him and can read his inmost thoughts. Ninety-five per cent of the regiment are Catholics and Irishmen, and many of them come from St. Cecelia parish in Chicago, over which Father Kelly presides when he is at home. Among the other 5 per cent are members of all religious denominations, Jews, gentiles and atheists. But Father Kelly has his finger on the heart of every one, and, no matter whether he is a Methodist or Hebrew, agnostic or a Catholic, he confesses just the same to the chaplain all his troubles and his joys. There are many interesting secrets locked up in Father Kelly's memory, and the respect which his hearty interest and his affectionate blue Irish eyes inspire makes him the confidant of everybody, from the colonel to the last camp follower.

Father Kelly says mass every morning. He has a tent fitted up as a chapel in a primitive way, but it answers his purpose quite as well as the grandest cathedral in Rome. On Sunday he preaches a sermon in the morning. The rest of the time is spent looking after the temporal as well as the spiritual welfare of his robust and somewhat reckless congregation. He looks after their money as well as their souls and on pay day gets the most of it, for he is the regimental savings bank. He refuses to wear the uniform of a chaplain, and for similar reasons has discarded the ordinary garb of a priest. There is nothing clerical about him, and he might go from one end of the country to the other without anybody taking him for a parson. He dresses in an ordinary business suit, without any military insignia except the regulation campaign hat.—William E. Curtis in Chicago Record.

THE HOLY SHROUD.

Signor Pia Recently Took a Photograph of It by Electric Light.

In Turin the other day, according to Il Osservatore Romano, a photograph by electric light was taken of the holy shroud, which gave an admirable reproduction of the body of Christ. The holy shroud was recently exposed to veneration, and King Humbert, who is its hereditary guardian, at first hesitated to give authority to have it photographed, lest the photographs should be speculated in. However, his majesty at length gave the requisite permission to Signor Secundo Pia, a lawyer and member of the committee on sacred art, who had offered to photograph the holy shroud at his own expense.

Signor Pia prepared his plates according to a special method, rendering them sensitive to the yellowish tint of the holy shroud by means of powerful electric reflectors. "Formerly," says The Osservatore, "the appearance of the holy shroud gave an idea of the contour rather than the facial lineaments and body of Christ. On the other hand, the photographs on being developed showed a perfect representation of the face, hands and limbs of Christ, the general effect being that of a photograph of Christ and not of his shroud."

RELIGIOUS CONGREGATIONS.

Some Statistics Showing How Largely France Is Indebted to Them.

The Semaine Religieuse of Cambrai gives some statistics which show how largely France is indebted to religious congregations. There are in the country over 1,200 congregations, comprising 30,000 men and 150,000 women. These congregations impart instruction to 2,000,000 children without receiving from the budget a single sou. In homes which they have established they support 100,000 old people, 28,000 of whom are maintained by the Little Sisters of the Poor. They educate 60,000 orphans, and the number of the poor and helpless to whom they afford food and shelter in their refuges and hospitals may be set down at 250,000.

Were the state to take charge of this indigent multitude it would be compelled, on a moderate calculation and according to the rate of expenditure in the "laicesed" hospitals, to devote to this purpose annually no less a sum than 125,000,000 francs. And yet the government is ever seeking to place fresh imposts on these congregations.

An Ecclesiastical Agriculturist.

Father Angelo Candeo, the celebrated viticulturist, has, at the holy father's request, paid a brief visit to Rome to examine and report upon the progress of the vines in the Vatican gardens and in the surrounding country. Thanks to Father Candeo's care in the past the vines at the Vatican have this year come up vigorous and free from disease. Father Candeo is staying with the Salesian fathers, of whose community he is a member. His name is well known as the inventor of various instruments and also of various chemical combinations for the ridding of vines and other plants from disease and obnoxious insects.—London Catholic Times and Opinion.

A New Mass.

A new mass has been written by Mr. William Grattan Flood, organist of the cathedral, Enniscorthy. It has met with high encomiums from musical critics. The style is Cecilian. The piece has a highly devotional tone. Mr. Flood has dedicated his mass to the bishop of Ferns.—London Catholic Times and Opinion.

Tradesmen Monks.

Most of the monks at King William's Town, Cape Colony, are tradesmen and do their own carpentering, bricklaying, blacksmithing, etc., besides teaching school. All the buildings they occupy were erected by themselves.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

FAMOUS TREATIES.

A SKETCH OF THOSE OF THE NINETEENTH CENTURY.

The World is Likely to See Another That Will Alter the Boundaries of Nations—One at Midnight That Gave Us Alaska in 1865.

At a time when the world is likely to see another treaty that will alter the boundaries of nations, it is well to look over the great treaties of the century. What did they effect?

The first of these began almost with the century itself and arose from events connected with Napoleon's seizure of power and his aggressive policy in Europe. It is known as the "Peace of Amiens" between Great Britain, Holland, France, and Spain. It was facetiously called "the Peace of Amiens" because it really provoked war. Its most notable achievement was to enable Napoleon's friends to invite the French senate to give Napoleon, who was then First Consul, some token of the national gratitude of France. The Senate voted to prolong the First Consul's tenure of office. The proposition had but one opponent, a Girondist, who loudly asserted that the first steps towards a despotism had been thus taken, and that a flagrant usurpation threatened the Republic. Lafayette registered a noble "No," sent the First Consul a spirited letter, and ceased the relations he had hitherto maintained with Napoleon who had already stirred up a rebellion in Holland, was the master of Italy, and was now about to become the master of France. The treaty was signed March 27, 1802, by the Marquis of Cornwallis on the part of England, and by Joseph Bonaparte on that of France, and after a long session of the Senate in consequence Napoleon was on August 3 proclaimed in these terms "The French people name and the Senate proclaim Napoleon Bonaparte First Consul for Life."

The London "Times" and the whole British press roared its disapproval. Napoleon thundered back that if the English press interfered in the domestic affairs of the French people, that the nation knew how to respond to such flagrant impertinence, and would not be slow to preserve the dignity of the French name. Accordingly as Addington used to say in after years, the ink on the treaty of Amiens was scarcely dry when national pride was aroused which imperilled the new peace. The promptness with which France challenged the British nation upon that occasion is the secret of why Englishmen, whoever else they may despise, have still a profound respect for Frenchmen, and have been very shy of touching upon their domestic discords since. The blue envy of the press had nearly ruined the Empire.

The next in importance was the Treaty of Vienna in 1815. This was the great council of the powers which readjusted the disturbance caused by Napoleon in the affairs of Europe. The Czar of Russia, the Kings of Prussia, Denmark, Bavaria and Wurtemburg and nearly all the statesmen of eminence gathered around the Emperor Francis of Austria and his more famous minister, Metternich. Metternich by common consent presided. Lord Castlereagh represented England and Talleyrand France. The subordinate envoys and attaches of other Courts added to a host of petty princelings whose nominal titles remain, but whose power have disappeared from the map of Europe, crowded every hotel or available private residence in Vienna. They all gathered like vultures to feed upon the caged lion whom the brutal Sir Hudson Lowe was at that time insulting on board of the Bellerophon en route to St. Helena. This assemblage was also likely to end in renewed war. By the secret understanding after the Battle of Waterloo the allied sovereigns had reserved to themselves the disposal of all vacant territory to some of the princes then out of a job. The Ministers of Austria, England, Prussia and Russia determined to decide upon all territorial questions among themselves and only after so deciding submit them to France and the other Powers. This nearly caused a rupture. Talleyrand on hearing of the arrangement demanded that the whole European concert should meet in open Congress. But the "Big Four" continued their sittings as already arranged. Still it was found impossible to continue. While Napoleon reigned these powers were united against him, but now that the common danger was disposed of they were no less against each other.

The Congress assembled in September, 1814, and on January 3, 1815, Talleyrand's purpose of breaking Europe into two halves was only averted by a secret treaty pledging those powers to at once take the field against Russia and Prussia in defence of the Peace of Paris. France was immediately admitted into "the Big Four" and Europe assumed those divisions in which it remained until a United Italy and the German Empire arose.

Passing over the treaty which ended the Crimean War, those which ended the Holstein and the Austro-Prussian wars and that of 1871 which gave Alsace and Lorraine to Germany, we come to the next great international conference, that of Berlin.

The treaty of Berlin in 1878 stopped the victorious march of the Russian Army upon Constantinople. It thus preserved a plague spot in Southeastern Europe, Spain being the blotch in the corresponding corner of Southwestern Europe. These precious blossoms, the word "Jingo," and "the Princess League" are said to be the net results of that treaty in which Lord Beaconsfield figured. Russia had perfected a treaty with "the Sick Man," the famous treaty of San Stefano, by which was secured complete independence for the Christian populations of Montenegro and which created the new state of Bulgaria with a seaport on the Egean Sea. Bulgaria was to be a mere blind for Russia. The British Government took alarm contending that any such step reopened those questions already settled on the abdication of Napoleon. A Congress of "the Big Five" was accordingly called in Berlin. This time Prince Bismarck presided. Prince Gorchakoff represented the Czar, Count Andrassy, Austria and Lords Beaconsfield and Salisbury the interests of Great Britain. Under the conditions of this treaty Turkey was shorn of some of her territory, which was added to Austria; the principality of Bulgaria was recognized as an autonomous Power with a Christian Government and a national militia. Stipulated reforms were to be introduced into Crete, Epirus, Thessaly, Armenia, and other parts of the Ottoman Empire.

Lord Beaconsfield went back from Berlin with the cry of "Peace with honor," the ludicrousness of the situation being that there was neither peace nor honor. Two years ago the most frightful massacres took place in Armenia and when Lord Salisbury who was a member of the conference was appealed to by the Christian sentiment of England to enforce the treaty, Lord Salisbury jauntily declared that the redress of Armenian injustice was not a function of the Conservative party. The great leader of the Liberals who had formerly stirred England over the Bulgarian atrocities was not in Parliament, and Sir Vernon Harcourt was as silent as a heap of baggage on the opposition bench.

The next arrangement which mightily affected the world's destinies was that at the Town Hall of Shimonoseki in April, 1895. Count Ito was at home on this occasion and Li Hung Chang with Mr. Foster of America and Count Cassini in the back ground safe guarding those of China. As most of the Chinese fleet was either in the hands of the Japanese or at the bottom of the Yalu river or in the harbor of Wei-Hei-Wei, and the victorious armies of the Mikado were in sight of Pekin, the Chinese had no alternative but to concede whatever was demanded, knowing that Russia, Germany and France, which constitute the "Triple Alliance" for the control of the Orient would veto any immoderate terms. Japan demanded the cession of the Liao Tung peninsula, the warships already in Japanese hands, control of Port Arthur and $200,000,000.

The Plenipotentiaries held five sessions, the result of which was that the mailed hand of Russia was seen behind the Chino-Japanese war. Japan had to be satisfied with the money indemnity and Formosa, Russia more recently taking the Liao Peninsula and valuable railroad rights in that territory which is now virtually a Russian province. Great Britain apparently did not know that anything was happening until the Russian bear had completely fortified himself in the Gulf an ice-free port and an outlet in the Pacific Ocean which it destines ere long to be a Russo-American Lake. But England finally assured the continuance of peace by taking Wei-Hei-Wei.

While these events were taking place in the far East, this country was creating a diversion of momentious importance in Venezuela and the message of President Cleveland in December, 1895, was admirably timed whether Cleveland so intended it or not, to create such a disturbance in London as would not only vindicate the Monroe doctrine in Venezuela but also repay Russia for the famous "midnight treaty" of 1865, under which Alaska was ceded to the United States. To Russian assistance and Russian friendship for the United States we are indebted for the present encouraging foreign policy under which, particularly with the possession of the Philippine Islands, we are sure to have an "open door" in the Orient independent of any Power on earth. In fact it is no longer either the "Big Four" or the "Big Five." It is now the "Big Six" as any further treaty making in consequence of the present war with Spain, will abundantly reveal to anyone who does not already see the United States looming ominously upon the destinies of the century that is now at our doors. America is henceforth going to have foreign markets for her manufactures and a foreign policy of her own and Europe will have to reckon with our Talleyrands in the great events of the future.

Greville's Reply.

Mr. Greville was persuaded, when he was over sixty years of age, to attend a spiritualistic seance. Foster, the presiding medium, was in great form, and the revelations were astounding. Greville sat silent, and his aged, wizened face was emotionless as a mask. Suddenly the medium grew excited, and said to the old gentleman:

"A female form is bending over you. Oh, the extraordinary likeness!"

Greville sighed.

"She lifts her hands to bless you."

Greville sighed again.

"It is your mother."

"Ah, poor thing," said Greville; "I am glad."

"She smiles. She says all is well with her."

Greville sighed again and said, "I am delighted."

"She says she will see you soon. You are old, and you must meet her before long."

Then Greville quietly observed, "That's very true. I'm going to take tea with her this evening."

A DOG THAT COULD COUNT.

She Was Blind but Knew When One of Her Puppies Was Missing.

In the instance about to be given, I think that the dog evinced an abstract idea of numbers, or else showed phenomenal powers of observation and discrimination. The animal in question, a high-bred collie, received an injury a year or so ago through which she became permanently and totally blind. Recently she gave birth to a litter of six puppies, all of which were uniform in size and in markings. Immediately after the birth of the puppies, the dog's owner had mother and young removed from the dark cellar in which they then were, and carried to a warm and well-ventilated room in his stables. In the darkness of the cellar one of the puppies was overlooked and left behind. As soon as the mother entered the box in which her young had been placed, she proceeded to examine them, nosing them about and licking them. Suddenly she appeared to become very much disturbed about something; she jumped out of the box and then jumped back again, nosing the puppies as before. Again she jumped from the box and then made her way toward the cellar, followed by her astonished owner, who began to have an inkling as to what disturbed her. She had counted her young ones, and had discovered that one had been left behind. Sure enough, the abandoned puppy was soon found and carried in triumph to the new home.

So astonished was the gentleman at this blind creature's intelligence that he removed another puppy and held it in his arms. It was not long before the blind mother showed her distress so plainly that her lost young one was restored to her, whereupon she lay down in the box and gave herself up to the chief function of maternity, suckling her young.—Lippincott's Magazine.

HOW SARDINIAN WOMEN DRESS.

Some of the People Wear Gorgeous Costumes Handed Down for Generations.

The women of Sardinia are described by a visitor to that island as being of elegant figure and graceful carriage, with large black eyes, dark hair and brunette complexion. They dress in very much the same style as women in other parts of civilized Europe, except that there is not the same extreme haste to adopt the latest fashion. The wives and daughters of the farmers and tradesmen, by the gorgeousness of their costumes, amply compensate for the simplicity of dress among the upper classes; and at their religious fetes and other festivals, when they appear in gala dress, they present a wonderful spectacle. These costumes are a sort of family heirloom, handed down from mother to daughter and treasured as highly as heriditary jewels or ancestral portraits. The fashion never changes, and instead of feeling ashamed of being seen in the same dress at two different entertainments, they glory in its antiquity and in the number of occasions on which it has been worn. The costumes of the women vary greatly in different parts of Sardinia. In some districts, a small black jacket, open in front, is worn over a very short bodice of bright colored silk and brocade, which is loosely laced before and cut rather low; there are apparently no corsets. The petticoat is of light brown cloth, very full, and between it and the bodice is a sort of neutral ground of protruding garment, which by no means adds to the general beauty of the toilet.

Yaos and Manganjos.

Both are interesting types of African primitive races. The Yao, mostly men of splendid physique, are a strong and warlike race, in past times a standing terror to their weaker neighbors. Their original home was in the mountains east of Lake Nyasa, whence, in 1861, they poured down like locusts and "ate up" the country now known as the Shire Highlands. They now dwell peacably side by side with the Manganja, though looking down on the latter in something of the spirit in which Rob Roy regarded the Glasgow burgesses.

A good many years ago the first manager of the African Lakes Company was giving a magic lantern address to a mixed audience of both races, and took occasion, while explaining a picture of angels, to dilate on the prospect of heaven. The Yao part of the audience listened to the description, and then inquired whether there would be any Mang'anja there too. "Certainly," was the reply, "if they love God and obey His laws." "Then," said the aristocrats with one voice, "we do not wish to go there."—Good Words.

Could Not be Returned.

This is one of the yarns of childhood. Six-year-old Tommie was sent by his eldest sister to the corner grocery to buy a pound of lump sugar. He played allies on his way to the store, and by the time he arrived there he had forgotten what kind of sugar he was sent for. So he took home a pound of the granulated article. His eldest sister sent him back to the store to get lump sugar. After the proprietor of the grocery had made the change for the little lad he engaged Tommie in conversation.

"Tommie," he said, "I understand there is a new member of your family."

"Yes, sir," replied the kid, "I've got a little brother."

"Well, how do you like that, hey?" inquired the groceryman.

"Don't like it at all," said Tommie; "rather have a little sister."

"Then, why don't you change him, Tommie?"

"Well, we would if we could; but I don't suppose we can. You see, we have used him four days now!"—Washington Star.

SPORTING.

GOSSIP OF THE DIAMOND.

CURRENT BASEBALL NEWS IN AND AROUND PLAINFIELD.

Bits of Information and Comment Gleaned From the Great National Game —Latest Scores of the League Teams

The interest in the National game that has revived this season in this section leads to the belief in certain circles that a Union county league will be possible next year. It is likely that efforts will be made during the coming winter to arrange the preliminaries for such a league. A series of contests between Elizabeth, Plainfield, Rahway, Westfield and Cranford would afford great sport and arouse great interest. The rivalry between the athletes of these cities is such that redhot battles could be expected every time a contest was scheduled.—Elizabeth Journal.

A good pitcher like Warren MacLaughlin, who occupied the box for the Crescents while they were in existence this season, is never without a game long. When the Woodbridge Browns heard of the disbandment of the Plainfield team they cast their eyes on the speedy left-handed twirler who was thrown out of a position. The Browns were in the midst of a series of games with the Maroons, of Perth Amboy, and they were willing to do most anything to win. Last Saturday they put Mac in the box and won the game by a score of 9 to 0. The Maroons never saw him from start to finish. The Perth Amboy team had been winning right along, but the change in pitchers made a decided change in the results. It is probable that Mac pill pitch for them again when the two teams meet.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Don't forget to renew your membership in the L. A. W. at once when it runs out. It's a good thing that every wheelman in the city ought to be into.

If the weather is at all suitable the Y. M. C. A. bicycle run tonight will be taken. The destination is Newark, and the wheelmen will leave the building at 7 o'clock.

Teddy Goodman, the well known bicycle racer, has been fined $25 by the Racing Board for alleged unfair dealings and has been suspended from the track, pending the payment of the fine.

Harry K. Lister has the promise of a number of crack road riders from Rahway who are coming over to participate in his road race next week. New Brunswick's fast men are becoming interested in the race and hope for a chance to show what they can do.

Wm. H. Rogers, the North avenue wheelman, has in stock an antique Columbia tandem which he secured in a trade recently, and which is quite a curiosity. The tandem was built in 1889 and looks heavy and unwieldly alongside the newer inventions. Mr. Rogers expects to sell it at a bargain.

The weekly bulletin of the National racing board reminds all referees of race meets tnat loafing by contestants beyond the time limit is punishable by a fine or suspension. This practice has been on the increase. In one race recently four heats out of seven were thrown out on this account, while in the remaining three heats the winners only came within the time limit by a fraction of a second.

There is the promise of an unusually good time for the wheelmen who turn out for the Y. M. C. A. league run to Newark this evening. They have a big association over at Newark and they are making elaborate preparations for the affair. Plainfield is hoping to keep up her record and remain in the lead in the race for the banner to be given to the association having the largest average attendance.

tion to Rear Admiral Dewey at Manila that three Spanish boats are in hiding at San Miguel, Luzon Island.

He also reports that that there are four Spanish gunboats at Port Royalist, Palawar Island, and also four steamers flying the Spanish flag at Cagayan, Luzon Island. The latter are loaded with tobacco.

Dewey has despatched the Raleigh and Concord to round up the Spanish at Batan who have been committing various outrages, several of the British residents there being imprisoned by the Spanish.

Reports Made Public.

Washington, July 28, 1:55 p. m.—The additional reports from the commanders of the Vixen and Resolute on the sea fight at Santiago, were made public this morning. They were much the same as the others. Great interest was shown in them.

NO MUSIC FOR PERTH AMBOY.

Band Refuses to Give any More Concerts on Account of Disorder.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Perth Amboy, July 28—Because the people refused to keep quiet when it played, the Citizens' Band announced yesterday that it will not continue its free open-air concerts this year. Two concerts have been given, and the band says that it was necessary to hire three policemen to keep order in the crowds that gathered to hear them play.

Last year thirteen concerts were given, people coming to Perth Amboy from the surrounding towns on nights of the concerts. This year the members of the band asked the public to subscribe enough money to buy the music, but only $7 has been pledged thus far.

Books for the Soldiers.

Through the kindness of friends, a number of books have been left at the Y. M. C. A. for distribution at Fort Hancock among the soldier boys. There is no way to get the books to the fort free of cost except to request visiting soldiers to this city to take a few back with them when they go. In this way all the books will eventually find their way on the Y. M. C. A. book shelves at Sandy Hook.

A Phonograph Entertained.

Last Monday evening at the home of Miss Lulu Windham, on Fairview avenue, a phonograph entertainment was given by William Schorb, in honor of Miss Windham's birthday celebration. There were about twenty-five guests present who enjoyed themselves immensely. In addition to the phonograph music there was a violin solo by Miss Clara Schultz and a vocal solo by Charles Case.

Perth Amboy Dock Sold.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Perth Amboy, July 28—The Perth Amboy Dry-Dock Company's 2,500-ton floating-dock has been sold to the Government for use at Key West. The company will at once begin the construction of a larger dock.

Miss Agnes Langhorn, of Putnam avenue, is visiting a college friend in Connecticut.

Miss Ada G. Marsh, of Franklin place, and her niece, Miss Marion Grace Marsh, of Central avenue, leave tomorrow for Mt. Pocono.

S. A. Cruikshank and family, of Belvidere avenue, start tomorrow in their brake to drive to Mt. Pocono, where they will stop at the Pocono Mountain House.

—Miantonomo Tribe of Red Men will meet tomorrow night. There will be two adoptions.

What He Lacked.

"Why don't you call me a donkey and have done with it? You've hinted at it long enough," he snarled out.

"It wouldn't be quite true," she replied.

"I suppose not. I suppose I haven't ears enough for that animal," he retorted sarcastically.

"Oh, yes, you have," she returned sweetly. "You don't need any more ears."

"What do I need, then?"

"More legs and a better voice."—Harlem Life.

PAGES IN CONGRESS.

Reed Has Made Some Radical Changes from the Old Customs.

"Times have changed since I went into the House," said a man who served as page in the House of Representatives, in his boyhood days. They were much better then to the page than they are now in many different points of view.

"The pay of a page in both the House and the Senate, as is pretty generally known, is $2.50 per day. During the long sessions, the boy has a chance to make something extra, or at least he used to. This has been done away with, though, to a certain extent.

"When the Representatives had no private secretaries, or when they had to pay for them out of their own pockets, the pages used to make considerable on the side by working for the Representatives, helping to mail their documents, writing for them and doing various kinds of work. Since the bill was passed granting the Representatives private secretaries, of course, this has all changed.

"Nowadays, the pages can't even listen to the debates, and have a chance to learn something that way, as was formerly the case. Since Mr. Reed's second term as Speaker, he has made a great revolution in this respect.

"Now the pages are cooped up in quarters in the cloakrooms on either side of the House. It is a regular hotel bell-boy arrangement. Instead of clapping their hands, as they used to do, the Representatives, when they want a page, simply touch a button. This rings a bell in the pages' rooms. There is an electric annunciator, which is the same as used in hotels for the bell-boys, so that it can be told directly where the page is wanted.

"I understand they are going still further to make the arrangement savor of the bell-boy position, as there is talk of uniforming the pages.

"When I first went in, they had two chief pages, who got $1,000 salary, who were supposed to look after the others. Now, as the boys sit on the long benches in the corners of the cloakrooms, they are watched by an overseer, as he is called, who receives a salary of $900. He watches the annunciator, and when a bell rings sends a boy to the desk. So it is getting more and more like the hotel system all the time.

"In the Senate, they do not allow boys over sixteen years of age, but it makes no difference in the House. When I was there, some of them were twenty-four years of age. A boy has to be twelve years of age or more to occupy a position as a page. There are thirty-three in the House and sixteen in the Senate. The pages, I believe, in the Supreme Court chamber are required to wear knee breeches when they are on duty, but this is not enforced on the others."—Washington Star.

ANDREE'S MESSENGER.

The Bird Was Shot by the Captain of a Whaler.

It may perhaps interest readers to know some details about the capture of Andree's pigeon condensed from the report of the captain of the whaler Aiken. On July 15 the Aiken was on the border of the drift ice, in 80 degrees 44 minutes north latitude, 20 degrees 20 minutes east longitude. Between 1 and 2 o'clock in the morning the helmsman called out to the captain, who was sleeping in his cabin: "A strange bird has lighted on the gaff! You must come and shoot it. It looks so queer!"

The captain, who had been sleeping soundly, gave a rather rough reply; but the next moment his curiosity brought him to his feet and up on deck. The bird resembled a ptarmigan; but, as it was sitting close behind a block, the captain could not shoot without risk of injuring the block. So he climbed up the rigging with his rifle and shot it, the strange bird falling forthwith into the sea. The captain commanded the man on the lookout, in a barrel fastened near the top of the mast, to come down and lower a boat and fetch the bird. The man objected to taking so much trouble for a miserable little bird, which probably was of no use.

So the captain went to bed again, and the bird was left in the water. Having sailed for some distance, following the ice, the Aiken met with another whaler. On hearing the story of the strange bird, the captain of the second whaler exclaimed:

"Perhaps it is one of Andree's carrier pigeons."

The captain of the Aiken, who did not know about Andree's ascension, at once returned to the region where the bird was shot and sent out two boats for a careful search. After a while one of the boats returned, having been lucky enough to find "the strange bird," which, indeed, proved to be one of the carrier pigeons, carrying a dispatch.

The bird had flown about 120 miles from the balloon toward Stockholm, and 24 miles north again, from the nearest land to the whaler, on the gaff of which it sat down, so utterly tired that it at once put its head under its wing until it was shot. It could, of course, have easily been caught alive, if the captain had known that it was a carrier pigeon.—Century Magazine.

How We Impressed the Celestial.

This is how a Chinese visitor in this country describes the Americans in a Chinese paper: "They live months without eating a mouthful of rice; they eat bullocks and sheep in enormous quantities; they have to bathe frequently; they eat meat with knives and prongs; they never enjoy themselves by sitting quietly on their ancestors' graves, but jump around and kick balls as if paid to do it, and they have no dignity, for they may be found walking with women."—New York Tribune.

ACCIDENT THAT BROUGHT FAME.

The Way the Making of Shot Was Discovered.

All dreams do not go by contraries. If they did Plumber Watts, of Bristol, England, in all probability, would have remained a humble plumber to the end of his days. But Watts dreamed a dream and it brought him fame and fortune. One afternoon, so the story runs, Watts was engaged in repairing the roof of a Bristol church. In some manner he lost his foothold and was slowly slipping down the smooth slates when he got a new purchase and thus saved his bones, if not his life. This mishap worried Watts and he spent the remainder of the day speculating on what might have happened had he gone over the edge of the roof and dropped to the hard turf blow. Still vexed with these unpleasant fancies he fell asleep and then in dreams he several times repeated his experience of the afternoon, but with several additional features. One of these was that while he was sliding down the roof his ladle of metal had slipped out of his hand and disappeared over the edge. When—still dreaming—he went in search of his lead, expecting to find it in one piece, he was surprised to notice the ground was covered with hundreds of tiny globules, the metal evidently having been so divided in falling. When Watts wakened this incident of his dream would not leave him. He did not for a moment suppose lead would act in such an unusual manner, but the dream seemed so plausible that he was persuaded to enact it in reality. So, with his ladle, he went to the roof of the same church and let the melted lead slide from the ridge. Then he hastened to the ground and his astonishment knew no bounds when he found everything as it had appeared in his dream. The ground was covered with tiny globules of bright metal. Watts was sharp enough to realize what he had discovered and was not slow to profit by it. He found a simple way to make fine shot and he realized a fortune of £10,000 out of his dream.—Chicago Post.

AN INTELLIGENT JUROR.

But He Was Not Allowed to Serve in Wayne County.

A Wayne circuit jury was being empaneled to try a suit against a street railway company for personal damages, and an attorney was examining the panel as to competency to sit.

"What is your business?" he asked of a jolly German.

"Sausage maker, but my name is not Luetgert," was the reply that put everybody in good humor.

"Have you any prejudices against street railways?"

"No I haf no prejudice against dem, but I don't like dem."

"Why? Have they ever done you any harm?"

"Oh, dey don't neffer vas run ofer me, but dey vas all der time reaching out so," and the juror extended his hands and clutched about in the atmosphere with his fingers.

"Do you think that your feeling against street railway companies is so strong that it might influence your verdict in this case?"

"Oh, no, I would do what was right."

"Would you believe the testimony of a motorman as soon as you would that of the plaintiff?"

"Vell, I vouldn't belief eder of dem unless somebody else said so, too."

Even His Honor joined in the laugh that followed and the juror was excused for cause.—Detroit Journal.

A Cord of Wood.

Few persons comprehend the productive capacity of a cord of wood. Chemical experiments are occasionally developing new uses for wood in matters remote from its ordinary adaptability, and the feature that is exciting a great deal of interest just now is the transformation of wood products into liquids. Although under the strongest kind of pressure wood yields scarcely any moisture, by means of heat wood will evolve gases and liquids of marked potency and utility. In converting wood into charcoal, gases and smoke arise which can be condensed into pyroligneous acid. It is estimated that there is fully 65 per cent. of this acid in a given quantity of wood alcohol, acetate of lime and wood tars. The alcohol thus obtained is said to be a very satisfactory substitute for grain alcohol for mechanical and manufacturing purposes, and it can be produced at less than one-third of the cost of the grain alcohol.

Investigations conducted with practical objects in view have disclosed these interesting facts: A cord of wood, which weighs 4,000 pounds, will yield about 2,050 pounds of pyroligneous acid and 700 pounds of charcoal; the acid will produce about nine gallons of 82 per cent. crude wood alcohol, about 25 gallons of tar, and fully 200 pounds of acetate of lime. These facts indicate a future for wood outside of the realm of fuel and pulp.

HIDDEN TREASURE.

Better Than Captain Kidd's—It was Found in a Discarded Chest.

One of New York City's most famous hosts in the early days of this century was John Hunter, of Hunter's Island, which is now a part of Pelham Bay Park. In the fine old mansion still standing on it, which he built, in 1807, for a country home, and in his town house at 7 State street, he entertained in a lavish and splendid manner, gathering often as many as forty guests at a time around his table. The silver that helped to make these banquets princely was as famous in its day as its owner's good sheer, and there was a story connected with it, too.

When John Hunter's father, Robert Hunter, who was a nephew of the Colonial Governor of that name, and a man of wealth, came to this country, he brought with him among his baggage an old iron strong box, which he kept in the State street house. At his death, his son, John Hunter, knowing nothing about it, and considering it too clumsy an article to be given house room any longer, packed it off to a storage warehouse with a lot of other stuff. It lay there for years forgotten, till finally the storage-keeper, taking a fancy to it, asked Mr. Hunter if he might have it. Mr. Hunter consented, but decided to have a look inside of it first. The key to it was not forthcoming, and a locksmith was sent for to force it open. Within were rows of canvas bags. Mr. Hunter picked up one of them; it fell to pieces, and Spanish silver dollars rolled over the floor. The chest was full of silver pieces. Mr. Hunter sent them to a silversmith and had them made into the service that is still to-day one of the finest in the country. There was a plateau for the middle of the table 7 feet long, and every guest seated about it was served exclusively from silver dishes.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

LET US ARM YOU!

It's quite necessary, because while Uncle Sam is settling scores with the Spaniards you're bound to have a little brush at home at the same time, and there's nothing like being ready for emergencies. Until you can sign a perpetual truce with sun, wind and storm, your house and other buildings will need to be fortified with paint, and ours are like a 20-inch chilled steel armor.

SEWER BEDS NEED CITY'S ATTENTION.

Generally Admitted That the Stench is Terrible.

MONEY AND MEN NEEDED.

OTHERWISE PRESENT CONDITIONS CANNOT BE AVERTED.

Residents Claim Brook is Polluted—Unprejudiced Observers All Agree That the Odor is Very Unpleasant—Suggestions of Prominent Clergyman—City Officials Cognizant of the Situation.

It might just as well be said, for the fact is generally known and admitted, that the city sewer beds are not the success as far as the stench is concerned that they were promised to be. Anybody who has visited that neighborhood cannot but admit that there is a stench and that it is not pleasant to the nostrils of anyone. There has been a great deal of talk on the subject since they were first inaugurated, and they have had to stand the criticism of many.

Of late, lime has been used about the edge of the beds to kill the odor coming from them, but during this spell of murky weather there does not seem to be anything that will stop the stench that constantly arises from the beds.

Street Commissioner Gavett is designated by the city to look after the sewer farm. As a result, he is an abused man. Now there is no more conscientious worker for the city's welfare than Mr. Gavett. He cannot accomplish anymore in that direction than he is doing. His powers there are limited by the help he is allowed by the city and also by the size of the appropriation for the care of the beds. He has done his best but the matter has passed beyond his limited means as provided by the city.

It has been said that it is possible to put the beds in such a condition that there will be little or no stench arising from them. It takes money and labor, though. That means that the Common Council will have to expend more money there if they wish to improve the beds.

It is said, and probably truly, that the city officials are cognizant with the situation. One is quoted as saying that he would not want the beds very near his property.

While one of the lower beds was being used last week, a neighbor who resides not far from there, requested the officials not to continue the use of that bed, as the smell therefrom was so bad that he could not endure it. Then there are a number of people residing in that vicinity who stoutly allege that Green brook is polluted with matter from the beds.

A short time ago a party of Plainfield people had occasion to walk through Rock avenue from Front street. In the party were several women, most of whom made use of their handkerchiefs while passing the beds. The men in the party were very glad that they happened to be smoking at the time. They all declared the stench very great and they were unprejudiced observers.

A prominent city clergyman, in speaking about the beds from a visit to them, recently remarked that it seemed a burning shame to ruin a portion of the city which seemed to be the only roomy part within the city limits. He spoke of how much better it would be if the city would do away with the beds, run the sewage matter to tide-water, and make a park in that section of the city. He claimed that the city would be the gainer by it, for as it is now, people are kept away from that part of the town and thus the money that might come to Plainfield goes elsewhere.

And so it goes. A hundred such cases might be quoted. A visit to that section, however, will be sufficient to convince any one of the real situation and the necessity of doing some thing.

SECURED A PENSION.

Justice Nash Obtained One for Mrs. Goodwin in Short Order.

Justice Nash has just secured a pension for Mrs. George Goodwin, whose husband died about three months ago, and considers that he has secured it in less time than a pension was ever granted before under similar circumstances.

Mr. Goodwin was receiving a pension when he died, but upon his death it became necessary for Mrs. Goodwin to apply for her widow's pension, $8 a month. Less than a month ago Justice Nash made the application, and although ordinarily taking six months for the government to even consider the application, Mrs. Goodwin has received her pension besides $29.60 back pay.

LIBERTY POLE IS NOT YET PAID FOR.

Merchants Were to Subscribe for New Flag Pole.

THEY HAVE NOT DONE IT.

WILL THE CITY SETTLE THE ENTIRE BILL?

Council Appropriated $150, Merchants Were to Give the Rest—Pole Cost Nearly $300—Some Trouble Over the Flag Itself—It is Now Being Repaired—Liable to Stir Up a "Hornet's Nest."

There is every prospect that the monthly meeting of the Common Council Monday evening will abound with exciting incidents. One of the primary causes of a lively meeting will be the city flag and liberty pole. A situation has developed there that is liable to stir up a "hornet's nest."

The truth of it is that the big flagpole that now stands at the intersection of Park avenue and Front street is not paid for, and, still worse, there is no money in prospect with which to pay for it unless the Council decides Monday night to appropriate some $100, which is still owing.

It will be remembered by those who have kept in touch with the proceedings of the Council that it was announced at one meeting that some of the merchants of the city would assist in paying for the pole. It was first intended only to purchase a pole 96 feet high at the city's expense, then the height was changed to 125 feet and the merchants were to put up the amount needed above the city's appropriation, which was $150. Now the pole was to cost $200. Cartage, painting and other incidentals have run the total cost of it up close to $300, it is said.

Now the city's money was forthcoming without trouble but the other was not. At least, it has not been heard from. The city officials are reticent on the subject ard refuse to state whether they have applied for the money promised. At any rate the bill has been presented and over $100 is lacking.

It is said that a prominent merchant guaranteed the payment of the merchants' subscription and said, in the hearing of a city official, that he would go around with a subscription paper and collect the necessary funds. It was then not known just how much they would be called upon to contribute.

Another cause of trouble is the flag itself. Just at present, the flag is undergoing repairs. It began to fray at the edges and was promised with complete destruction by the storms and wind unless it underwent repairs very soon. Now, in the absence of the city flag, a smaller one, belonging to the Republican Association, waves over the town.

According to the resolution passed by the Common Council, the flag was to be put up every morning at sunrise and taken down every night at sunset. This, many claim, has not been done.

There are those who believe that it should not be put up every day as wind and storm will soon reduce it to a wreck.

The delay in acting on Collector Bird's resignation has promised to make some excitement at the Council meeting. Everybody is wondering what is going to be done in the matter and whether it will be allowed to go over another month by default.

MANY EXCURSIONS.

August Will be a Great Month for Them.

Three excursions have already gone to Asbury Park this season and one more would have gone yesterday had it not been for the storm. The G. A. R. men went early in the summer, and there was a lull then until July 14, when the Trinity Reformed Sunday-school went, and a week later the joint excursion of the Congregational, First Presbyterian and Park Avenue Baptist churches.

For August a lively programme is announced. All the excursions come within a few days of each other, some of them following the day after.

On August 4, the Crescent Avenue school goes to Asbury Park; August 10, St. Mary's T. A. B. to Highland Beach; August 11, Methodist Episcopal to Asbury Park; August 13, Pond's, South Beach; August 18, Jr. O. U. A. M., Asbury Park; August 20, Hope Chapel, Asbury Park; August 30, First Baptist to Asbury Park.

Adam Blair Sells Out.

Adam Blair, who has been conducting a freight and express business for two years, has sold out to Henry Wierenga, who has been with Captain Hand for sometime. The deal was made through Judge G. W. DeMeza.

IS NO BREAD IN HAVANA.

Hunger is Already Claiming Many Victims There.

BELIEVE CAMARA NEAR

BLANCO GIVES FALSE REPORTS TO SOLDIERS.

Bread Riots Reported—Two Bakers, Said To Be Hoarding Flour, Were Killed By Mob—Blockade Effective.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Key West, July 29, 12:31 p. m.—Hunger is claiming many victims among all classes at Havana since the blockade has been extended.

Now that the American ships are guarding the entrance to the harbor so closely, no ships bearing provisions have entered the harbor.

Gen. Blanco scanty supply was soon exhausted and now there is nothing left for people or soldiers.

Bread riots have broken out among the lower classes, and two bakers, who were reported to be hoarding their flour, were attacked and killed and their bakeries broken into.

The Spanish soldiers have faith in the story circulated at the order of Blanco to the effect that Camara's fleet had sailed to their assistance.

DANCED ON THE LAWN.

Miss Brower Entertained a Large Number of Friends at Her Home.

Miss Brower, daughter of Aaron Brower, of Clinton avenue, gave a lawn party last evening at her home, which was one of the most pleasant affairs of its kind this season. Guests were present to the number of 100, from Dunellen, New Market and this city, and passed an enjoyable evening, returning home soon after midnight.

The lawn had been rolled and levelled for the purpose and provided hammocks, swings, chairs and rustic seats for the accommodation of the young folks. Chinese and Japanese lanterns in great profusion were hung around, and made the lawn as light as day.

Dancing was the order of the evening and the young folks enjoyed the novelty of a dance on the lawn. Games were played and phonographic selections given. Toward the close of the evening songs were sung and refreshments served. The guests left, thanking their hostess for the pleasant evening.

ENTERTAINED FOR SON.

Mr. and Mrs. Bach Gave a Party to the Fresh Air Children.

Yesterday afternoon and evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bach, in the borough, all of the children who are now in Plainfield and are known as fresh-air children, sent from New York to families in this city and the borough, assembled and enjoyed the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Bach. The occasion was the anniversary of the birthday of the young son of the host and hostess and the little boys and girls were invited to help make merry with the young celebrant. The time was passed in playing games and having a good social time, after which refreshments were served in abundance. Everyone present fully enjoyed themselves and were sorry to go home when the time for departure arrived.

A Missionary Tea.

The Christian Women's Board of Missions of the Christian church held a missionary tea last evening at the home of Mrs. H. W. McKane, of Pearl street, and, considering the night, the attendance was excellent. Members of the society had the affair in charge and a very pleasant social time was had by all. Plans for missionary work were talked over and in the early fall they will be put into execution. The tea was a social and financial success.

WANTED A HORSE; WISH WAS GRANTED.

Now Lawyer DeMeza Bemoans the Day He Bought It.

A STORY WITH A MORAL.

PAID SEVEN DOLLARS FOR A MUSTANG WORTH ONE.

He Longed to Own a Horse and He Now Does—His Only Object in Life Now is to Get Rid Of It as Soon as Possible—How It All Occurred—Supposed to be a Good Judge of Horses.

William G. De Meza, a young lawyer having an office on East Front street, possesses a new horse. Just how he came to own the steed can be told in a few words, but what he will do with it remains to be seen.

Lawyer De Meza is a horseman, and knows a good steed when he sees one. Early this week he was attending the sale of horses at the Driving Park, and watching the speedy ones being knocked down to the prominent local horsemen.

Then the follower of Blackstone aspired to possess one of his own, and decided to make an attempt. He, too, would own a horse.

After the sale was over, De Meza walked up to Fred Rose, who was in charge of the sale, and holding out his hand said, "I'll give you what I have in my hand for a horse."

Mr. Rose hesitated a moment, then seeing the corner of a greenback peeping out of De Meza's hand, and knowing that it must be a one dollar bill at the least, said, "I'll take it," and taking the money dropped it in his pocket without even glancing at it.

"Catch the pony, boys," was the next order, and, while DeMeza stood not knowing what to do, a couple of men rode out into the corral and roped an old decrepid mustang which they led in and turned over to DeMeza.

The lawyer, not realizing that Rose meant what he had said and inclined to think it all a joke, took hold of the haller-strap, mechanically, and proceeded to walk off with his charge. No one stopped him. He continued to walk on until he had passed the gates. Then, seeing the crowd disappearing, did he realize the situation. There was nothing else to do, he could not go back, so he kept on towards home.

When DeMeza reached town he put the horse in Corle's livery stable, where it is now enjoying life. It can there be seen by would-be purchasers who are cautioned not to go too near the animal for fear that its propensity for wild-west tactics may lead it to strange and wierd antics.

When Rose looked at the money in his hand, he found that it was $7. He now feels that he has the best of the bargain. Meanwhile DeMeza would be obliged to anyone who will tell him what to do with his charge.

FAST STEPPERS BOUGHT.

SEVERAL SPEEDY HORSES ADDED TO PLAINFIELD STABLES.

Many Have Low Marks and Will Make Things Lively in Local Trotting Circles—Were Sold at Sale at Driving Park.

The horse sale at the driving park, which closed yesterday, has been the means of furnishing to the horse-loving public of this city the best opportunity they have had for some time to obtain fast horses and well bred ones at low prices. Some of the best horses that have ever been seen in this vicinity have been sold since Saturday afternoon.

City Judge DeMeza purchased one of the best bred horses in the country. The Judge's new possession has considerable speed. Ellis Campbell bought a fancy road horse; ex-Judge W. A. Coddington bought "Sam B." He can go one, two or three miles in less than a 2:20 clip. J. M. Smalley selected a young horse, sound and true. He has no record, but has gone trial miles in 2:30. George Conover also bought a fine road horse. John G. MacLaughlin, of the borough, bought "Charles Tammany," who can make his mile in 2:13 or 2:14. Last year he is said to have made a mint of money on the track. H. E. Rider also bought four well bred equines.

"Kittie Rue" now belongs to Newton B. Smalley. The mare has a record of 2:31¼. Week before last she went a trial mile in 2:21½, the last half being made in 1:03½.

TERMS FOR SPANIARDS.

McKinley Will Reply Saturday Or Monday.

CABINET NOW IN SESSION.

M'KINLEY WISHES TO HEAR FROM DEWEY AND MERRITT

On Their Answer Will Depend Terms Regarding the Phillippines—Spain Must Withdraw From West Indies.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Washington, July 29, 12:32 p. m.—The official answer to Spain's request for terms of peace will probably be delayed until Saturday or Monday.

President McKinley wishes to hear officially from Dewey and Merritt before the answer is sent to Madrid regarding the part the Philippines are to play in the peace terms.

The situation is said to depend greatly upon their opinion as to the future of the islands.

It is intimated this morning that the reply of the United States will be totally different from that which was confidently expected.

As a condition to precede the appointment of a peace commission, the President is expected to demand of Spain the immediate withdrawal of all her troops from Cuba and Porto Rico.

A public acknowledgement of her relinquishment of all her territory in the West Indies will be required on the part of Spain.

There must also be a resumption of diplomatic relations where they were broken off when the American minister, Woodford, was unceremoniously sent out of Madrid before being able to present the ultimatum of the United States.

After that the peace question and question of indemnity will be considered.

Washington, July 29, 1:07 p. m.—The Cabinet has been in session since eleven o'clock this morning. All the members were present including Attorney General Griggs who hurried back from Canada.

The indications are that no answer will be made to Spain's request for terms of peace today. Secretary of State Day was in conference early this morning before the Cabinet meeting.

NO CARE FOR WOUNDED.

Startling Reports Received at Washington From Santiago Concerning the Wounded.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Washingtod, July 29, 12:23 p. m.—The War department continues to receive startling information regarding the management and care of the wounded at Santiago.

It has been learned on the best authority that there are only two ambulances in the entire army for the transportation of the wounded to the hospitals.

It is reported that when the wounded arrived, they were stretched on the bare ground, some of them entirely nude and with no protection from the tropical heat.

It is reported that they remained in the sun in that condition for hours awaiting medical attendance.

The various officials blame Gen. Shafter for this condition of affairs.

W. A. Woodruff has sold for G. L. Vandenburgh estate, the house and lot 210 West Fourth street, to Thomas Lynch, foreman of The Daily Press press room.

RUNAWAY HORSE IN A CROWDED STREET

Frightened Equine Ran Through Busy Front Street.

RAN INTO AN OPEN WAGON.

WRECKED VEHICLE BELONGED TO W. O. BALDWIN.

Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin Were in the Wagon, But Escaped Injury—Took the Accident Coolly—Dayton Melick Was the Owner of the Runaway—Mr. Melick's Buggy Was Smashed.

Front street had just assumed its busiest appearance yesterday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock when a runaway horse, with buggy attached, came down the thoroughfare toward the maze of vehicles and cyclists that crowded the street. There was a crash, a rush of pedestrians, and the unchecked career of the frightened horse was ended. Two wagons were wrecked but no other damage was done.

Dayton Melick is a milkman living near Avon Park. Yesterday he drove down to Plainfield in the afternoon and did some errands. He stopped on Church street and tied his horse with a strap while he went in. In some way the strap slipped down and tightened about the bottom of the post. The horse, feeling his head held down, gave a toss and the strap broke. Frightened at this unexpected freedom, the animal started down Church street to Front. A moment later the horse was in full gallop.

In some way, the runaway managed to avoid the passing carriages on East Front street. Several men ran out to catch the horse but failed. The animal passed Park avenue in safety.

Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Baldwin, of West Fourth street, were driving through town in their open wagon. They were going east. Just in front of J. A. Smith's grocery, Mr. Baldwin pulled out to the right to pass an ice wagon. Then the runaway appeared.

"There's a runaway," remarked Mrs. Baldwin, as the horse came plunging at them.

"Yes," replied Mr. Baldwin and he carefully turned his horse out of the path of the runaway equine. Then came the crash. The front wheel of Melick's buggy passed inside of the front wheel of Baldwin's wagon. Both wheels collapsed and the axle to Baldwin's wagon snapped.

Louis Darling and several other witnesses of the accident sprang to the head of the runaway. Baldwin's horse trembled but obeyed the word of his master and stood his ground. Mr. Baldwin jumped out, assisted his wife to clamber out of the careening vehicle and then led the horse and wreck out of the path of traffic.

Mr. Melick arrived on the scene shortly after and took charge of his horse. He will probably settle for the damage. The great wonder was that the results were not more serious owing to the heavy traffic in the street at the time.

DELAY IN STREET WORK.

Engineer of Steam Roller is Ill and the Roller Lies Idle.

Owing to the unexpected illness of John Porter, engineer of the steam roller, the street repairing men were badly hampered yesterday. Work was at a standstill. Madison avenue, West Fourth street and Sandford avenue, and the recently macadamized parts of Stelle and Madison avenues are waiting for the roller before being fit to use.

Patsy Christmas is pushing forward the work on the Plainfield avenue storm sewer, and now has about 200 feet of pipe laid, one manhole dug, and is working in the inlet or catch basin. He has sixteen men on the job.

Two more washouts were recently reported to the Street Commissioner. A bad one on West Fourth street in the roadway near Vail's Grove, and the other in the sidewalk on West Third street, near Clinton avenue.

COAL TRAIN IN THE WAY.

Delayed Cars That Await the Arrival of the 7:55 Express.

A coal train was in the way this morning of the cars which are daily brought up from Dunellen to be attached to the 7:55 train. As a result the cars were delayed in arriving and the commuters stood around in surprise wondering what had become of them. They arrived just in time to get into the switch, receive the passengers, and be attached to the 7:55 train.

ROSIE CELEBRATED HER OWN BIRTHDAY.

But the Police Came and Carried Away the Guests.

NINETY DAYS IN JAIL.

THE CELEBRATION AROUSED THE WHOLE NEIGHBORHOOD.

Police Raided the House and Captured Seven—Appeared In Court In Evening Dress—There Was a Cake Walk—White People There Also—Several Arrests to Follow These.

"It was a hot time in the old town" last night, when Mrs. Rosie Jackson, already famous on this side of the brook where her dusky face has frequently figured in the police court, celebrated the anniversary of her birthday. No one knew which anniversary it was, but that made little difference. The event came off in great style, and as a result seven dusky individuals were arraigned in the borough court this morning before Recorder Long and each one was given ninety days in the county jail to repent at leisure for his or her sins.

"Rosa" lives on Race street, in the borough, and she has a reputation for being a great entertainer. She limited her invitations, according to her story this morning, and only the select colored folk was present. She hired musicians for the night for $1.25 each, and they played until things got so warm that they agreed it would be better to depart while they could.

The celebration started in at an early hour, and it was not long before the "select crowd" was present. Dancing of course, was the feature, while there was plenty of liquid refreshment to make the affafr a success.

Those who were allowed the privileges of the floor had to have on their finest. In honor of the affair "Rosa" wore a gaudy pink and lavender silk gown, trimed with a superabundance of lace and green ribbons. She appeared in court this morning in all her gorgeous attire as did her guests, just as they had been locked up.

It started in all right but soon the beer began to flow, the guests grew happy and the musicians fearful. There was dancing of all kinds, waltzes, two-steps, three-steps, pigeon-wings, chicken wings. There were shouts and screams and everybody within a radious of a block of the house heard the racket and could not sleep.

The evening dragged on and then Annie Bergan, one of the guests, told how she had never seen a "cake walk" So Andrew Oby, the bootblack at the City Hotel who had dropped in after the show, volunteered to show how it was done with the assistance of the daughter of the hostess, Maggie Belle Jackson. They began and the excitement reached fever heat. More bottles were opened, more beer disappeared and more noise was the result.

Outside, the marshals heard the noise and wondered. They wondered when the time would come to end it all. It was the first good taste they had had of the never-to-be forgotten days in Dusky Flats. And they didn't like it.

The noise grew louder and louder until the peaceful borough citizen two blocks away rose out of his bed and swore. The participants thought that they were having a good time and probably they were. The musicians were not accustomed to such proceedings. Unable to to stand it, at last, they fled for their lives.

Midnight passed and there were no signs of any diminuition in the noise. Half an hour later, the marshals decided to raid the place. It was surrounded and they entered.

Nobody ever saw such a scattering. The officers jumped for the leaders, and the rest departed by any old way that came handy. Mary Lynn was just about to plunge out of a back window when the hand of one of the marshals rested heavily upon her sable shoulder. Seven were caught and locked up for the night.

"Rosa" was the first one on the stand this morning. She was arrested by Marshals Wise and Schenck. She informed the court that she had planned to have a nice quiet birthday social. She said that no one made any disturbance in the house, and she saw no reason why arrests were made. Anna Bergen and Louisa Miller appeared in her behalf and told what a nice lady Mrs. Jackson was. Afterwards everyone of the prisoners called on Mrs. Bergen to help them out in proving what dear little innocent

SHALL WE HAVE PEACE?

The President's Policy in Regard to Porto Rico and Cuba.

SITUATION IS UNCHANGED

The Members of the Cabinet Are Agreed as to Everything Except the Philippines. The Spanish Government Will Probably Pursue a Policy That Will Gradually Bring the People to Realize How Much Must Be Given Up.

Washington, July 29.--The peace question is still hanging in mid air. There is nothing to change in the account given in these dispatches yesterday of the general form of the propositions which will be laid before the cabinet as a basis for the response of the United States to the overtures just made by Spain.

As to Cuba and Porto Rico, the members of the administration are absolutely of one mind, and our demands as to those may be set down as the foundation of an ultimatum from which we shall in no event recede.

The future of the Philippines is the all important question now, and President McKinley is hourly being made acquainted with the sentiment of the American people on the question of whether they should be retained or relinquished.

That they must never be given back to Spain is undoubtedly the determination of the American people without regard to party or faction, and through the medium of thousands of telegrams, personal interviews and the columns of the newspapers the president and secretary of state are being made aware of the popularity of the policy that will retain the Philippines in the possession of the United States.

Since the announcement of Spain's desire to accomplish peace, much has been said about the embarrassment that the administration would encounter in an attempt to hold the Philippines by the opposition of the powers of Europe. This consideration, however, it can be stated on the very highest authority is a bugaboo. The United States government has long since convinced itself by direct and unmistakable assurance that the powers will not interfere in any way to prevent the United States from taking and holding the islands.

Germany, France, England and particularly Russia, it is thought here, might enter a protest should the United States undertake to turn the Philippines over to any European power after having taken possession themselves, but that objection would be raised to their retention by the United States is made impossible by the guarantee given to the department of state by the representative of each of the great powers of Europe.

The president is taking pains to learn the sentiment of the people generally, and is getting in detail the views of the cabinet members. He has cabled to Admiral Dewey for a full statement of the conditions political--military and material--at Manila to-day, and will govern himself largely by what information is furnished him. Surprise is expressed in many quarters that the president should be willing to announce to the world his policy with regard to the future of the Philippines, but those who profess to know that he will reply fully and freely to Spain, explain that he is led to this course by his desire to forestall a counter proposition from Sagasta or the foreign minister that would lead to a long drawn out diplomatic discussion.

Meanwhile the impression strengthens in Washington that the Spanish overtures are only tentative at their present stage.

Public men who are best acquainted with Sagasta and his methods, believe that he will at first go through all the forms of being shocked at the idea of giving up Porto Rico as well as Cuba, and will withdraw from the negotiations with a theatrical sigh which will be heard all over Europe. This he expects to have its effect upon the minds of other continental governments, and possibly stir them into coming forward with a demand that the United States shall offer better terms.

That scheme having failed, he will wait, it is thought, till General Miles has reduced San Juan, if that comes soon, or till General Merritt has taken actual possession of Manila and the island of Luzon, and constructive possession of the whole Philippine group, or till Commodore Watson appears at Cadiz, and then propose to yield Porto Rico and stickle on the Philippine proposition.

By accustoming the Spanish people piecemeal in this way to the idea of heavy concessions for the sake of peace, it is supposed that he hopes to bring about the desired change without an actual revolution.

No News from Dewey.

Washington, July 29.--Secretary Day said yesterday that he had not heard from Manila nor had he any confirmation yet of the reports that the city had surrendered to Admiral Dewey.

The most conservative authorities place General Merritt and his force in the Philippines. For the past two days officials have been expecting a cablegram announcing his arrival at Manila.

General Merritt left San Francisco on June 29 on the Newport. The trip should require about three weeks, but allowing for all delays, it is thought that General Merritt has reached his destination before this.

The general opinion among army and navy officers is that Admiral Dewey will demand the surrender of Manila shortly after General Merritt and his forces arrive. Some believe that the city is already under the government of General Merritt.

General Merritt and Admiral Dewey, it is thought, will have little, if any trouble with Aguinaldo and his army of insurgents. The dispatches of Admiral Dewey show that he thoroughly understands the leader of the insurgents and do not intimate that he has had any difficulty in dealing with him.

The Illness of the Spanish King.

Madrid, July 29.--The king's attack of measles is taking its normal course and there are no complications.

SITUATION IN HAVANA.

A Picture of Terrible Suffering Drawn by a Resident of That Fated City.

Key West, July 28.--The following extracts from a letter received here shows the terrible condition of affairs in the city of Havana. The letter bears the date of July 12.

"The government has no money. It owes troops pay for six or seven months and the soldiers' food is scarce as possible and of bad quality. It cannot be understoodho w they can fight in this condition, as they are not fighting for a principle. Public order has not been disturbed in Havana except a few days ago, when there was some trouble over want of bread. The effect of the blockade has been very bad on the city. We have no rice, no lard, no garlic, no onions, etc., and I say we have not this because the little there is is selling at these prices: Twenty-five pounds of rice, $90 gold; lard, $10 to $15.90 per can of 25 pounds; head of garlic, 40 cents; quart of oil, 40 cents; Cuban potatoes, $9 per 100 pounds; 25 pounds sweet potatoes, $7.50. Other vegetables are very scarce and very dear. Beef sells at 60 cents a pound.

All other eatables are so dear that it is impossible for people to live. Public houses have suspended giving food to children, thus compelling 5,000 children to be without food. Omnibusses are circulating very little, because there is no food for horses. It is a sad sight to see the poor beasts fall about the streets in the shafts, dying of starvation. Street car lines are also running very few cars and are feeding their horses with rice, peas and palm tree seeds. Carriages are very scarce, and if you hire a hack it goes only as fast as a man can walk.

"We can be satisfied if we have for a meal a plate of consomme, a little corn meal, beef and one other dish. We have no bread. This, as we say in Spanish, costs us an eye of our head. I went the other day to see a family of friends who were in good circumstances before the war, and I found the father prostrated in bed. The daughters, who could not find any work, were in a most sorrowful condition. They only live by eating a little corn meal, cooked with salt once a day.

"One of the young women was so weak when I saw them that she fainted while talking with me of her troubles. If I don't die of hunger, as might happen, and if the Americans determine to bombard Havana and it is my fortune to escape with my family uninjured, I think we will be together very soon under the redeemed flag of our free country."

Relics of Ocean Disaster.

St. Johns, N. F., July 29.--The schooner Delight, Captain McDonald, arrived here yesterday and reported passing through a quantity of wreckage from the lost French line steamer La Bourgogne off Sable island.

Captain McDonald launched a boat and rowed to some dead bodies which he descried floating about the wreckage. He found several male and female bodies, from which he removed rings, watches, pocketbooks and other property which would help identify the bodies from which the articles were taken.

Captain McDonald proposes to turn the property over to the government here, with whom the relatives and friends of people lost on the steamship should communicate. All the bodies were too much decomposed to permit a description of their features.

Spanish Army Concentrating.

St. Thomas, D. W. I., July 28.--The Spanish troops in Porto Rico are being withdrawn from the outlying towns and are concentrating upon San Juan.

The defences of the capital are being strengthened.

Every effort is working by the Spanish to defend San Juan. Unless an armistice is declared there will be a hard battle fought before General Miles's forces can take the city, even with the aid of our powerful warships.

Masked Burglars Get Booty.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 29.--Five masked burglars broke into the general store of Jenkins and Company early on yesterday morning, and bound, blindfolded and gagged two of the men who slept over the store. They then ransacked the apartment and after taking all the valuables went to the store room below and blew open the safe with nitroglycerine, securing about $200 and watches and jewelry worth about $200 more.

HOW TO KEEP GOLDFISH.

Should Have Plenty of Water and Never Be Handled.

People are seldom able to keep gold fish for more than a month or two at most, and all because they neglect a few first principles. Gold fish can be kept almost any length of time, accidents apart, if kept scrupulously clean.

The air in the water is soon exhausted, and they should have fresh water every day. If possible oftener in summer, though once will do, if the globe is fairly large.

One can usually tell when the fish are needing fresh water. They stand up on their tails with their mouths to the surface of the water and move slowly in that position, generally making a bubbling sound.

When you put the fresh water into the globe, let it dash in from a height, so that plenty of air gets in, too, and let your fish have a handful of shells or small stones. They look pretty and the fish appreciate being able to poke about among them for bits of food, and it gives them something to do and a little interest in life.

Packets of fishes' food, chiefly consisting of dried ants' eggs, can be procured from any seed or naturalist's shop. As they require only a very small quantity once a day, their board is not expensive. They will live on vermicelli, but this clouds the water, and consequently injures the appearance of the globe.

It is said that gold fish should never be handled. This is no doubt true, if they are kept for breeding purposes. Otherwise, it does them no harm, if due care is exercised, and you may pick them up one by one in your hand and pop them into their globe of fresh water.--Boston Globe.

PORTO RICO CAMPAIGN

Meagre News from Miles and His Army at Guanica.

MADRID HEARS OF REPULSE

The Troops Which Landed Monday Said to Have Engaged the Spanish and Fallen Back. Ponce is the Second City on the Island and Miles Will Probably Surround It. It is 22 Miles from the Landing Place.

Washington, July 29.--According to dispatches from Captain General Macias of Porto Rico to the Spanish government the American troops which landed at Guanica on Monday began their advance toward Yauco on Tuesday and engaged in some skirmishing with a force of 700 Spanish regulars and volunteers under Colonel Puig on the evening and night of that day. At daybreak yesterday, according to General Macia's report, the Americans returned to the positions which they had formerly occupied.

The Porto Ricans, according to General Macias, are indifferent to the result of the American invasion.

A dispatch from Madrid by way of Biarritz, says that as soon as Minister of the Interior Sapdepon learned that Premier Sagasta had publicly admitted the successful landing of General Miles at Guanica, he issued an order forbidding the transmission of the statement to the provinces.

The distance from Guanica bay, where General Miles landed, to Yauco, is only four miles, but there being no roads along the intervening marshy plain, our troops will have to overcome considerable obstacles before they reach Yauco, at the foot of the low mountains of the interior. Once there, the advance of the army will be comparatively easy. From Yauco a railroad runs twenty-two miles to Ponce, the second largest city in Porto Rico. It is General Miles's intention to seize this road and operate it.

A dispatch from Madrid says that the authorities at San Juan have sunk a vessel in the narrow channel of the harbor so that entrance is effectually blocked.

Warship Goes Astray.

Off Cape San Juan, July 28.--One transport of the Porto Rico expedition has lost the others. This is the Mobile, No. 21, which sailed from Charleston on Thursday with 1,200 troops of the Sixteenth Pennsylvania and the Sixth Illinois regiments, under Colonel Willis Hulings, aboard of whom thirty-five are sick with typhoid.

Last night the cruiser Cincinnati from New York, accidentally found her within range of the cannon of San Juan.

The Cincinnati, running up to warn the Evening Post dispatch boat that the guns ashore could shoot eight miles and that she had better stand out to sea, came also upon the Mobile, led her seaward, stood by her all night, and then convoyed her down the Ramillies passage to where the Mobile expected to find the remainder of the expedition.

It is understood that the rendezvous will be off Fajardo, just south of Cape San Juan, instead of Guanica.

The Mobile was the last of the three transports which left Charleston last week for Porto Rico. She sailed from Charleston, S. C., on Thursday, having on board the Sixteenth Pennsylvania, two companies of the Sixth Illinois and an ambulance corps, in all about 1,200 soldiers. There were also about nine hundred mules and 2,500 tons of stores on board. At the time she sailed it was understood that General Miles would land his expedition at a point on the north shore of Porto Rico, nearer San Juan, instead of at Guanica, which he selected for a landing place after leaving Cuba.

Says All Are Stealing.

San Francisco, July 29.--Quartermaster Sergeant James M. Young of the Twentieth Kansas regiment has been ordered under arrest by Colonel Funston, charged with embezzling government property. He is alleged to have sold stores issued as food for the regiment.

Young admits his guilt and gives the excuse that he was doing only what every other commissary officer of Camp Merritt has been doing all along.

The regimental commanders deny that such a state of things exists in their commissary departments, but the matter will be investigated at once.

Formal Contracts Now.

Washington, July 29.--The army ordnance office is engaged in making formal contracts with firms throughout the country which have already received provisional orders for steel and cast iron shell gun forgings and powder. In the haste of placing these orders during the early weeks of the war, there was no time to draw up the documents, which, under the war department system, are quite elaborate. The contracts thus made represent an expenditure of several millions.

Gold from the Klondike.

Sattle, July 29.--More than $2,000,000 in gold arrived at Seattle yesterday from the Klondike on the steamer Humboldt. This makes about $12,000,000 brought down from the gold fields since the first of this month, the Humboldt being the sixteenth treasure vessel to arrive. There were 169 Klondikers on the steamer.

Quarantined for a Week.

Tampa, July 28.--Five transports are now in quarantine here, which have arrived from Santiago to transport that part of the Porto Rico expedition in camp here. All will be required to remain in quarantine here for seven days so that the Porto Rico expedition from here cannot sail before ten days.

Increased Receipts.

Albany, N. Y., July 29.--Excise Commissioner Lyman announces that the total receipts from the issue and transfer of liquor tax certificates and from fines and penalties from May 1, 1898, to date, were $12,007,994.81, which is $291,000 in excess of the total receipts for the same period of last year.

The Clearing Sale of Shirt Waists.

With the close of July comes the greatest price-cutting—the most attractive values ever offered. The remaining stock is divided into two lots, 49c. and 75c., former prices ranged from 75c to $1.50. There's not 200 waists in the entire assortment, so we advise an early call for the best selection.

Sailor Hats and Untrimmed Hats 49c.

This means that each and every hat, irrespective of former price, will be 49c. Of especial interest should the price be, as none have been less than 75c, and the styles offered are all of this season's production.

Men's Negligee Shirts 59c.

Sounds cheap, but the hundred or more shirts that go on sale have been selling at 75c., 85c. and $1. The patterns are all new and desirable, the kind that you would like. Clearing time is here, and the new price, 59c., will be the means of their quick disposal.

Men's Summer Underwear 20c.

Nearly 600 pieces gauze underwear to be 20c. This is ordinarily the best 25c underwear sold, but 20c will be the clearing price.

RECONSTRUCTION OF CUBA.

The Task Which Confronts This Government is Not a Slight One.

Santiago, Cuba, Wednesday, via Port Antonio, Jamaica, Thursday.--The presence of a pacifying power will be necessary in Santiago for an indefinite period to make possible the resumption of civil affairs on a peaceful basis.

The pacifying power will be armed United States soldiers.

There are influential Spaniards and influential Cubans who say that the United States will always be obliged to keep troops here to insure against riot and the disruption of municipal affairs.

The conquered Spaniards are to-day clinking glasses with the Americans, but when they meet Cubans threats and imprecations pass back and forth. To American superiority of arms the Spaniards bow, but for Cuban sneers they hold the bitterest resentment.

If the United States should move all its soldiers to-day there would be serious outbreaks between the native victors and the vanquished. Blood would run in the streets. There would be the wildest disorder.

The Cubans on the one hand say they have been oppressed so long and so grievously that they would be justified in dealing out summary vengeance on their conquered foes. The Spaniards, on the other hand, declare that the Cubans would never have won the city had not the Americans interfered, and they would still, were opportunity offered, dictate to them with their old time arrogance.

What the Americans have done, so far as Santiago is concerned, is now forgiven by the Spaniards here. The Americans have conquered Santiago; that is forgiven. The Americans will not return soon again, but to endure the dictates of the Cubans, formerly lespised, now in power, the Spaniards say is quite out of their power.

This situation confronts the United States government with serious questions. How far will the Unitel States government be permitted to interfere when it comes to defining governmental lines between the Cubans and Spaniards? Unless the United States keeps a firm rein on both sides, prominent citizens here now agree the war will have been of no benefit. The old conflict will have to be gone over again, with relative positions of the old foes reversed. The peacemaker is to have a trying time.

After the surrender of Santiago American and Spanish officers clinked glasses in the faces. All resentment for Americans seemed to fade from the Spanish mind. As to the feeling toward the Cubans who were to be placed in the position of the real victors, the Spanish hatred had been increased ten fold. Each day that passes shows how this hatred grows. Had Cuban soldiers not been barred from the city immediately following the surrender, there certainly would have been bloodshed.

While Americans and Spaniards drank together the latter cursed the Cubans. They talked of revenge, of the inability of the natives to rule the island and of coming Cuban impositions. The tables were turned, the Cubans dictators, the Spaniards rebels. In some cases the American soldiers echoed the condemnation of the Cubans.

Cuban valor has fallen in the estimation of many American soldiers since the war began. Such is the situation in Santiago to-day.

Mr. Ramsden, the British consul in Santiago, realizes the magnitude of the responsibility of the United States. Mr. Ramsden is ordinarily conservative in such matters, but he said:

"It will be necessary for the United States to keep a large military force here to keep order. It remains yet to be seen if the Cubans will make a success of their government. A tight grasp will have to be kept on Cubans and Spaniards alike."

Chinamen Coming.

Montreal, July 29.--The Vancouver special on the Canadian Pacific Railway brought into the Windsor station yesterday 140 Chinamen, all out from China and bound for the United States. The Chinamen are going to the following cities: To Boston 59, Baltimore 3, Philadelphia 8, New York 62, Halifax 8. The crowd came by the Empress of India, and are stopping over in this city until they get their papers prepared for admission to the United States.

Big Guns for Coast Defence.

New York, July 29.--The fourteen large rapid fire breech loading rifles which arrived here on the tramp steamer Tasco will soon be distributed at the harbor posts to which they have been assigned. Each of the guns weighs 112,000 pounds. They will be sent to the following points: Fort Hancock, N. J.; Fort Adams, R. I.; Dutch island, R. I.; Sullivan island, S. C.; Tybee island, Ga., and Fort Point, Tex.

Army Contracts Awarded.

Washington, July 29.--Contracts for army supplies were made yesterday by the quartermaster general as follows: Fifty thousand overcoats to Kirschbaum and Company of New York, at $9.39 each; 100,000 yards, a part of a 272,000-yard contract of shelter tent material to John Wanamaker of New York at 11 1-2 cents per yard.

Indian Lands Thrown Open.

Washington, July 29.--The president has just issued a proclamation restoring to the public domain, subject to disposal under the general land laws, the Eastern, Middle and Western Saline reserves, which were excepted from settlement in 1893, when the Cherokee outlet was thrown open.

Rubber King Dead.

Providence, R. I., July 29.--Joseph Banigan, formerly president and one of the organizers of the United States Rubber Company, died at his home in this city early yesterday morning.

Mr. Banigan was a millionaire and was known throughout the country as the "Rubber King."

Shooting at Long Island.

Mineola, L. I., July 29.--Passing through a room in the basement of his house at North Hempstead, L. I., at 12 o'clock yesterday morning, Dr. Edward S. Skinner, coroner of Queens county, was shot down by some person unknown and wounded so badly that he may die.

IN FAIR GUANTANAMO

Much Suffering and Sickness Is Prevailing There.

EIGHT DAYS WITHOUT FOOD

Spaniards Refuse to Accept Rations from Sampson. Many Were so Weak from Starvation That They Were Obliged to Sit When on Guard. Cuban Troops at Caimanera Have Been Faithful.

Santiago de Cuba, July 28.--Lieutenant Colonel Angel Rosell, who, after taking confirmation of the instructions to surrender from General Toral to General Paroja, military governor of Guantanamo, returned here this afternoon, said that the first intimation that Guantanamo had of the surrender of Santiago, and the terms was on July 23, when Rear Admiral Sampson sent a letter to General Paroja, asking what number of rations should be sent to his garrison, as surrender had taken place on the 17th.

General Paroja, being ignorant of the surrender, refused to credit the message or accept rations, answering Rear Admiral Sampson to that effect. Sampson then sent a copy of the terms of surrender, whereupon General Paroja decided to inquire of General Toral at Santiago, whether the news was true; and Lieutenant Colonel Rosell was appointed to come here. He returned with this confirmation, and the surrender of Guantanamo took place yesterday. He says the conditions at Guantanamo are awful, and that the troops are literally starving. For the last eight days they have had no food. On mounting guard the soldiers were obliged to sit, being too weak to stand, and it was impossible to make them build trenches as they fell from exhaustion. There are 2,000 sick in Guantanamo, suffering from diseases being increased by hunger.

The French cruiser Rigault de Golnouilly was refused permission by Rear Admiral Sampson to land grain and provisions for the relief of the French colony at Guantanamo. All hope was abandoned and the sufferers were awaiting death from starvation. The conditions at Guantanamo, Colonel Rosell says, are worse then they were at Santiago.

Lieutenant Colonel Ewers of the Ninth Infantry received the surrender of Guantanamo yesterday. The Spanish troops will remain the town until transported.

Cuban Troops in Caimanera.

Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, July 28.--All the Cuban troops at Camp McCalla were transferred this morning to Caimanera. They will camp there, awaiting orders. They rather expect to go to Santiago.

The parting between the United States marines and their Cuban allies was attended with quite a ceremony. A guard was drawn up and the Cubans shouted "Viva los Americanos!" "Viva Cuba Libre!" and "Viva McCalla!" It is generally conceded that they have been of great service to the marines. The latter remain in their original camp.

The preparations for the fleet continue without incident. The Vixen, with General Howard and a number of army nurses, went to Santiago this morning. General Howard arrived on the Niagara.

The Marblehead picked up thirteen submarine contact mints in the upper Guantanamo bay yesterday. All were covered with barnacles and practically harmless. They had been in the water since April.

Crisis in Colombia.

Colon, Colombia, July 29.--The aspect of the Cerruti matter is now extremely serious. Three Italian warships are in front of Cartagena, one is here and another is lying at Buenaventura.

The Italian minister at Bogota is here on board the steamship Atrato, bound for Europe.

The Italian admiral has received orders to bombard Cartagena.

Great Britain and the United States are interceding, and the admiral, having represented the situation to his government, is now awaiting final instructions.

Sagasta's Story Denied.

Washington, July 29.--The state department denies the report that the Spanish government asked for a cessation of hostilities and that Sagasta broached peace negotiations several days ago.

The first official knowledge that the department had of the effort for peace was conveyed to the president on Tuesday by M. Cambon, the French ambassador in Washington.

Prince Bismarck's Condition.

Hamburg, July 29.--Prince Bismarck has somewhat improved since yesterday evening. His condition might be described as fairly good; but for violent pains in his foot and face he would have passed a good night. As it was, he slept fairly. The prince's diet yesterday included ham, caviare, eggs, beer and champagne. This morning the prince read the newspapers and smoked his pipe in bed.

New York Regiments at Fernandina.

Washington, July 29.--The arrival of the Second and Sixty-ninth New York regiments at the Fernandina camp from Tampa is reported at the war department. These regiments will probably be retained at Fernandina pending the organization of the army for Havana, provided it is necessary to send a force to that part of Cuba in the autumn.

A Clear Harbor Again.

New York, July 29.--The work of removing the mines from the harbor is progressing rapidly and probably will be finished to-night. Already the mines have been removed from the East and Swash channels and from the east part of the Narrows.

Lieut. Hobson in Washington.

Washington, July 29.--Naval Constructor Hobson reached Washington yesterday and is completing his plans for saving the Cristobal Colon.

THE BOURGOGNE VERDIOT.

Ship Cromartyshire Blameless for Collision.

Halifax, July 29.--The decision of the court of inquiry given here yesterday, exonerates Captain Henderson and the officers of the ship Cromartyshire from all blame in the sinking of the La Bourgogne.

The decision was given by Captain Smith, R. N. R., and is in substance as follows:

"The master of the Cromartyshire implicitly obeyed the international regulations for preventing collisions at the time of the accident. The fog horn of the Cromartyshire was sounded, a good lookout was kept and the speed of the sailing ship was moderate, all according to regulations. The master kept the ship on her course and speed, in accordance with the regulations, and she did not deviate from her course until after the collision, her box and bowsprit being entirely carried away by La Bourgogne, thus being rendered unmanageable.

"After he had ascertained his ship to be safe a boat came alongside with eight seamen of La Bourgogne, and afterward two more boats loaded with people. The master then dispatched the second mate with a boat to pick up survivors, for which he deserves much credit.

"The master of the Cromartyshire is, therefore, exonerated from all blame for the collision, and his certificate of competency is returned to him. No blame is attached to the crew."

The report concludes as follows:

"The evidence submitted to the court did not enable it to judge how La Bourgogne finally foundered and how such a melancholy loss of life was entailed, and the court is not called upon to express any opinion regarding the conduct of La Bourgogne's officers.

CAPT. W. H. SMITH,
R. N. R., F. R. G. S."

"Concurred in by Bloomfield Douglas, R. N. R., naval assistant, and Lewis Anderson, master mariner."

SANTIAGO WRECKING EXPEDITION.

To Leave Norfolk To-night. The Maria Teresa Nearly Afloat.

Norfolk, Va., July 29.--Whether or not the Spanish warship Cristobal Colon will be floated depends largely on the expedition which left here last night for Santiago. The Merritt and Chapman Derrick and Wrecking Company is sending out the German steamer Senior under the German flag, with Captain Peter Peterson in command of the ship and Captain Chittenden in charge of the expedition, while Captain Tooker will look after the forty divers and wreckers who go along.

On the Senior are huge pumps, boilers, surf boats and general wrecking material, but interest centers on the two monster pontoons, suggested by Lieutenant Hobson, to be placed under the hull after the Colon is pumped out. They are to be filled with air and have a capacity of supporting several thousand tons each.

Captain Chittenden, who arrived yesterday, left Lieutenant Hobson in Washington. It was arranged that they should meet at Santiago.

SICKNESS IN THE ARMY.

War Department Officials Concerned at Shafter's Report.

Washington, July 29.--General Shafter's report of a total of 3,770 cases of sickness in the army in Cuba, has given the officials of the war department considerable concern, but previous reports that the yellow fever cases were of a mild type, encourage hope that the death rate will be small.

The large number of fever cases reported, 2,924, shows that not only yellow fever, but typhoid and other kinds are numerous. Surgeon General Sternberg said that not only in Cuba, but in the camps in the United States, there had been many kinds of fever cases, and it was the history of all new armies that fevers, especially typhoid, became quite common. This was due to the change of climate and mode of life of new soldiers.

It was his belief that as the men became more seasoned there would be less sickness.

WHAT WOULD SUIT SPAIN.

If She Can Keep the Philippines and Pay No Indemnity She Is Satisfied.

Madrid, July 29.--With the understanding that no indemnity will be demanded, and that Spanish sovereignty in the Philippine islands will be respected, the newspapers here consider the terms of peace attributed to Presidnt McKinley as being acceptable.

The papers, however, protest against the continuance of hostilities by the United States after Spain had sued for peace.

The minister for war, General Correa, is arranging for the reception of the Spanish troops which surrendered at Santiago de Cuba, and is preparing sanitary stations in order to prevent the introduction of diseases into Spain.

Senator Forsker's Views.

Cincinnati, O., July 29.--Senator Foraker said yesterday: "My views on the Philippine islands have already been expressed. I do not think we should give up any territory of which we have taken possession. We should retain the Philippines and Porto Rico and give to Cuba independent government and maintain such relations with the people as will ultimately bring about the annexation of the islands to the United States by the desire of the people themselves. I cannot see how it is possible to turn the Philippine islands back to Spain."

Spanish Battleflag Received.

Washington, July 29.--The second captured battle flag has been received at the war department, with a note from General Shafter, as follows: "Fragment of Spanish flag captured by the 13th United States infantry at San Juan, July 1."

Working for Plainfield.

The good folk of Scotch Plains feel that they have a grievance against the Plainfield Common Council. The cause of it all is the refusal of the Council for the present to allow the trolley to run down Second street. With few exceptions, the Scotch Plains residents are anxious to hear the hum of the trolley and to be quickly transported by its cars to Plainfield. They feel that it is not fair to them to delay the progress of this improvement.

The Plainfield Councilmen are not in office, however, to suit Scotch Plains. It's the welfare of Plainfield that they are concerned about. So it is probable that all the protests from that little village will amount to nothing until the Council decides that Plainfield is satisfied with the arrangements made with the trolley company.

There is a strong sentiment in Plainfield in favor of connecting this city and Scotch Plains by trolley if only a suitable route can be adopted. That can only be a question of time and then the trolley will spread out an arm to the east as well as to the west.

Somerville is Happy.

The staid old town of Somerville is feeling young again now that it has a real live trolley road with real cars on it. Some of the old-time residents gaze with horror on the innovation, but most of the good people of the Somerset county seat find a great source of satisfaction in the trolley. So great is the interest in the trolley that the Somerset Messenger has devoted a portion of one of its columns to "Trolley Notes."

Two of the items included under that head are accidents wherein some respectable horse from the adjoining farming districts has risen to protest against the advent of the new-fangled arrangement that goes by itself. In one case the driver's face was "somewhat bruised and scratched." It will take some time before the county seat settles down after the excitement attendant on the first appearance of the trolley on Main street.

A Trolley Suggestion.

It has been suggested, and the idea seems a feasible one, that the solution of the problem of how to connect the Scotch Plains trolley route with the present system in this city is to connect with the Fifth street line instead of attempting to run through to the centre of the city. The proposed line out East Second street could turn into either Berckman or Richmond streets, pass under the railroad and connect with the present tracks on Fifth street. Such a plan could do away with all the trouble with the property owners on East Front and Second streets, between Richmond street and Watchung avenue.

The Hand of Fate.

There are certain progressive, or rather cumulative, tendencies in history, for which we can find no other name than fatality. The movement may be delayed or for a time even reversed. We do not always recognize the inevitable certainty toward a goal, as contemporary critics. It is only in the retrospect where all the relations of facts in the past as well as the present become clearly outlined that this melancholy stamp shows its deep brand as if burned in with fire. The downfall of nations always offers material for reflection of this kind. Individuals pay the penalty according to measure of long continued blunders and vices. With peoples and governments even more than with individuals

> The mills of the gods grind slowly,
> But they grind exceedingly fine, and conclusions are ultimately reached, pitiless as the climax of a Greek tragedy, where the idea of doom or fate scarcely wears a mask. The decadence of Spain impresses us in this fashion with such vividness that detestation of the deeds and characteristics which have accelerated the ruin lacks bitterness to lessen pity for its completeness.

Only three centuries ago Spain was practically the dictator of Europe, the most powerful people in the world, into whose lap the gold and silver of a new world poured in a ceaseless stream and against whom other nations found it necessary to combine for safety as against a public enemy. The elements which caused Spanish decay began to do their fatal work even when the power which was welded under the great Charles V was at its height. Religious bigotry, which crushed all thought and made education a farce; political intolerance, which disdained the rights of other nations as a matter of principle and even made oppression a virtue; commercial blindness, which saw profit alone in an iron restriction of trade; haughtiness of caste, which looked on the masses as merely serviceable tools; pride so petrified as to revolt against any instruction from the contemporary progress of other peoples—all these evil factors have been dominant in Spanish life for three centuries and still show their enfeebled but convulsive energies. Spain has learned nothing, forgotten nothing. The whole world has been moving on. She has limped backward. She has lost successively her great colonial possessions and become the mere shell of a nation. Fate has chosen the newest of the great powers to deal the final coup, the stroke of the matador. Unwillingly as the United States became the instrument of destiny it may be a compensating thought that it is in the pulverization of Spanish power and its present conditions that a new life may find its birth, as French life found its renewal from the debris of the revolution of 1789. Decay and death precede regeneration in political as in natural life.

It is unfortunate that an attempt has been made to create a difference between Admiral Sampson and Commodore Schley over the destruction of the Spanish fleet. These gallant officers, each in his way, did the work which fate assigned to him. No one can question that Sampson, had not the duty of inspection called him away on the morning which Admiral Cervera selected for his disastrous sally, would have commanded the American fleet with the same results. It simply happened that immediate executive command at that culminating moment devolved on his subordinate. But it has been made clear that the disposition and arrangement of the ships and all provisions for alert sentry duty and for the work of just such an emergency had already been settled by the absent admiral. Commodore Schley did all that was required with an energy, dash and good judgment which could not have been surpassed. But it must be remembered that everything done was effected on the lines fixed by the admiral's prevision. Schley merely won the more showy glory by the accident of temporary command. It is not such a case as that of Lord Nelson, who actually planned the attack, arranged for all the exigencies as well as led the actual fighting at the battle of the Baltic, though Sir Hyde Parker flew the broad pennant of command. In the American example fully as much honor is due Sampson as Schley and an attempt to elevate the one at the expense of the other seems almost malicious.

AFTER THE BATTLE.

These pictures, taken within an hour after the surrender of Admiral Cervera, show to some extent the terrible effect of the masterful gunnery of our squadron under command of Commodore Schley. Both the Almirante Oquendo and the Vizcaya were burning at the time the pictures were taken and some slight changes in their positions have taken place since.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

The Plainfield Daily Press of Friday claims that the road between here and Pluckamin is infested with ghosts. Wm. Maxwell, Wm. Nolan and two young ladies from Plainfield were the last persons who encountered the spectre, and it is said they were scared out of a year's growth.—Somerset Messenger.

We have never been able to understand why the report on the cost of the boulevard, prepared by Engineers Bauer and Hubbard and Real Estate Appraisers Quien, Wilcox and Runyon, is not a public document, accessible to any person interested in securing information from it. The report was made in pursuance of a resolution passed by the Board of Freeholders in a public meeting. The engineers' and appraisers' work has been or will be paid for by the county.

And yet J. Martin Roll, chairman of the county road committee of the Board of Chosen Freeholders, said, when asked for an opportunity to copy some of the figures from the report, that the report was made for the information of the committee alone. Mr. Roll's committee in its published report, pronounced the estimates in this bottled-up document excessive and shaved down the total from $351,000 to $300,000, which latter figure "in any event would cover the cost of the improvement."

We cannot see what possible harm could result from allowing the public to avail itself of the detailed information in the engineers' and appraisers' report. If such publicity did no direct good, it would be of benefit by convincing the people that the Freeholders were act'ng with candor and good faith, and with the sole object of promoting the welfare of the county whose affairs they administer.—Cranford Chronicle.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Dunellen, July, 29.—Rev. A. I. Martine, pastor of the Presbyterian church, will take the month of August for his vacation. During that month there will only be service on Sunday morning. There will be no evening services.

Progress is being made by the trolley people in macadamizing North avenue in the borough. It must be conceded that the Brunswick Traction Company is hustling their work along speedily.

Charles Apgar, of Westfield, returned Wednesday from a three months' trip in Europe, and is now visiting his mother, Mrs. Emily Apgar, of Front steeet.

The reason why the trolley people erected wooden poles instead of iron ones is that there will not be so much danger in using the poles to tie horses.

Mayor Brakeley is confined to his home by illness, and he may not be able to preside at the meeting of the Council Monday evening.

Mrs. A. N. Randolph, of Washington avenue, spent Wednesday with her uncle, Manning Randolph, of Piscataway township.

Mrs. John Wherly and children, of Somerville, are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Swackhamer, of Church street.

Miss Ethel Gray, of Newark, is being entertained by her aunt, Mrs. Alvah Gray, of Washington avenue.

There will be a baseball game in town tomorrow when the local team will meet an out-of-town team.

Mrs. Johnson, of South avenue, seems to be rapidly failing and hopes of her recovery are given up.

The Dunellen Brick Works are now running full time and many men are employed at that place.

Miss Lillian Van Middlesworth, of Front street, is visiting relatives at Newark and Bayonne.

Mr. James Bowyer, of Church street, has returned from a visit with New York relatives.

Miss Nellie Brown, who has been visiting Plainfield relatives, has returned to her home.

Mrs. George Van Nest, of Front street, has been the guest of relatives in Plainfield.

Ormond VanNest, of Front street, has entirely recovered from a recent illness.

Mrs. J. D. Anderson has been visiting friends in Plainfield for a short time.

Benjamin Carpenter has been visiting Plainfield friends for a short time.

NEW MARKET.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

New Market, July 29.—Two new cases of diphtheria have been reported in town during the past two weeks. The cases are not serious and no epidemic is feared.

Residents in this vicinity are beginning to think seriously about trolley connection. The majority of the population has no desire to be sidetracked longer, and they would like to see some sign of a trolley through the town. They say that if Dunellen has a trolley they see no reason why they cannot have one. Just how they will get out of their trouble remains yet to be seen.

In about two weeks the Piscataway Township School Board will meet to accept the new work about completed on the schoolhouse. The improvement is a marked one and will greatly add to the convenience and comfort of both teachers and scholars

The Tingley family reunion will be held on the Blackford farm in Piscataway township the middle of August. The usual good time is promised by the manager, John Tingley.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Scotch Plains, July 29.—Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., meets in their rooms this evening.

The Plainfield Water Company is extending its water main on Park avenue in the borough, to the dividing line between the village and borough. It is hoped the day is not far distant when Scotch Plains will be able to have it extended to the village.

Mrs. Ritchie's auction sale of household furniture, which was to have been held yesterday afternoon, was postponed until Monday afternoon on account of the weather.

Miss Bessie Dinsmore and Miss Helen Griswold, classmates at Swarthmore of Miss Edna Nicholl, have returned to their homes after a pleasant visit with Miss Edna.

E. L. Hand, Clarence Lambert and John Thys spent Thursday crabbing at Elizabethport. The three caught over one hundred.

George McCauley enjoyed a furlough Friday and visited his parents. George seems to like the life at Fort Slocum.

John R. Haskard, of Plainfield, visited friends in town Thursday evening.

Miss Addie Savage, of Brooklyn, is spending a week with friends in town.

WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Westfield, July 29—The Westfield baseball team will play the Riverdale team, of New York, on the Broad street grounds Saturday afternoon.

Some of the members of the Elizabeth Baseball Club are talking of a league to consist of the teams from Westfield, Plainfield, Rahway, Cranford and Elizabeth, but it is unlikely that the Westfield boys will ever play the team from that city again after the way they were treated down there several weeks ago, when the Elizabeth manager refused to pay the visitors' expenses because they would not put up with the disgraceful decisions of the Elizabeth umpire.

A lawn party will be held this evening on the lawn at the home of Mrs. H. Huffman, on Union place, for the benefit of the Presbyterian church. There will also be a lawn festival at the home of Lawrence Bastable, on Broad street, for the benefit of St. John's church.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education will be held Tuesday evening in the Prospect School building.

The New York Baptist church will hold an excursion to Boynton Beach, Friday, August 5th.

The Township Committee will hold a meeting this evening.

SHOWERED WITH RICE.

Friends Played a Joke on Young People Bound for New York.

As one of the Jersey Central trains drew into the North Avenue station late yesterday afternoon, the passengers were treated to what they supposed was the departure of a newly-married couple. Miss Mabelle Smith, of Westervelt avenue, and Louis Chase, of East Front street, were going to New York to join Miss Smith's brother and several other young people who were going to make up a party to go to Manhattan Beach.

A number of the friends of Miss Smith and Mr. Chase, knowing of their departure, determined to play a joke. Providing themselves with a large supply of rice they appeared at the station in time for the train and nearly drowned the couple with the shower of rice. The young men of the party cheered the departing couple right joyfully, and everybody in the train craned their necks to see the fun.

Mary Lynn, Maggie Belle Jackson and Adeline Cuff all pleaded not guilty.

John Johnson said that he was on his way home and had only been at the party about twenty minutes when he was arrested. He said that he never drank anything stronger than tea and coffee. He and Andrew Oby pleaded not guilty.

It is said that there were some white people present, but fortunately for them, they succeeded in escaping. Warrants are now out for their arrest. Marshals Wise, Campbell, Schenck, Winn and Beglin made the arrests and they all gave the testimony this morning as to the bad character and name of the house raided.

After Recorder Long had heard all of the evidence he adjourned court for a half hour to give his decision. At the conclusion of that time he decided to send the seven prisoners to Somerville for 90 days. They were taken to their resting place this morning by the marshals. In the raiding of this place the marshals have no doubt brought to an end much disturbance that has from time to time given the neighbors no end of trouble.

ADMIRAL ITO AT THE YALU.

How the Famous Japanese Sailor Outgeneraled All of His Opponents.

"Don't believe the sneers you may see at the Chinese sailors. They are plucky, well-trained, full of zeal and will fight better against the Japs, their life-long enemies, than anyone. All our swords and cutlasses are ground to a razor-edge. The Japs outnumber us in ships, and have better ships, save one or two, and a great many more, but we don't growl at that. We'll make up for it by firing faster and better."

On the afternoon of September 16, 1894, the fleet of Chinese war-ships sent to protect the transports loaded with troops for Corea, arrived at the mouth of the Yalu river. The transports were at once ordered inside and the disembarking of the troops began. About 10 o'clock the next morning, September 17, the lookouts on board the Chinese men-of-war sighted a fleet to the seaward. Was it the enemy? The fleet approached rapidly; and soon the cry, "The Japanese are coming!" was heard. Then all was excitement.

The Chinese fleet consisted of five armored vessels, seven unarmored twenty-eight 6-inch and sixty 4.7-inch quick fire guns, while the Chinese ships, two gun boats and two torpedo boats. In the rapidly approaching Japanese squadron were twelve ships, two armored and ten unarmored, with Admiral Ito in command. The heaviest ordance carried was of 12-inch caliber; and of these the Chinese had eight guns and the Japanese four. But China's superiority in heavy guns was more than made up by the greater number of rapid-fire guns possessed by the Japanese. The Japanese had ships were armed with only fourteen 6-inch and fifteen 4.7-inch guns. It will be seen that the two fleets, were sufficiently evenly matched for a fair fight, with the chances rather in favor of the Chinese, providing each fleet exhibited equal skill and bravery.

On came the Japanese in two divisions, forming into a line ahead as they drew near the enemy. The Chinese met them with their ships arranged in the form of a rather blunt wedge, the iron clads being at and near the apex. Soon the vessels were within range and the great guns hurled a tornado of shot and shell through the air. The Japanese passed rapidly across the Chinese's front, then turning sharply to the right, brought a heavy fire to bear on the wing ships on that side of the line. Both were disabled and one was set on fire. Again the Japanese turned and, steaming across the stern of their opponents, cut off the two war-ships at the end of the opposite wing. This skillful maneuver reduced the Chinese fleet by four vessels.

Admiral Ting now endeavored to come to closer quarters; but the enemy's ships were superior in speed, and Admiral Ito too wary to suffer this. He kept the Chinese at a distance, and plied them with his rapid-fire guns with great effect. By this time the two fleets had formed into two circles, with the Japanese holding the outer ring. This formation was not sufficiently effective; and Admiral Ito hauled off, reorganized his squadron and again advanced in two divisions, his most powerful and swiftest ships holding the first line. A Chinese boat left the line and attempted to ram one of the advancing cruisers; but was sunk by a heavy fire. Two other heroic ships made the same attempt; one was sunk and the other set on fire and forced to go out of action.

The Japanese had not lost a ship. One had been disabled by a shell and another had been set on fire; but not one had been destroyed or sunk. Evidently Japan was getting the better of China. The "Sleeping Giant" was getting a good drubbing.

The remainder of the fight was virtually between the two Chinese battleships, Ting Yuen and Chen Yuen, and the first line of the Japanese divisions. Staff-Commander McGiffen, quoted at the head of this article, served on board the Chen Yuen. An extract from one of his letters gives a vivid picture of the battle which now followed. He writes: "We were battered with a tornado of projectiles of all sorts. Our superstructure was riddled, but the sand bags which had been piled inside proved of great service, and stopped any amount of splinters and fragments. Fire was constantly breaking out—eight times during the day. . . . . Even through the ward-room a Hotchkiss shell or other projectile occasionally tore its way, smashing the furniture and filling the room with acrid fumes." For more than two hours did these two battleships heroically sustain the brunt of the conflict. The bravery and endurance of their officers and men was the one redeeming feature of the Chinese in the battle; and this was owing largely to the presence and the discipline of the foreign officers.

For some time the two fleets had been gradually getting further and further apart; and, at about 5 o'clock, both ceased firing. Then darkness came on; and the first battle between modern war-ships had ended.

Five of the ships of China had been destroyed and others were badly damaged; 600 men had been killed and 200 wounded. The Japanese had two vessels disabled and several damaged; and 94 men killed and 160 wounded.

This battle taught naval men two things: the value of rapid-fire guns; and the need of having every part of the vessel as nearly fire-proof as possible. It showed the terrible destructive power of large shells—the bursting of a single shell had disabled the Japanese flag-ship; the protective value of heavy armor; and, incidentally, it gave the "Sleeping Giant" such a dreadful pounding that he nearly awoke to find himself living in the last years of the nineteenth century.

THE SUNDAY LESSON.

INTERNANIONAL SERIES, WITH COMMENTARY BY DR. STEARNS.

Golden Text:—Thou shalt not covet thy neigbor's house. Exodus xx: 17. July 31, 1898.

4. "And Ahab came into his house heavy and displeased because of the word which Naboth the Jezreelite had spoken unto him, for he had said I will not give thee the inheritance of thy fathers." Therefore, like a sulky child, he went to bed, turned his face to the wall and would not eat. It was a law in Israel that the prince should not take of the people's inheritance by oppression (Ezek. xlvi, 18) but Ahab seemed to know no law but his own will. He offered to buy the field from Naboth, but the inheritance of his fathers was more to Naboth than money. The Holy Spirit, by whom we are sealed, is the earnest of our inheritance (Eph. i, 13, 14). Are we desirous that He shall not be grieved by any misconduct of ours?

5, 6. "But Jezebel, his wife, came to him and said unto him, Why is thy spirit so sad that thou eatest no bread?" And he told her the cause. Contrast the sadness of heart of Neh. ii, 2, and of Dan. x, 2, 3, with this selfishness of Ahab. He should have been, like Nehemiah and Daniel, full of desire for the welfare of the kingdom and for the glory of God, but no such thoughts filled his mind. On the contrary he was full of desire to add a little bit of property to that which he already possessed. He had not yet learned that a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth (Luke xii, 15).

7. "And Jezebel, his wife, said unto him, Dost thou now govern the kingdom of Israel? Arise and eat bread and let thy heart be merry. I will give thee the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite." The devil quickly suggests to his well trained servant his favorite method of removing those who are in his way, and she as quickly sees the whole thing as good as done and tells her husband that she will give him the desired field. There was none like Ahab who did sell himself to work wickedness in the sight of the Lord, whom Jezebel, his wife, stirred up (verse 25). They coveted fields and took them by violence; they defrauded a man and his heritage (Mic. ii, 2).

8. "So she wrote letters in Ahab's name and sealed them with his seal, and sent the letters unto the elders and to the nobles that were in his city dwelling with Naboth." Which was worse, these or the death dealing letters of David the king in II Sam. xi, 14, 15? God is the judge. How much better the life giving letters of Esther and Mordecai in Esther vii, 7, 8! The son of man came to save, not to destroy, men's lives. The devil is the devourer and the destroyer.

9. 10. "And she wrote in the letters, saying, Proclaim a fast and set Naboth on high among the people, and set two men, sons of Belial, before him to bear witness against him, saying, Thou didst blaspheme God and the king, and then carry him out and stone him that he may die." This is the devil's favorite pastime. He began it on Abel and has been at it ever since. He worked it vigorously with the little children in Israel about the time that Moses was born and with the children in Bethlehem when Christ was born. Through an unscrupulous woman he had John the Baptist beheaded and tried to kill Joseph in Egypt. When the time came he was allowed to kill our Lord himself. But in reference to this worst the devil can do to us we are told not to fear it. "Fear not them which kill the body" and "Fear none of those things which thou shalt suffer" (Math. x, 28; Rev. ii, 10).

11, 12. "And the men of his city, even the elders and the nobles who were the inhabitants in his city, did as Jezebel had sent unto them, and as it was written in the letters which she had sent unto them." Perhaps they were indebted to her or to the king for the possessions they occupied. However that may or may not have been, they evidently feared to disobey her orders.

13. "And there came in two men, children of Belial, and sat before him, and the men of Belial witnessed against him, even against Naboth in the presence of the people, saying, Naboth did blaspheme God and the king. Then they carried him forth out of the city and stoned him with stones that he died." No justice on earth for such as Naboth who dared to stand against the will of the king; no justice for Stephen or Paul; none for the Lord Jesus himself when He stood in our place to deliver us from the hand of the enemy.

14. "Then they sent to Jezebel, saying, Naboth is stoned and is dead." It would seem from II Kings ix, 26, that his sons were stoned also. It is not according to Gen. iv, 10, that dead men tell no tales, for the voice of Abel's blood cried to God and the voice of every wrong thing on the earth is still crying to God and He will yet see to it (Hab. ii, 11; James v, 4). Although God seems to keep silence and let men do as they please, yet He sees and notes everything and it is written "Our God shall come and shall not keep silence, a fire shall devour before Him, and it shall be very tempestuous around about Him" (Ps. 1, 3). As to the dead who die in the Lord it is always blessed for them (Rev. xiv, 13), for they rest from their labors, and their works follow.

15. "Jezebel said to Ahab Arise, take possession of the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite, which he refused to give thee for money, for Naboth is not alive but dead." The God of Naboth still lived, but of Him she took no account. Her heart said unto God, depart from me. What can the Almighty do to me? (Job xxii, 17). The devil offers many present possessions and enjoyments, pleasures of sin for a season, but the season is so short and the eternal consequences so fearful that were it not for the awful blindness he puts upon people there would not be so many to accept his costly pleasures. Contrast II Cor. iv, 4, with Heb. xi, 25, 26).

16. "And it came to pass when Ahab heard that Naboth was dead that Ahab rose up to go down to the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite to take possession of it." But now the Lord speaks. His servant is again commissioned to meet Ahab. Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap, and Ahab is told that where dogs licked Naboth's blood they shall also lick his and shall actually eat up Jezebel, and so it came to pass just as the Lord said it would (chapter xxii, 38; II Kings, ix, 35, 36).

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Lesson For the Week Beginning July 31. Comment by Rev. W. J. Yates, A. M. Topic, The Temple of the Body.

SCRIPTURE READING.—I Cor. iii, 16-23. "Know ye not that your body is a temple of the Holy Spirit which is in you, which ye have from God?"

No land and no tribe of men is without worship of some God. Sanctuaries are of many kinds, and ceremonies of worship of greatest variety. All agree in ascribing power to the deity worshiped and in exacting reverence and obedience from the worshiper. Places, things and times are called holy if set apart for the service of worship. Such places, times and things must not be desecrated or made less sacred by common use. These sentiments are as universal as mankind. There is less agreement as to what things and places and times shall be called consecrated or to what deity they shall be consecrated.

The highest and truest attainment yet reached in this search for and worship of God is found in the New Testament conception of a Spirit of infinite and eternal holiness, justice and love. This One has made all worlds and governs all. His highest revelation is made in and through and to mankind. He has united human nature to his own nature in Jesus Christ. The body of man is an instrument in which the spirit of man dwells and by the use of which the man may come into companionship and likeness to God. The value of the bodily powers lies in just this use of them for the spirit's growth and advancement. Impairment of their efficiency subtracts from the chances of the spirit for its highest attainment. Body and spirit act and react on each other. Drunkenness and gluttony not only waste the time and power that should be devoted to the good of the spirit, but they debase the spirit itself until it prefers the vicious and sensual to the pure and heavenly.

Indulgence of passion harms the bodily functions and all defilement of spirit defiles and tends to destroy the body.

Permanent pleasure is inseparably linked to purity of soul and body. Every vice is inevitably connected with disease and death.

Filthiness of spirit leads to disease of body and vicious indulgence of the senses makes the spiritual powers polluted.

The end of all is the ban of God on both body and spirit.

Here is the clew to all self denial and all self culture—whatever tends to make one less sensitive to the true, the pure, the beautiful and good should be avoided; whatever assists in elevating, refining and ennobling should be cultivated.

Our eyes are to see, our ears to hear and all senses to aid in finding the spirit of God and enshrining Him in the body as in a holy temple.

Bishop C. W. Fowler.

Born in 1837 he entered the ministry in 1861, joining the Rock River conference. He soon became widely known throughout the church as a thinker and writer of vigorous English, a man of much executive ability and destined to rise. He became president of Northwestern university at Evanston, Ills., and editor of The Christian Advocate, New York, and missionary secretary. In 1884 he was elected bishop. During this present month he has carried fraternal greetings from the Methodist Episcopal church to the British Wesleyan and Irish Methodist conferences by appointment of the last general conference.

BISHOP C. W. FOWLER.

His lectures on Moses and Abraham Lincoln are probably not excelled, if equaled, by those of any other man at the present time in public life.

Open Eyes and Ears.

The world is full of sights and sounds which to the proper eyes and ears become pictures and music. To the dull and inattentive senses they are only things and noises. Every place and time has treasures to reveal to one who seeks. Are your eyes open. Are your ears attent? The more one knows of many things the more of pleasure, the wider world and more beautiful he enjoys. A Vermont shoemaker found the cobbler's bench allowed him still to be interested in flowers. He became the best botanist in the state. The fame of such knowledge was of little value to him, but the knowledge and enjoyment of the flowers was of great value. The world around us is of value only as it awakens us and develops our powers. The world gives noise, we hear, and in us it becomes music. The melody is in us. This summer time should be used to enlarge and beautify our personal world. See the beautiful, hear the harmonious. Live higher and better.

To say my prayers is not to pray
Unless I mean the words I say,
Unless I think to whom I speak
And with my heart God's favor seek.

Then let me, when I try to pray,
Not only mind the words I say,
But let me strive with watchful care
To have my heart go with my prayer.

Note first name "AMOS" and No. "73" before entering store. Get off corner Fronts
This 25th "July Sale"
Means Something
to every maker of a home. It's a seldom offered chance to get two things—often three—for the cost of one. Three great buildings full of furniture and carpets marked at unmatchably little figures—our way of "cleaning house" in July.
Cottage Sets and Chairs.
Stupendous Clean-up—as great a stock as we've got, it's all to go—Summer furniture never was so easy for you to get:
All the 5-piece Cottage Sets left—$8.75—were $15.
$4.50 Settees for $3.
$1 Chairs at 59c.
$2.25 ones for $1.98.
$2.25 Rockers, $1.25.
Mattings 10c yd.
—But Carpets are "dropped" too—and such a drop! 'Most pay you to lay in whole rolls of 'em.
At 39c—Ex. Heavy Ingrains, 60c kind. At 65c—All-Wool Ingrains.
At 75c—90c Tapestry Brussels. At 90c—Body Brussels.
At 75c—Velvets, were 90c. At 90c—Moquettes.
Bedroom Suits
Every one of them built on honor—handsome, long wearing, fine trimmings, different woods—eight of them:
$15 Solid Oak Suits—$10.
$45 Birch Suits—$30.
Two $55 Birch Suits—$40 each.
$75 Suit for $60.
$25 Solid Oak Suits—$14.98.
$65 Oak Suits—$43.98.
A $45 Suit—$35.
About twenty others at exactly HALF old cost.
Couches--$4 up —half a hundred kinds—now at far less cost than usual—
$6 ones for $4. $9 Velour ones, $5.95. $12 Corduroy ones, $9. Deep Tufted Corduroy, varied colors, $12.
"Monarch" Vapor Stoves--$4.98.
Still another price change in famed "Monarchs"—the greatest, safest, simplest vapor-stove man ever planned—if you're skeptical, let's show how and why we're right. Operated free—so is that "Wickless Blue Flame Oil Stove" exhibited to visitors—sales always follow—'tis so good a thing.
Sale of "Insurance" Gasolene Stoves—2-burner, $5.35 2-burner, high, $6.40; 3-burner, low, $6.40—lots of other sizes.
Refrigerators
—lots of 'em—4.98 for hardwood kind—pan, pick and tongs free.
75c. A WEEK WILL DO IF CASH IS SHORT.

Shoes for Spring.

You'll be buying a new pair of shoes soon. Where are you going to buy them?

The shoe store you want to patronize is the store that gives you the most style, comfort, elegance and durability for the money.

If you'll "shop around" before you buy you'll find that this is the store you're looking for.

LET US ARM YOU!

It's quite necessary, because while Uncle Sam is settling scores with the Spaniards, you're bound to have a little brush at home at the same time, and there's nothing like being ready for emergencies. Until you can sign a perpetual truce with sun, wind and storm, your house and other buildings will need to be fortified with paint, and ours are like a 20-inch chilled steel armor.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Frucht offers some bargains in bicycle sundries. See ad.

The Frank L. C. Martin Cycle Co. have received a large shipment of foot pumps which they are selling off very cheap.

Sanford G. Robinson, of West Second street, is riding the Tribune wheel for the Black manufacturing Co., of Erie Penn., this year.

The fact that a great many people—even of a class so intelligent as makes up the membership of the League of American Wheelmen—neglect to read their daily newspapers carefully is made apparent by a letter received by Herbert W. Knight, of Newark, the counsel of the New Jersey Division, complaining that collectors on some of the pikes covered by the recent toll road decision in a Gloucester county case kept right on exacting toll from wheelmen who will pay it. If the cycler, on the other hand, has read the papers, and know that the court has denied the right of the toll road companies to collect toll from wheelmen under their charters, the moss-backed "pike keeper" calmly refuses to open the gates, and the rider has to descend from his steed and his dignity and crawl ignominiously under the bar, trailing his mount after him. Now most, if not all, of the charters of the "pikes" affected by the recent decision contain a provision that any toll gatherer who shall unnecessarily hinder or delay a traveler, or collect more toll than the charter authorizes, shall be liable to a suit for $20 and costs at the hands of the individual so delayed or hindered the money to go to the latter. It is well that wheelmen, as well as gate keepers, throughout New Jersey should bear these facts in mind.

BASKET BALL

The members of the Elizabeth A. C. who have the interests of the basket ball team directly at heart are making preparations for an active season this winter. All of the old favorites will be seen on the team, and it is likely that a second team will be organized. This is made possible because the game has become a favorite with the clubmen, and many of them are practicing for the game. With a first and second team in the gym the club ought to be able to defeat almost any team that plays.—Elizabeth Journal.

AMONG THE STEPPERS.

Harry McDonald, of East Front street, has brought his fast horse from the farm at New Market, where he has been at pasture, and expects to do some fast trotting with him this fall.

THEATRICAL.

Current Dramatic Attractions That Plain fielders Can Witness.

With the promise of "Oliver Twist" as presented by Edward P. Sullivan and Miss Emily Lecelles, in addition to the other attractions, there was a good attendance at the performance by Sullivan's Troubadors in Music Hall last evening. "Oliver Twist," as presented last evening, was reduced to one act and omitted all parts except those relating to Bill Sykes and Nancy Sykes. It gave opportunity, however, for some excellent acting. Mr. Sullivan has shone in the characters that he has already taken this week, but as Bill Sykes, the great coarse London crook, he displayed rare talent. As Nancy Sykes, Miss Lecelles made a wonderful hit. The sketch was one that offered great chances for dramatic action. The brutal treatment of Nancy, her pleadings were all so vivid that the audience shuddered with horror. Then in the closing scene where Bill, believing that the poor girl had betrayed him to the police, chokes and beats her and then murders her, was thrillingly realistic. It was not any common blood and thunder tragedy but really creditable work. Mr. Allen, as Fagan, the Jew, furnished sufficient amusement to relieve the heavy tragedy of the other parts of the sketch. Tomorrow night, "Oliver Twist" will be repeated.

Once again Col. J. H. Haverly has "hung his banners on the outer wall," announcing the forthcoming appearance here of his great Minstrel Company. The company is a large and very expensive one, consisting of the highest salaried and best obtainable artists, who will unite their efforts in presenting an exposition of minstrely that will be an innovation. The American-Europeans have always been the lofty ideal in minstrelsy, and nothing has been left undone or overlooked to have it remain in that proud position. In attending a performance of the "Haverly's" the general public are never in doubt as to whether it will be a good or mediocre entertainment; for they know full well that it is an organization of reliability, whose every promise is kept to the letter, and they are satisfied the performance will be first-class. The company will be at Music Hall next Thursday night.

Miss Catherine Webster, of East Second street, leaves for California on Monday next, to visit her uncle, who is very ill. It will be Miss Wester's seventh trip across the continent, unacompanied.

NOVEL SPEED TRIALS.

LOCAL HORSES WILL SEE WHO CAN TROT NEAREST THREE MINUTES.

It Will Not Be a Race for Lowest Time, But to Display the Best Judgment—Matinee Races Begin Tomorrow.

The regular Saturday afternoon matinees at the Driving Park will be resumed tomorrow afternoon, when several interesting races may be looked for. Plainfield horses that competed in the races given by the Central New Jersey Driving Association, the first of which was held in Plainfield, showed up remarkably well. Nearly every one of them won a share of the purses at one or more of the four meetings, the total amount won being in excess of that given by any single meeting, and where they failed to capture the money, forced the winners to take fast records and be no longer eligible to the classes in which they started in the circuit.

Arpansa, Highland Boy, Myrtle Twig, Woven Wind, Linola, Sunday, Belle, Bolette, Belle Hayes, Roxie French, Ned Norton and other local horses won a share of the purses and came home in the pink of racing condition. They are now ready to try conclusions with each other over our home track.

Some new ideas and novel trials of speed will soon be inaugurated; the first will likely be Saturday, Aug. 6th, when a silver cup and other appropriate prizes will be given the one who can drive two trial miles nearest six minutes, or an average of three minutes for each mile. This is not fast time, but will demonstrate each driver's judgment of pace without the aid of watch or coaching, and afford no end of amusement to the onlookers. It is not an easy task to drive a horse possessing 2:20, 2:25 or 2:30 speed in exactly three minutes. All amateur club members are eligible to drive in these contests. The field promises to be a large one, as several new trotters and pacers have recently been added to our local brigade and are likely to make their first public appearance in the three-minute trials.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

The Philadelphia Record tells of an exciting bull fight that took place Tuesday in the vicinity of Flemington. The story as told by the Record is as follows:

Jessie and Ella Case, two young daughters of Farmer Joseph Case, near Everittstown, were bringing in the cattle from pasture last evening, when a bull turned on them viciously. Jessie was knocked down by the beast as she attempted to flee. Her sister ran to the barn, got a pitchfork and returned to pluckily fight the brute. The bull turned to his foe and, with a menacing bellow, charged upon Ella. This diversion doubtless saved the life of Jessie, who had been unable to escape, and was in imminent danger of being gored to death.

All this while the girls were calling for help, and finally their father reached them. He was just in time to save the lives of his children, for the plucky Ella, unmindful of her own danger, had valiantly fought the bull until there was no means of escape. Farmer Case drove the bull off with a heavy club.

* * * * *

It is very amusing, sometimes, the happenings that take place along the lines of the suburban trolley. The cars usually run every hour or half hour, so to miss one means considerable inconvience to the would-be passenger. The conductors and motormen of these cars realize the fact and often wait several minutes for someone who is hurrying after the car. If the car goes by the spot where the passenger is waiting, the motorman frequently reverses the car and returns for the waiting one.

The other day an elderly woman boarded the car and seated herself. The car started when she suddenly called aloud to stop. She had forgotten something. So the car was run back to her home a short distance away and waited while she hurried in and found the package she had left behind. After she had climbed aboard the car started on its way again.

PLAINFIELD STILL LEADS.

Seven Y. M. C. A. Wheelmen Attend League Run to Newark.

Seven Y. M. C. A. wheelmen braved the threatened rain last night, and rode through the mud to Newark. Although there were only seven wheelmen there from this city, Plainfield still is far in the lead for the banner.

At the Newark association an interesting entertainment was provided which included recitations and readings by Jerry M. Cobb, and selections by an orchestra.

When Plainfield was mentioned at the roll call, there was much applause, as it was the only club that had come from any distance on wheels. Montclair made the best showing with fourteen members out, but they came by trolley. Captain Thomas A. Cuming led the Plainfield squad.

A New Market Wedding.

Invitations have been issued for the marriage of J. W. Crofoot, principal of the Grammar School at Alfred, N. Y., and Miss Hannah L. Larkin, of Dunellen, Tuesday, at the New Market Seventh-Day Baptist church at high noon. Miss Larkin graduated from Alfred University last June.

DOMESTIC LIFE PICTURED

NOVEL ENTERTAINMENT AT MT. ZION A. M. E. CHURCH LAST NIGHT.

There Were Two Scenes Showing the Members of the Household—Busy at Their Various Tasks—The Participants.

An entertainment in which domestic life and household duties were depicted, was given by the Helping Hand society of the Mt. Zion A. M. E. church, on West Fourth street, last night. The entertainment was something of a novelty.

The first part opened with a chorus, "Jonah in the Sea," sung by the members of the household. The curtain rose and showed a kitchen in which men and women were busily engaged. Mrs. Abbie Peters was mixing up a savory mess to be placed in the oven; Mrs. Rebecca Voorhees was washing clothes; Mrs. Anna White was ironing, and Samuel Till was bending over the stove cooking the dinner.

After a vocal solo by Alfred White, the curtain was raised on the second scene. This represented the household, the members being busy with their daily tasks. William Grobes was dressed as a farmer, while Mrs. Grobes, his wife, was a nurse. Miss Ida Henry was just setting forth for a spin on her wheel, and Mrs. Laura Wilson stayed at home to wash the dishes. Mrs. Edward Maynard was a hair dresser. Mrs. Mary Lane and Mrs. Cecelia Peterson sat making clothes for the soldiers at the front, with Mrs. Matilda Dunham knitting socks to send to the miners in Alaska.

Sylvester Lane was a carpenter and beside him stood Joseph Dunham, cutting wood.

"Roll, Jordan, Roll," by the members of the company, concluded the entertainment. The refreshments were served under the direction of a committee consisting of Mrs. Josephine Till, Mrs. Gussie Jones and Mrs. Laura Wilson. Samuel Till served the cream. Miss Bertha Biglow was cashier. Grant C. Cannon, the "only survivor of the Maine," as he was called, had a general supervision over the entertainment.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Dr. Frank Lee, of Red Bank, has been visiting in town.

Fred Ross, of Park place, is spending his vacation in Hunterdon county.

Miss Frances Thorn, of East Third street, and Miss Hand of Netherwood, are spending a few days visiting friends in Washington, D. C.

James W. Davis, bookkeeper for Boice, Runyon & Co., will take his vacation next week, and he and his family will enjoy farm life in the Passaic Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Bailey and son, Pierson, of 86 Duer street, leave tomorrow for Hunterdon county, where they will spend a week or two with relatives, hoping that the farm life will be beneficial to all, especially Mr. Bailey who is somewhat run down in health.

FRIGHTENED AT TROLLEY.

Miss Bloom Just Escaped Serious Injury From Runaway Horse.

Miss Bloom, of Washington Valley, narrowly escaped serious if not fatal injury this morning on Somerset street near Summit avenue.

She had been in town stopping and was returning in her runabout wagon. Her horse became frightened at an approaching trolley and attempted to turn around across the tracks.

The wagon was upset by the car and Miss Bloom was thrown across the tracks in front of the car, which the motorman was only able to stop when about four feet from her.

The horse attempted to run away but was caught before he had gone far by persons who happened to be near at hand.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—Rev. H. W. Hathaway, of Elizabeth, will speak this evening at the regular monthly missionary meeting of Warren chapel.

Out of Work.

Patrick McManus, an Irish laborer, who said he was on his way from New York to Somerville looking for work, took refuge in a box car last night, and was arrested and locked up by an officer. McManus told a plausible story about being out of work this morning, so the City Judge suspended sentence on him.

Dog Hung Himself.

Freeholder Andrew Lutkins, of Somerset street, lost his valuable hound this morning. The animal was tied in the barn and in some way managed to hang himself through a twist in the rope. When Mr. Lutkins went to his barn he found the dog unconscious.

Threatened With Lockjaw.

Mr. Werth, boarding at the Arlington Hotel on Somerset strent, is threatened with lockjaw caused by stepping on a rusty nail which penetrated the foot.

The first of August former mayor B. A. Hegeman, Jr., and family, of Washington Park, will go to New Hampshire, where they will remain for the balance of the summer.

James Strapp, of Madison avenue, who received a sunstroke a few days ago, and who has been seriously ill, is now very much better and hopes of speedy recovery are entertained.

MR DOOLEY ON THE WAR.

Pays His Respects to the Army and Its Leaders.

"Well," Mr. Hennessy asked, "how goes th' war?"

"Splendid, thank ye," said Mr. Dooley. "Fine; fine. It makes me hear-rt throb with pride that I'm a citizen iv th' sixth wa-ard."

"Has th' ar-rmy started f'r Cuba yet?"

"Wan ar-rmy, says ye? Twinty! Las' Choosdah an advance ar-rmy iv wan hundhred an' twinty thousand men landed fr'm th' Gussie, with tin thousand cannons hurlin' projicktyles weighin' eight hundred pounds, siventeen miles. Winsdah night a second ar-rmy iv injineers, miners, plumbers an' lawn tennis experts, numberin' in all four hundhred an' eighty thousand men, ar-rmed with death-dealin' canned goods, was hurried to Havana to storm th' city. Thursdah mornin' three thousand full rigimints iv r-rough r-riders swum their hor-rses across to Matoonzas, an' afther a spirited battle captured th' Rainy Christiny golf links, two up an' hell to play, an' will hold thim again all comers. Th' same aftuernoon th' reg'lar cavalry, con-sistin' iv four hundherd an' eight thousan' well-mounted men, was loaded aboard th' tug Lucy J. an' departed on their earned iv death amidst th cheers iv eight millyon sojers left behind at Chickamauga. These cav'lry'll co-operate with Commodore Schlow, an' when he desthroys th' Spanish fleet, as he does ivry Sundah an' holy day except in Lent, an' finds out where they ar-re an' desthroys thim, after batterin' down th' forts where they are concealed so that he can't see thim but thinks they ar-re on their way f'r to fight Cousin George Dooley, th' cav'lry will make a dash back to Tampa, where Gin'ral Miles is preparin' ti desthroy th' Spanish at wan blow—an' he's th' boy to blow.

"The gin'ral arrived th other day fully prepared f'r th' bloody wurruk iv war. He had his intire fam'ly with him. He r-rode recklessly into camp mounted on a superb special ca-ar. As missilf an' Uncle Mike Miles, an' Cousin Hennery Miles, an' Master Miles, aged eight years, dismounted fr'm th' specyal train, they were received with wild cheers be eight millyon iv th' bravest sojers that iver gave up their lives f'r their counthry. Th' press cinchorship is so pow'rful that no news is allowed to go out, but I have it fr'm th' specyal corryspondint iv Mesilf, Clancy th' butcher, Mike Casey, an' th' city direchtry that Gin'ral Miles instantly repaired himsilf to th' hotel, where he made his plans f'r cr-rushin' th' Spanyards at wan blow. He will equip th' ar-rmy with blow-guns at wanst. His uniforms ar-re comin' down in specyal steel protected bullyon trains fr'm th' mint where they've been kept f'r a year. He has ordhered out th' gold resarve f'r to equip his staff, numberin' eight thousan' men, manny iv whom ar're clubmen, an' as soon as he can have his pitchers took he will cr-rush th' Spanish with wan blow. Th' pur-pose iv th' gin'ral is to permit no delay. Decisive action is demanded be th' people. An' whin th' hot air masheens has been sint to th' front Gin'ral Miles will strike wan blow that'll be th' damdest blow since th' year iv th' big wind in Ireland.

"Iv coorse, they've dissinsions in th' cabinet, but they don't amount to nawthin'. Th' sicret'y iv war is in favor iv sawin' th' Spanish ar-rmy into two-be-four joinsts. Th' sicret'y iv th' threasury has a scheme f'r rooinin' thim be lindin' thim money. Th' sicret'y iv th' navy wants to sue thim befure th' Mattsachusetts supreme coort. I've heerd that th' prisident is arrangin' a knee dhrill with th' idee iv prayin' th' villyans to th' devil. But these differences don't count. We're all wan people an' we look to Gin'ral Miles to desthroy th' Spanish with wan blow. Whin it comes trees will be lifted out be th' roots. Morro castle'll cave in an' th' air'll be full iv Spanish whiskers. A long blow, a sthrong blow; an' a blow all together. That's the motto iv th' administhration."

"We're a great people," said Mr. Hennessy, earnestly.

"We ar-re," said Mr. Dooley. "W ar-re that. An' th' best iv it is w know we ar-re."—Chicago Journal.

ESTABLISHED MAY 10, 1887. PLAINFIELD, N. J., SATURDAY, JULY 30, 1898. TWO CENTS A COPY—$5 A YEAR.

A THROUGH TROLLEY TO NEW BRUNSWICK.

Plainfield and Brunswick Traction Companies Agree to Terms.

A COMBINATION HINTED.

PLAINFIELD WILL SUPPLY POWER TO TAKE CARS THROUGH DUNELLEN.

Cars Will Be Running There in a Week—Cars Are to Be Run Direct to New Brunswick Soon—The Fare Will Be Forty Cents—The Route is to Be Extended to Somerville Also.

One week from tomorrow residents of Plainfield will be able to take a trolley ride from this city through Dunellen to the western boundary line of that borough. The poles are now erected and in a few days the wires will be strung and the track at the terminus of the Plainfield tracks will be connected. All this will be done within a few days and everyone will feel happy. The result of a conference is that the Plainfield trolley cars are to run through without change with the power from the Plainfield electric light station. From the western boundary of Dunellen the cars will be run with power that is used to run the Brunswick Traction Company cars from Bound Brook to New Brunswick.

The agreement was settled yesterday after a consultation between the officials of the two companies, so called. People who ought to know have given it out that they do not believe there are two companies, but that the Plainfield Street Railway Company has been consolidated with the Brunswick Traction Company in fact if not in name.

The idea is to make a direct line between Plainfield and New Brunswick. The plan is to run every third car through to New Brunswick and the same from New Brunswick to Plainfield. This will give the residents good service and cheap transit. The round trip will be made from this city to New Brunswick for 40 cents, which is more preferable to paying $1.40 by steam cars.

If a person wants to go to Somerville by trolley they will transfer at Bound Brook to another line, owned by the Brunswick Traction Company. The trip to that place will be equally as cheap as the one to New Brunswick.

The Brunswick Traction Company is at present busily engaged in macadamizing North avenue, in Dunellen, and excellent progress is being made. The street is being macadamized from curb to curb and it will cost the company close to $9,000. A good job is being done and the officials are well pleased with it. Alvah Gray is furnishing the stone and a very large quantity is used. Stone is being used to fill in between the tracks, and this will give a good solid road-bed.

Just at present there is a little question as to where a turn out will be located. Dunellen people would like to have one in front of the railroad station, and the chances are that one will be placed there. Just outside of the borough on the west there is a turn out and the company is inclined to think that that one will answer, but it is barely possible. However, there will be no trouble over the matter for the company seems willing and have clearly shown a disposition to do everything that the borough officials have asked.

SPECIAL TRAIN TO CONVENTION.

Plans of Local Endeavorers for the State Convention at Asbury Park.

No pains are being spared to arrange a pleasant time for the delegation which the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Societies will send to the State Convention at Asbury Park in September. A special train will leave Plainfield Wednesday morning, September 28th, reaching Asbury Park in time for luncheon, so that the Endeavorers can attend the opening session of the convention in the afternoon. Probably praise and prayer services will be held in each car, en route, as they were on the special train that carried the Plainfielders to Atlantic City in '95.

At Asbury Park the Plainfield delegation will be all together in one of the most comfortable of the hotels, close to the Auditorium, in which the services are to be held. It is expected that the hotel will be the one next door to the one occupied by the State officers.

The special train will return Saturday morning, Oct. 1st.

Blackford's Case Goes Over.

The suit for $200 brought by Detective John Blackford against Mrs. Harry Marshall, in Justice Nash's court, was adjourned yesterday morning to the morning of August 16th at 10 o'clock.

FAINTED IN A MANHOLE.

WORKMAN WAS OVERCOME BY GAS AND HEAT.

They Were Working in the Manhole Putting in Telephone Cables Yesterday—Druggist Armstrong Revived Him.

Peter Burick, of Newark, one of the three workmen putting the electric wires through the conduits on North avenue yesterday, was overcome by gas and heat while in the manhole at the corner of Park and North avenues. He was drawn out of the manhole by John Barish and Mat Maddox, who were working with him, and taken into Armstrong's pharmacy, where after fifteen minutes' work Mr. Armstrong succeeded in reviving him.

The manhole at the corner of Park and North avenues was a particularly hot spot yesterday. All day the sun poured down on it, and down in its depths, with no air to breath, it was like and oven. Then the gas from some of the mains was escaping, and the combination made it almost impossible for the men to work in the hole for more than a few minutes at a time.

One would go into the opening and stay as long as human nature could endure the gas and heat, then come up, and his place would be taken by one of the others.

At 5 o'clock Burick's turn came, and he descended. He stayed a little longer than usual, when his fellow workmen, looking down into the manhole, saw that Burick was leaning up against the brick walls unconscious.

Jumping down one of the men lifted Burick out while the other dragged him into the shade, and with the help of some bystanders, got him into the drug store.

The workmen did not seem to think that it was anything of importance, and did not realize the danger that Burick was in. They say that it is no unusual occurrence for the men to give way to the heat in this way. When Burick recovered he was very weak.

TROLLEY TO RAHWAY.

Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company Asks Westfield for Franchise.

Westfield, July 30th.—At a meeting of the Township Committee, held last evening, A. A. Gaddis, of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company. appeared and presented a petition for a franchise through the township on the following streets and avenues: North avenue at Clark street, to Broad street, to Westfield avenue, to Summit avenue, to Park street, to Grove street, to Spruce street, crossing Central avenue to Centre street, to South avenue and down the latter to private property in Garwood.

On motion the township attorney was instructed to get out an injunction to stop the Cranford Gas Light Company from tearing up any more streets through the town, as the contractors have failed to replace the streets in the condition they find them.

TALKED ON MISSIONS.

Rev. Mr. Hathaway of Elizabeth Addressed the Meeting at Warren Chapel.

Considering the warm weather there was an excellent attendance at the missionary meeting held at Warren chapel last night. The speaker of the evening was Rev. Mr. Hathaway, of Elizabeth, who gave a highly interesting and instructive talk on foreign missions. He related many incidents that had come under his own personal observation. The members of this chapel naturally feel a great interest in foreign missions owing to the fact that one of their number, Miss Rachel Maire, is now laboring in Africa. Mr. Hathaway told something of the work in that country, as well as in other missionary centres in foreign fields.

CUBAN CITY HAS FALLEN.

Gibara Is In Possession of American Troops.

SPANIARDS EVACUATED.

NASHVILLE FIRST ENTERED HARBOR READY TO ACT.

Commander Was Instructed to Bombard If He Met With Resistance—Gibara the Last Spanish Stronghold In Province But Holguin.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Key West, July 30, 12:36 p. m—The city of Gibara on the northeastern coast of Cuba, in the province of Santiago de Cuba, has surrendered to the American army.

The information of the capture of this Spanish stronghold was brought in this morning by Ensign Snow, who is in charge of the prize crew on the Spanish schooner Gibara, which arrived this morning.

He says that Rear Admiral Sampson ordered the Nashville to enter the harbor and secure the surrender of the city. They were ordered to clear for action and bombard the place if any resistance was shown.

They found, however, that the Spanish garrison had evacuated and there were none to oppose their entrance. The Americans took possession at once.

Two Spanish schooners were found in the harbor. They were the Gibara and the Expresso. They were taken in charge by prize crews and sent to Key West. The Expresso is expected to arrive today.

Gibara was the only city of importance in the province of Santiago, except Holguin, that was still under Spanish rule. It was the seaport of Holguin, to which city its garrison is supposed to have retired.

THE NEW ENGINE HOUSE.

Bids Received and Opened for Its construction—The Lowest.

There was a meeting of the Fire and Building Committee of the City Council last evening at fire headquarters for the purpose of receiving and opening the bids for the construction of a new engine house in the West End. There were seven bids in all and the lowest bid was received from Wyman & Haberly. It was $4,775, being considerably less than $1,000 below the lowest bid received at a previous meeting when bids were received under different plans. The above bid includes all work of construction. All of the other bids were much higher and Arthur Bros., who were the lowest before were nearly the highest on this bid. The matter will be reported at the Council meeting Monday evening when the contract will probably be awarded.

Cyclists to Camp Woolfe.

Quite a number of wheelmen and wheelwomen went from the Christian Endeavor Society of the Congregational church last night to attend the evening Gospel meeting at Camp Woolfe, Westfield. The society had entire charge of the meeting, and in spite of the heat and humidity the Endeavorers enjoyed a pleasant bicycle run and an interesting and helpful. The leader was A. C. LaBoyteaux, whose talk was earnest and practical.

Gaining Rapidly.

Mrs. Biswanger, of Philadelphia, daughter of J. H. McVey, of North avenue, who a few days ago underwent an operation to have a tumor removed, is improving even more favorably than the attending physician, Dr. Endicott, hoped for. The stitches were removed yesterday and the wound is healing nicely. If the ninth day can be passed successfully there is every reason to hope that Mrs. Biswanger will recover.

RACE FOR SHERIFF IN SOMERSET COUNTY

Already There Are Many Aspirants for the Office.

NORTH PLAINFIELD NOT IN IT

DEMOCRATS MAY SPLIT ON A CANDIDATE OVER CURRENCY QUESTION.

Unionist-Gazette Tells Something of the Candidates in Both Parties Who Are Very Anxious to Secure the Nomination—Sheriff Wyckoff Has Been An Exceedingly Successful Official.

The office of Sheriff is regarded by politicians as a hungry man looks upon a delicious morsel of food. In common parlance "it makes their mouths water," remarks the Unionist-Gazette. The office becomes vacant this fall in Somerset county by the expiration of Sheriff Wyckoff's term, and already their are numerous aspirants to succeed him. It will take a good man, however, to conduct the office in as satisfactory a manner as has Sheriff Wyckoff. He has devoted his whole time to its duties, and the work has been well done.

On the Democratic side there is quite a stir among the politicians and it begins to look as though it would be a hard task to decide on a single individual without some friction. The man who seems to be in the lead at the present time is Selah Schoonmaker, the well-known agent of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company at South Somerville. Mr. Schoonmaker has been at work for some time, and he seems to have made good progress. He is popular and a good business man. But the question is whether he will suit both the gold Democrats and the free silverites.

Then Director William Logan of the Board of Freeholders is said to have a weather eye on this nice office. He is a dyed-in-the-wool Bryanite, and would suit the most rigid of this class. Adam Hummer, of Millstone, would also be pleased if the Democratic convention should see fit to nominate him, and he will probably do some active canvassing for delegates, and may make the other candidates hustle before the finish.

It is whispered about that Calvin McMurtry would like to try his hand once more in a shrievalty contest. He made the fight against Sheriff Wyckoff and lost. He now feels that he should be given a second chance, so some of his friends say. He is letting the matter rest with his friends up to the present time, and may not conclude to make an active canvass.

On the Republican side of the fence there is already some active work going on. The most interesting little fight is over in Franklin, which boasts of two candidates, Collector C. V. N. Suydam, of Middlebush, and Sanford Snyder, of Millstone, who are both seeking the delegates from that township. Both feel confident of success. The contest seems to be a friendly one up to the present and which gentleman may have to retire remains to be seen.

Assemblyman P. V. D. VanDoren early announced himself as a candidate, but when he recently received an appointment as deputy revenue collector, it was generally understood he had withdrawn. But Mr. VanDoren was in Somerville this week and says he is still in the field and expects to remain there. About the time Mr. VanDoren received his appointment George W. Cooper, of Somerville, announced himself as a candidate for the office. Mr. Cooper is thus the only candidate from Bridgewater township up to the present time.

The Passage Was a Quick One and Without Incident—Gen. Merritt Was Cheered and Saluted On His Arrival.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Manila, via Hong Kong, July 30, 11:03 a. m.—General Merritt accompanied by the transports bearing the troops arrived here on the morning of July 25th.

They were vigorously greeted on their arrival in the bay by cheers from all the ships in Rear Admiral Dewey's fleet. The Admiral himself went immediately on board the Newport where Gen. Merritt was and welcomed the veteran commander.

Gen. Merritt returned the call and went to the flagship Olympia. As he was leaving the Olympia, he was saluted by the guns of the fleet, the noise of which could be easily heard in the Spanish lines around the city.

The news quickly spread through the insurgent camp and through the Spanish lines that the great American General had arrived.

The vessels in General Merritt's expedition report that the passage was very smooth and agreeable. All the troops are reported to be in excellent health.

It was a very quick passage, the transports arriving several hours ahead of the time they were expected. Immediately on his arrival General Merritt took command of the American forces around Manila.

TERRIBLE DEATH RATE.

Shafter's Report From Santiago Tells of Ravages of the Yellow Fever.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Washington, July 30, 12:45 p. m—The following despatch has just been received at the War Department:

"Santiago.—These are the sanitary conditions from the 28th. Total sick, 4,274 men. Total ill with fever, 3,400.

"Six new cases of fever have been reported. 696 cases of fever have been restored to duty. 591 deaths.

"Shafter."

This despatch has caused much concern among official circles here.

A Great Encampment.

William C. Smith, Department Commander G. A. R., has just returned from Cincinnati, O, where he went on Tuesday to arrange for board, lodging, etc., for the great National Encampment of the G. A. R., to be held in that city September 5-10. Mr. Smith reports that Cincinnati is a beautiful city, and that all who go to that place will not be disappointed. The Encampment promises to be one of the largest in the history of the order.

Quitely Married.

Clifford Applegate, a popular butcher, of Bound Brook, and Miss Anna Belle Dougherty, of South Bound Brook, came to Plainfield last Thursday evening and quitely drove to the home of a Plainfield clergyman and were married, after which they left for a short honeymoon. They will reside at Bound Brook.

—James Lindsey, of South Plainfield, who several weeks ago injured his leg by coming in contact with a pair of ice tongs, was discharged from the hospital today, cured.

GATHERED ON A LAWN.

CHARMING FESTIVAL TO RAISE MONEY FOR GRACE M. E. PARSONAGE.

Miss Woolston and Miss Stevens, Assisted By Their Sunday-School Classes, Gave a Lawn Party Last Evening.

To help raise money with which to build a new parsonage for the Grace M. E. church, two of the teachers of the Sunday-school, Miss Ada Woolston and Miss Bertha Stevens, conceived the idea of holding a lawn party. The plan was carried out last night, and the party was given on Mrs. Edmund P. Stevens' lawn, 65 Grandview avenue.

The party was a great success, and, after paying all expenses, netted about $20, which will go to the building fund. The party was given by the two teachers and the members of their Sunday-school classes, about twelve young people in all. Great credit is due them for the pleasant way in which everything was conducted.

The lawn and piazza were prettily decorated with Chinese and Japanese lanterns, flags and streamers. There were tables scattered about at which the young folks gathered, ate ice cream and cake, or drank ice cold lemonade. No programme was rendered, but the evening was spent in social intercourse and pleasant chat. The piano was moved near one of the parlor windows, and several of the young women played selections during the evening.

Miss Lottie Benner presided over the lemonade table; Miss Belle DeMott and Miss Tillie Uhrhahn looked after the candy table; Miss May Fairchild and Miss Marie Keeney, over the cake; Miss Stella Vermeule, fruit, and Miss Grace Powell, Miss Marian Pearson and Miss Bessie Farley, after the ice cream table.

SHE KNEW THE JUDGE

But it Did Not Save Her From the Course of the Law.

Mrs. Maggie McGuigan, of West Third street, and Mrs. Lizzie Ennis, who lives opposite, are not very good neighbors. One day this week, Mrs. Ennis says, her neighbor over the way called her naughty names. Mrs. McGuigan was arraigned this morning before the City Judge.

Maggie thought her long acquaintance with the Judge would enable her to get off with a light sentence. After telling her side of the case she finished with "Now, Judge, I know you; I knew you when you was a little boy," at the same time directing a stunning look upon His Honor. That didn't save her, however, and she was pronounced guilty, but allowed to go on her own parole.

FOUND THE MONEY.

His Whines Had no Effect on City Judge De Meza.

Michael Fleishman, a young lad from Newark, who has often been detected by the police of this city peddling without a license, was arrested this morning by Patrolman Cash, who brought him before the City Judge. Mike was fined $1. With a whine, he complained that he didn't have it. He carried a large stock of "tangle-foot" flypaper, envelopes, paper and matches with him, but professed not to have any money. The Judge told him that he must either pay or go to jail. Then he paid.

TO WEAR A ROBE.

Justice Mosher Thinks of Following Example of Supreme Court Judges.

Justice Mosher, who is always planning some improvements in his courtroom, has had a small raised platform erected in one end of the court-room on which his honor will take his seat during the trial of cases. The Judge is thinking seriously of donning a black robe, thus copying after the custom of the Justices of the Supreme Court.

Gave Employes an Outing.

Fifteen employes of the well known house of Woolston & Buckle, painters and paper-hangers, of North avenue, are today enjoying themselves at Boynton Beach. It has always been the custom for this firm to give their employes an annual outing and the men appreciate this evidence of kindness and forethought very much. The party is being chaperoned today by L. B. Woolston, of the firm, and a good time is assured each one in the party.

Death of a Boy.

Westley Scott, the young son of Arthur Scott, of 713 West Third street, died at the home of its parents yesterday. He was four months and twenty days old. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock. Interment will be in Evergreen Cemetery.

Mrs. Theodore I. Runyon and daughter, Miss Emily Runyon, of West Fourth street, will go to Asbury Park Tuesday to remain two weeks.

CUSS WORDS COST A DOLLAR APIECE.

Expected Racy Trial of Fritz Did Not Take Place.

WAS GUILTY OF SWEARING.

VETERAN HORSE DEALER CHANGED HIS PLEA AT THE LAST MOMENT.

The City Judge Allowed Him to Change His Plea and Fined Him Three Dollars—Fritz Went to the Wrong Place First—Judge Thought He Wasn't Coming to Court at All.

Adam Fritz swore. He now admits that he used three cuss words. Each word cost him $1. Such was the decision of City Judge DeMeza who bunched the whole affair this morning and fined the veteran horse dealer $3. Using profane language was the technical charge. Adam says that he thought his words might prove more expensive than they did.

The case has attracted unusual interest throughout the city for both the offender and the complainant, Councilman Walter L. Hetfield, have a host of friends and acquaintances. Adam Fritz has the reputation of going into anything heart and soul, so it was generally supposed that the trial would be a racy one, indeed. Fritz had given out that he would be his own lawyer and his sharp tongue was expected to provoke a verbal battle with the Councilman who is also quite handy in the use of the English language.

The affair came to an abrupt termination this morning when Adam Friz appeared in the City Court and quietly pleaded guilty to a charge of using profane language.

Councilman Hetfield, the complainant in the case, was not prepared for trial, as his only witness was not present, but was saved the trouble of going to issue by this unexpected action on Fritz's part.

Fritz's admission of guilt cost him $3. He pulled a five dollar bill out of a well filled wallet, rubbed the greenback carefully to make sure there was not another one sticking close to it, then tossed it on the judge's desk with the remark, "I got off cheap enough," at the same time casting dark looks over in the direction of Mr. Hetfield, his one time friend.

The case had been set down for trial in the station house at 9 o'clock. Through some misunderstanding Fritz went to the Judge's office instead. When the hour had passed and Adam failed to appear, Judge De Meza ordered Roundsman Frederickson to get a warrant, go over into the borough, and arrest Fritz.

When the officer reached the office, there was the defendant. The case was called, and Fritz at once asked permission to change his plea to guilty, which was granted.

Visited Fort Hancock.

Miss A. Grace Higgins, of West Fourth street, and her friend Miss Johnson, of Hopewell, spent Thursday at Fort Hancock. They went with the expectation of learning something of a soldier's life in camp and they were not disappointed. Capt. Wehrly, from whom they had received passes, treated them most politely, showing and explaining many points of interest. The order of discipline maintained is quite wonderful, and well worth the journey to see.

Volunteer's Services.

The Volunteers of America hold meetings as usual Sunday at 10:30, 2:30 and 8 in the tent corner Second and Church streets and at Dunellen at 4:30. Adj't Taylor, the famous bass horn player, will be present this evening and tomorrow accompanied by A. D. C. Weber, of National headquarters. They will assist in all the meetings and favor the audience with several solos and duets on their instruments. Seats are free. All are welcome.

This Is No "Fish" Story.

George Macintyre, of East Front street, has returned from Barnegat where he has spent several days fishing. He brought 100 fish home with him, and said that one day he hooked a monstrous weakfish that straightened out the hook and got away.

To Close the Church.

August 7th and 14th there will be no evening service in the First M. E. church on account of repairs which are to be made to the organ. The morning service will be held in Vincent chapel.

Sold Barber Shop.

Mark Shoettlin, of Duer street, has purchased of Harry Becker, of Somerset street, the latter's barber business, and will take possession Monday. Mr. Becker and family will go to New York, where Mr. Becker will open a barber shop in Harlem.

MANILA HAS FALLEN

Report of the Surrender Comes by Way Of Madrid.

LONG HEARS NOTHING YET

The City's Surrender is Reported by Cable. The Report May Be Due to Knowledge That Spain Has Authorized Augusti to Yield the City. War Department Believes That Major General Merritt Has Arrived at Manila.

Paris, July 30.--A dispatch from Madrid to the Paris edition of the New York Herald says the Spanish government has received a cable message announcing the surrender of Manila to Rear Admiral Dewey.

Washington, D. C., July 30.—The war department would not be surprised if Manila has surrendered to Dewey, but has no such information.

Madrid's report that Manila has surrendered it is believed may be due to knowledge that Spain has authorized Captain General Augustin to yield up the city.

The United States government is in a position, it is believed, to receive news of so important an event sooner than the Spanish authorities at Madrid. Being hemmed in on all sides, Captain General Augusti would not be able to communicate with Hong Kong, the nearest cable station, without passing his message through the United States lines and securing permission for its transmission by boat to Hong Kong.

Consequently it is believed that this announcement of the fall of Manila is an assumption, perhaps on the strongest basis, for it may be that the Spanish government, having sent permission to Augusti to surrender, concludes that he has done so.

It was known to be the disposition of the Spanish authorities at Manila to surrender to the American forces, instead of to the insurgents when the town must fall.

It is tolerably certain that Admiral Dewey might have received the surrender at any time within the past six weeks had he been disposed to exert the slightest pressure in that direction. Indeed, in one of his dispatches he made the blunt statement that he could take Manila in twenty-four hours if he desired. The reason he did not desire to do so was undoubtedly because of a reluctance on his part to intrust the destinies of the great city to the insurgents under Aguinaldo, who, at first, tractable, had begun to show signs of impatience under restraint. Dewey realized that he was being held morally responsible by the civilized world for the protection of the people of Manila against excesses at the hands of the insurgents. There was also the strongest reasons why he should not, by failure to care for the interests of foreign residents in the town, open the door to intervention of any of the neutral naval commanders, who had been lying in the harbor, jealously watching for their opportunity.

Therefore, it became necessary for the admiral to maintain the statu quo until a sufficient military force arrived to enable him to receive the surrender and to occupy and protect it.

It is said at the war department that at least three of the six military expeditions that have been dispatched to the Philippines from San Francisco are now at Manila, affording an army of between ten and fifteen thousand men, backed up by Dewey's ships and sailors.

The Articles of Surrender.

Washington, July 29.—The following bulletin has been posted at the navy department:

St. Thomas, U. S. S. Massachusetts, Ponce, Porto Rico, July 28.—Commander Davis, with Dixie, Annapolis, Wasp and Gloucester, left Guanica July 27 to blockade Ponce and capture lighters for use of army. City of Ponce and Playa surrendered at 12.30 a. m., on July 28.

American flag hoisted at 6 a. m., on 28th. Spanish garrison evacuated. Provisional articles of surrender until occupation by army.

1. Garrison to be allowed to retire.
2. Civil government to remain in force.
3. Police and fire brigade to be maintained without arms.
4. Captain of the port not to be made prisoner.

Arrived at Ponce from Guanica with Massachusetts, General Miles and General Wilson and transports at 6.40 a. m., 28th. Commenced landing army in captured sugar lighters.

No resistance; troops welcomed by inhabitants; great enthusiasm.

Captured sixty lighters, twenty sailing vessels and one hundred and twenty tons of coal.

Sailors Must Wait.

Washington, July 30.—The sailors of Sampson's fleet who participated in the destruction of the vessels of Cervera's squadron probably will have to wait some time yet for their prize money.

The navy department had prepared lists of all the crews of the Spanish vessels and of the vessels of our own fleet that participated in the engagement who were entitled to prize money, for the use of the auditor of the treasury in settling the accounts, but the treasury department officials in their care to prevent any misapplication of the funds requested that they be supplied with further detailed information and this request has necessitated the return of the lists to the North Atlantic fleet off Santiago for amendment.

To prevent further trouble and delay on this score, Secretary Long has issued a circular, No. 43, which has been dispatched to all commanding officers of the navy, laying down the rules for the preparation of the prize lists as suggested by the order from the navy department.

Weyler and Campos for Peace.

Paris, July 30.—A dispatch from Madrid says that Generals Martinez Campos and Azcarraga are in favor of the immediate conclusion of peace.

The dispatch further adds that General Weyler will not oppose any negotiations in favor of peace.

MORE TROOPS SENT FORWARD

Big Expedition Ordered to Leave Tampa for Porto Rico.

Washington, July 30.—A large movement of troops to Porto Rico will be made from Tampa immediately and orders have been issued directing that the regiments be embarked. Artillery batteries D, G, K and M of the Fifth regiment, E of the Sixth and H of the Seventh, the Fifth infantry and the Fifth cavalry are included in the order.

General Hudson's brigade, consisting of the First Florida, Second Georgia and Fifth Maryland volunteers, will also go to Porto Rico at once.

The transports Yucatan, Alleghany, Comal and San Marco, left Santiago for Tampa Thursday and the Seguranca, Miami and Mattawan, now unloading supplies at Santiago, have been ordered back. As soon as these ships arrive they will take on General Hudson's brigade for Porto Rico. This brigade, with that of General Schwan, which has already sailed for Porto Rico, will form a part of the division of General Snyder.

Colonel Hecker of the quartermaster's department said yesterday that the five transports now at Newport News would proceed immediately to New York, and that hereafter the transports returning from Santiago and Porto Rico would generally go to New York.

Six regiments of volunteers, the First and Second Alabama, the First and Second Louisiana and the First and Second Texas, now at Miami, where typhoid fever has prevailed, have been ordered to Jacksonville. The First Ohio has arrived at Fernandina from Tampa.

SAILING OF THE ST. PAUL

To Reach Her Destination in Four Days.

Norfolk, Va., July 30.—The St. Paul, Captain Sigsbee in command, passed out of the Virginia capes at 8.10 o'clock yesterday morning on her way to Porto Rico. She should reach her destination in four days, and with her great speed should overtake some of the slower transports which left Thursday afternoon.

All was bustle early in the morning on the big transport, and the last package of stores was placed aboard about seven o'clock. Ten minutes later her ponderous anchors were raised and she slowly moved down the bay, while the crowd on the pier gave the troops on board an enthusiastic send off, which the troops answered with a will. On the St. Paul, besides an immense lot of stores and ammunition, most of the latter being smokeless powder cartridges for our troops, there were parts of the Fourth Ohio, the Third and Fourth Illinois regiments, the Signal and Ambulance Corps.

General Frederick D. Grant and his brigade, composed of the First and Third Kentucky and Sixteenth Pennsylvania, are at Newport News, ready to embark on the transports Alamo, Hudson and Rio Grande.

Shafter Did as He Pleased.

Santiago de Cuba, July 29.—Major General Shafter is desirous that it should be known that the United States war department has in no way interfered with the conduct of the campaign. The general adds that he was never hampered by the war department and that if the campaign in this vicinity had failed the fault would have been all his own. The department's only participation in the operations was in ratifying the terms of the Spanish forces.

General Shafter has requested that these statements be published in view of the fact that the war department has been criticised for faulty management.

General Shafter has received advices that two Spanish transports, one of them being a hospital ship, have left the island of Martinique. They are expected here to-day.

Some Long Beards.

Perhaps the best-known beard in the United States is that of ex-Senator Peffer, of Kansas, which was said to measure three feet long, but there are many which exceed that in size. The museums frequently contain men five feet and over whose beards sweep the floor when they stand up, but perhaps the longest of all is that of Legrand Larow, of Larow, Mo., which is said to exceed any other in the world. It is seven feet in length, and has measured 7½ feet. Mr. Larow was born in Tompkins county, New York, in 1852, and his relatives are noted for heavy beards, but not extraordinary length. He is six feet in height and weighs 175 pounds. When standing with his beard down it extends two feet upon the floor. He has not shaved for over twenty years. He wears his beard braided and wound around his body, or else wrapped and lodged inside his vest.—Boston Transcript.

Poor Tommy.

"Why, Mrs. Jamesby!" exclaimed a neighbor across the backyard fence. "Do you beat your own carpets?"

"Yes," replied Mrs. Jamesby. "I don't mind it. It's good exercise."

"I should think you'd have Tommy do it."

"Poor Tommy!" rejoined the good woman, resuming her exercise. "He belongs (whack!) to a gymnatic class down town, and (whack!) he's so tired when he comes home in the afternoon (whack!) that I haven't the heart to ask him (whack!) to take told of any work like this." (Whack! whack!)—Youth's Companion.

To Be Considered With Care.

"Say, Maud," said Mamie, "did you see Mrs. Jinkles' new vase?"

"Yes. Isn't it perfectly horrid?"

"I don't know yet. I haven't found out whether it is modern and perfectly horrid, or antique and perfectly lovely."

Promoter—"You needn't be a bit afraid; the company is perfectly safe." The Lamb—"Oh, I've no doubt about the company being safe enough. I was thinking about the safety of my money."—Boston Transcript.

PONCE'S CAPITULATION

City and Port Given Up Without a Struggle.

A WELCOME TO OUR ARMY

The Dixie Received the Surrender of Ponce Thursday Morning. Was Begged Not to Shell the Town. Gen. Ernst's Brigade First to Enter the Town. Miles Special Dispatch.

St. Thomas, July 29.—Captain Davis of the Dixie received the capitulation of Ponce at 12.30 o'clock on Thursday morning, in his cabin, before the army arrived. The Wasp and Gloucester were with the Dixie.

The official and commercial representatives of the place begged him not to bombard and he received the Spanish colors from them.

Lieutenant Haines took the alcade's mace and sat in the chair of justice and liberated the political prisoners.

St. Thomas, Danish West Indies, July 28.—The port of Ponce, island of Porto Rico, surrendered to Commander Davis of the auxiliary gunboat Dixie on Wednesday. There was no resistance and the Americans were welcomed with enthusiasm. The town of Ponce capitulated to the American troops on Thursday afternoon.

Major General Miles arrived here this morning at daylight with General Ernst's brigade and General Wilson's division on board transports. General Ernst's brigade immediately started for the town of Ponce, three miles inland, which capitulated this afternoon.

The American troops are pushing towards the mountains, and will join General Henry, with his brigade, at Guanica, which has been captured by our troops.

A fight before the latter place on Tuesday last was won by the American volunteers. The Spaniards ambushed eight companies of the Massachusetts and Illinois regiments, but the enemy was repulsed and driven back a mile to a ridge, where the Spanish cavalry charged. They were routed by our infantry.

General Garretson led the fight with the men from Illinois and Massachusetts and the enemy retreated to Yuaco, leaving four dead on the field and several wounded. None of our men was killed and only three were slightly wounded.

The wounded are:
Captain Gihon Barrett.
Private James Drummond.
Private H. C. Cary.

The Porto Ricans are glad the American troops have landed, and say they are all Americans and will join our army.

The roads are good for military purposes. Our troops are healthy and General Miles says the campaign will be short and vigorous.

Despatch from Gen Miles.

Washington, July 30.—The following bulletin was given out at the war department late yesterday:

Port Ponce, Porto Rico,
St. Thomas, July 29.

Secretary of War, Washington:

1.30 a. m., on the 26th, Garretson had a spirited engagement on skirmish line. Our casualties, four wounded. All doing well.

Spanish lost three killed and thirteen wounded. Yuaco occupied yesterday. Henry's division there to-day.

Last evening Commander Davis of the Dixie moved into this port, followed by Captain Higginson with his fleet early this morning.

General Wilson, with Ernst's brigade, now rapidly disembarking.

Spanish troops are retreating from southern part of Porto Rico. Ponce and Port having population fifty thousand (50,000) now under American flag. The populace received troops and saluted the flag with wild enthusiasm.

Navy has several prizes; also seventy lighters. Railway stock, partly destroyed, now restored. Cable instruments destroyed; have sent to Jamaica for others.

This is a prosperous and beautiful country. The army will soon be in mountain region; weather delightful; troops in best of health and spirits; anticipate no insurmountable obstacle in future results. Thus far have been accomplished without the loss of a single life.

NELSON A. MILES,
Major General Commanding Army.

Particulars of the Capture.

U. S. S. Massachusetts,
Ponce, Porto Rico, 28,
St. Thomas, July 29.

Secretary Navy, Washington:

The Spanish retreat from this place was precipitous, they leaving rifles and ammunition in barracks and forty or fifty sick in hospital. The people are enjoying a holiday in honor of our arrival.

Spanish troops are retreating from southern part of Porto Rico. Ponce and Port have a population of 50,000 now under American flag. The populace received troops and saluted the flag with wild enthusiasm.

Navy has several prizes, also seventy lighters. Railroad stock partly destroyed now restored. Telegraph communication also being restored. Cable instruments destroyed. Have sent to Jamaica for others.

This is a prosperous and beautiful country. The army will soon be in the mountain region; weather delightful; troops in best of health and spirits; anticipate no insurmountable obstacles in future.

Results thus far have been accomplished without the loss of a single life.

MILES,

Will Not Be Moved for Some Time.

Washington, July 30.—Secretary Alger says that the work of bringing the men of General Shafter's corps to Montauk Point can not begin for several weeks yet.

"As yet, however," he said, "we have only determined to bring them home and to locate them at Montauk Point."

Secretary Alger added that instructions were about to be issued for the preparation at Montauk Point of quarters for the accommodation of troops to be camped there.

The Clearing Sale of Shirt Waists.

With the close of July comes the greatest price-cutting—the most attractive values ever offered. The remaining stock is divided into two lots, 49c. and 75c., former prices ranged from 75c to $1.50. There's not 200 waists in the entire assortment, so we advise an early call for the best selection.

Sailor Hats and Untrimmed Hats 49c.

This means that each and every hat, irrespective of former price, will be 49c. Of especial interest should the price be, as none have been less than 75c, and the styles offered are all of this season's production.

Men's Negligee Shirts 59c.

Sounds cheap, but the hundred or more shirts that go on sale have been selling at 75c., 85c. and $1. The patterns are all new and desirable, the kind that you would like. Clearing time is here, and the new price, 59c., will be the means of their quick disposal.

Men's Summer Underwear 20c.

Nearly 600 pieces gauze underwear to be 20c. This is ordinarily the best 25c underwear sold, but 20c will be the clearing price.

PROCLAMATION BY GEN. MILES

The Purpose of the Invasion of Porto Rico Explained.

Port of Ponce, Island of Porto Rico July 28.—General Miles has issued the following proclamation:

"In the prosecution of the war against the kingdom of Spain by the people of the United States, in the cause of liberty, justice and humanity, its military forces have come to occupy the island of Porto Rico. They come bearing the banners of freedom, inspired by a noble purpose, to seek the enemies of our government and of yours, and to destroy or capture all in armed resistance.

"They bring you the fostering arms of a free people, whose greatest power is justice and humanity to all living within their fold. Hence they release you from your former political relations and, it is hoped, the cheerful acceptance of the government of the United States.

"The chief object of the American military forces will be to overthrow the armed authority of Spain and give the people of your beautiful island the largest measure of liberty consistent with this military occupation. They have not come to make war on the people of the country, who for centuries have been oppressed, but on the contrary, they bring protection not only to yourselves, but to your property, promote your prosperity and bestow the immunities and blessings of our enlightened and liberal institutions and government.

"It is not their purpose to interfere with the existing laws and customs which are wholesome and beneficial to the people, so long as they conform to the rules of the military administration, order and justice.

"This is not a war of devastation and dissolution, but one to give all within the control of the military and naval forces the advantages and blessings of enlightened civilization."

PHILIPPINE NATIVES PROTEST

Return of the Islands to Spain Opposed.

London, July 30.—Natives of the Philippine islands and native subjects who have interests there are alarmed by the reports that the peace terms include the return of these islands to Spain. As a result they have held a meeting here and, after consultation with the Philippine natives in France and Belgium, have cabled to President McKinley and to Senator Davis, chairman of the foreign relations committee. The message to President McKinley is as follows:

"The Philippinas resident in Europe pray you not to abandon the Philippine islands for the sake of peace with Spain. Our loyalty and trust in the honor of America entitle us to your consideration and support. To hand over our country again to Spain is contrary to the humanitarian proceedings of your noble nation and the wish of all classes. Civilization, trade and order all will be lost if Spanish authority is re-established in any form."

The message to Senator Davis says: "A cast iron agreement binding Spain to a form of government satisfactory to the inhabitants is preposterous. To retain her sovereignty means deception, oppression and bigotism. We place our rights in your hands and pray you to induce the president and senate not to abandon in the hour of peace a people who, trusting in American honor, fight for their common interests."

Spain Favorable to Peace.

Madrid, July 30.—Referring to the prospects of peace, the Correspondencia, an independent, semi-official paper, says:

"While the government has asked for peace without stipulating a preliminary suspension of hostilities, it is supposed that an armistice will be declared as soon as the basis is agreed upon, and pending a definite settlement. None of these bases has yet been submitted, but among the conditions mentioned is one relative to an international conference in London to arrange the future of the Philippine islands.

"We do not believe the Americans will propose such a conference, because they have no interest in doing so and could not derive any benefit therefrom. Neither is the Spanish government favorable to such a conference, considering that the negotiations which it has opened directly with the United States, are better calculated to secure a good understanding between the two countries.

It is understood that the Spanish transport Isla de Panay and Isla de Luzon will sail from Cadiz to-day for Santiago de Cuba, in order to embark the Spanish prisoners of war.

Sick and Wounded Prisoners Arrive.

New York, July 30.—The United States transport Leona, Captain Wilder, arrived yesterday morning at quarantine from Siboney July 23, via Hampton Roads 28th inst., bringing 50 convalescent soldiers, two newspaper correspondents and a colored boy who was sent with the Ninth cavalry from Tampa to Santiago. The Leona left New York June 12 for Tampa, where she lay in the harbor for over three weeks. She then embarked the First and Tenth United States cavalry and proceeded to Santiago, where she landed her troops.

Hobson to Preside at Relief Meeting.

New York, July 30.—Lieutenant Richmond Pearson Hobson, the hero of the Merrimac, will preside at a public meeting in the Metropolitan Opera House on next Thursday evening, called to raise money for the families of soldiers and sailors. He has accepted an invitation from the New York Soldiers' and Sailors' Families' Protective Association to that effect. The object of the meeting will be to arouse interest and obtain contributions for the needs of the association, which already has raised and distributed a large amount of money.

Our Bonds to Up.

New York, July 30.—The bid price for the coupon United States 4 per cent. bonds of 1925 was 127 on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday morning, the highest price since the big slump in the bonds immediately after the Maine was blown up in Havana harbor on February 15. The new 3 per cent. bonds, "delivery when issued," sold in the early dealings at 104 1-8.

AMERICA'S ULTIMATUM

The Terms Demanded of Spain to Secure Peace.

NO INDEMNITY OF MONEY

The Note in Reply to Spain Practically Formulated. The Administration's Policy in the East. The Cabinet Practically Unanimous Against Holding the Philippines.

Washington, July 30.—The cabinet at its session beginning at eleven o'clock yesterday morning, discussed the president's answer to Spain's peace proposal, and reached the following decisions as to the demands to be made upon Spain.

1. The absolute surrender of Porto Rico to the United States.

2. Recognition of the independence of Cuba.

3. Cession of one of the Ladrone islands to the United States as a coaling station, and the cession to the United States of at least a coaling station in the Philippines.

The question undecided is: What disposition shall be made of the Philippine islands as a whole? There is practically no difference of opinion in the cabinet on the question of the retention of the Philippine islands as a whole, all the members being opposed to our acquisition of these islands.

There has been no decision, however, on the extent to which the government will go respecting the future of these islands. It is probable that the answer of the president will express the willingness of this government to leave the matter of the future government of the Philippines entirely in the hands of a joint commission to be appointed by this government and the government of Spain. The probability is also that the United States will insist upon a guarantee of certain reforms in the government of the Philippine islands.

Our answer will make no mention of money indemnity. Neither will there be any armistice at all. The answer will be in the nature of an ultimatum, and if Spain does not accept it she will fare worse in the future.

The note from Spain, it is said, was a very adroit and equivocal document, from reading which one would think the only question involved was Cuba. Apparently Spain may not really have intended getting a direct answer from us, but only to open diplomatic correspondence. This government will not have any such correspondence but will make a straightforward statement of the present peace terms for Spain's acceptance or rejection, naming conditions that under the circumstances are said to be reasonable and even generous.

The cabinet adjourned at 1.30 o'clock to meet again at 3.30.

Secretary of State Day was in conference with President McKinley as early as 10.20 yesterday morning, preliminary to laying the full draft of the answer to the Spanish peace note before the cabinet. He carried with him a portfolio of papers, probably embracing the secretary's rough draft of what is likely to be adopted at the cabinet session, as our answer to Spain, and important data in connection with the subject.

Public men who talked with the president and members of the cabinet yesterday positively assert that the administration takes the view that this note is the beginning of the end; and that the administration is practically certain the answer of this government and the general terms it will propose will be accepted by Spain.

In connection with the peace negotiations some significance was attached to the fact that the members of the war board conferred with Secretary Long in his office just before that official left for the cabinet meeting. While these conferences are frequent there is a disposition to regard this particular one as having a bearing on the present negotiations, as Captain Mahan and the other naval strategists composing this board would be able to give valuable advice on the strategic value and necessity of coaling stations in the Philippines, Ladrones and other points on the highway to the Orient.

The president has not, so far as can be learned, changed in any degree his disposition to take the American people into his confidence in dealing with this most difficult and delicate subject, and about the only restraint that is imposed upon publicity at this stage is that caused by the observance of the amenities of diplomatic exchange. Thus, it will be necessary to communicate to the French ambassador the decision of the administration before it can be made known to the American public. This is the rigid requirement of diplomatic courtesy, and to fail in this apparently trivial point would be to invite remonstrance that might end in the serious interruption of the negotiations.

What New York Did in Three Months?

Albany, July 30.—This state has furnished 20,514 men under the two calls from the president for volunteers, 12,490 of whom left the state for active service fully uniformed, armed and equipped. On March 31 the strength of the National Guard was 13,803 officers and men, and to-day it is 10,170 officers and men. Since May 2, 20,000 volunteers under the two calls have been sent to the front and a new guard has been established and equipped.

Strike Still Unsettled

New York, July 30.—Conditions in connection with the strike of 600 machinists and 200 apprentices in the employ of R. Hoe and Company, printing press manufacturers, 504 Grand street, are unchanged. Whatever prospect there was in sight yesterday for an early adjustment of the differences involved, there was none this morning.

Brings $250,000 in Klondike Gold.

San Francisco, July 30.—The steamer Portland has arrived from St. Michaels bringing seven returning Klondikers and about $250,000 in gold dust and bullion.

DUN'S WEEKLY REVIEW

More Business Is Being Done This July Than Any Other Year on Record.

New York, July 30.—Big business in January is expected, but big business in July means more. It is the month of all others when trade is naturally light. New engagements are ordinarily deferred, and men wait for the outcome and movement of crops. But more business is being done this year than in any previous July of which there are records. The payments through clearing houses have been 5.8 per cent. larger than in 1892, the year of greatest prosperity heretofore, and for the month thus far 6.5 per cent. larger than last year and 8.4 per cent. larger than in 1892. But these records and others have to be judged in the light of a heavy decline in prices since 1892, so that the volume of business transacted is about 20 per cent. larger than the volume of payments indicates. There is no pressure in the money market nor fear of any, the tendency being all the time toward greater dependence of other countries upon the United States. Although foreign crop advices are encouraging, harvests are yet to come in many countries, and meanwhile the buying of breadstuffs continues larger than usual at this season.

To the people of this country the crops mean more than anybody can calculate. In spite of some actual and much speculative injury, the fact remains that the yield of wheat is certainly the much largest ever known, and the prospect is good for a heavy yield of cotton, with about as large a yield of corn as last year, while an enormously valuable hay crop has been saved. Considering that the purchases of nearly half the people depend on the success of agriculture, and that the prosperity of the entire transporting interest is materially affected by the size of the crops to be moved, it may be said with reason that the promise of general prosperity this year is unusually bright. Wheat receipts for the month thus far have been 7,309,333 bushels, against 10,652,074 last year, but prices have declined 11 1-2 cents, and farmers are holding back their wheat in the hope of higher prices. The exports for the week have been 1,307,815 bushels, from Atlantic ports, flour included, against 1,718,738 last year; and from Pacific ports 126,117 bushels, against 429,291 last year, making for the month 8,833,192 bushels, against 7,342,467 last year. Corn has a little advance in prices, owing to reports of injury to the crop, and also because exports for the month thus far have been singularly well maintained, amounting to 6,767,963 bushels, against 8,009,616 last year. Wheat, on the contrary, has dropped about 9 1-2 cents, with prospect of further decline.

The official report of iron production for the first half of 1898 shows an increase of over half a million tons compared with any previous half year, and what is far more important, the consumption in manufactures appears for the half year to have exceeded the output.

Boots and shoes go out from Boston in greater quantity than in any previous July, 361,239 cases this month against 351,359 cases in 1895, and 318,074 in 1892. Reports of stoppages do not seem to be warranted by these heavy shipments, and the makers are running in spite of the reported controversy about prices.

Exports from New York during four weeks of July have been $5,200,000, or 29 per cent. larger than last year, while imports have been $5,900,000, or 23 per cent. smaller than last year. Stocks have remained little changed in price, the average rising from $59.04 to $59.37 for the week. Failures for three weeks of July have been $7,400,318 in amount against $4,463,251 last year, $12,069,481 in 1896, $8,392,727 in 1895, and $9,016,778 in 1894. Manufacturing have been $3,095,662 against $1,954,945 last year, and $5,553,211 in 1896, and trading have been $2,444,684 against $2,459,730 last year, and $5,258,450 in 1896. Failures for the week have been 225 in the United States, against 236 last year, and 26 in Canada against 28 last year.

A Search for Bourgogne Victims.

Halifax, July 30.—The agents for the Campagnie Generale Transatlantique here have chartered the schooner Isaac Wade to make a cruise in search of bodies from La Bourgogne's disaster.

The vessel is being loaded with coffins and sails to-day for Sable island. The search will be a general one. The bodies will be brought here for burial. The company is paying all expenses in connection with the trip.

The Texas Arrives.

New York, July 30.—The Red Cross steamship State of Texas, commanded by Captain Young, arrived at quarantine at noon yesterday from Santiago. The State of Texas has a crew of thirty-nine men, and brought Mrs. Porter, the wife of the president's private secretary, who volunteered as a Red Cross nurse.

Sergant Fish Buried.

New York, July 30.—Impressive funeral services over the remains of Hamilton Fish, Jr., who fell at Santiago, were held at St. Mark's Protestant Episcopal church yesterday. Three thousand people were unable to gain admission. The remains were taken to Garrisons for interment.

Has Sailed for Honolulu.

Washington, July 30.—The expedition for Honolulu sailed yesterday. It was expected that General Merriam would go in command.

It consists of the First New York volunteer infantry and four companies of the Second regiment volunteer engineers.

They Want the Philippines.

San Francisco, July 30.—The Merchants' Association have adopted resolutions petitioning President McKinley to hold the Philippines. Similar action will be taken by the chamber of commerce and other business organizations.

The Quebec Conference

Ottawa, July 30.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier announces that the conference between Canada and the United States will open at Quebec August 23.

COMING EVENTS.

Somerset County's Sheriff.

Somerset county will this fall lose a good official and a faithful and honest worker in the interest of the county's welfare. Sheriff Wyckoff's term of office expires and the citizens of that county will have a chance to pick from the number of candidates who are already beginning to start their campaigns for the position. In another column will be found a sketch of the principal candidates as given by the Somerville Unionist Gazette. Their words of praise for the retiring official are timely, and The Press unites with them in the wish that the next incumbent will be able to perform his duties in as eminently satisfactory manner as Sheriff Wyckoff has done during the three years he has been in office.

When the bicycle began to take such rapid strides into popularity, it was predicted that the time would come when it would supercede the horse. The motor or horseless carriage was looked upon as the successor of the horse in other ways. Thus, it was prophesied that the horse was soon to disappear from general use. The decline in the livery business was noticeable and seemed only another proof.

The day of the horseless carriage has not come in America, at least. It seems probable, however, that when it is sufficiently improved it will gradually take the place of the horse for business purpose. The bicycle will not, however, overcome the horse on the road. This summer, there seems to be a revival of interest in the horse in Plainfield. The business of the livery stables has been good this season when pleasant weather made it possible. Then, too, there have been a number of our citizens who have purchased horses and now spend much of their spare time on the road.

Trotting has immeasurably grown in general interest during the last year and the contests at the local driving park have attracted much interest from all, beside the expert horsemen, of which every city has a few. So far, the sport in Plainfield has been kept clean and the objectionable features, that kill a healthy outdoor enjoyment in other towns, have so far not appeared.

The State is fast becoming cut up with trolley lines that are developing districts heretofore unreached by any method of rapid transit. The latest attempt is to connect Westfield and Rahway by a trolley road. There isn't any doubt but that it would be a desirable thing for everyone if the traction company is kept well under control. Although Westfield and Rahway are only five miles apart, they have had little communication with each other. To reach one place from the other it is now necessary to go by rail to Elizabeth, changing cars at Elizabeth. The new route will make the two towns seem far nearer.

The claim of Theodore R. Timby to have been the true inventor of the armored turret for naval or land use has been revived again in a New York newspaper. There is no doubt that Mr. Timby first conceived and devised the plan, which the Ericsson construction in the Monitor made so famous. But the Swedish inventor made it a practical fact.

VICTIMS OF AMERICAN GUNNERY.

Here is a pictured tribute to the skill of the American gunner more eloquent than words can paint. Of the two ships of Cervera's fleet, the Cristobal Colon and the Maria Teresa, the former was exceptionally fast, but our gunnery overbalanced her speed and she was conquered after a run of sixty miles.

Similarly it has been claimed, and probably with justice, that all the essential principles of the magnetic telegraph were worked out before Morse took hold of the problem by appropriating the preliminary stages of success and adding to them the final triumph over mechanical obstacles. Unfortunately for many gifted toilers, they are forgotten in the sweep of the fact that "the end crowns the work."

The examination of the hulls of the battle wrecks in Cuba throws some light on the fate of the unlucky Maine. In the case of the Vizcaya, for example, which received one fatal wound from the explosion of one of its own torpedoes, the effect on the thick steel shell in the curves and direction of fracture were totally different from those in the Maine exhibit. It is claimed that the evidence is almost conclusive.

Major De Granpey, the French military attache, on returning to Washington from the front, spoke of the American soldiers "as a superb body individually and as an army, and I suppose not throughout the world is there such a splendid lot of fighting men." This merely echoes the genuine enthusiasm with which all capable foreign observers have summed up their opinions of the American war personnel.

The Russian editors complacently curl their mustaches with the remark that the American political status in the east apropos of the results of the war hangs on the verdict of St. Petersburg. The Muscovite press forgets that the world's accepted sea meridian passes through Greenwich, England, and not through the city of Peter.

It seems that only a portion of the harbor mines in our great harbors will be removed, though all danger from Spanish attack has ceased. Government evidently feels it imprudent to make every channel a fairway until all international outcome of the war has been settled.

"Justice is the bread of nations; they are always famishing for it," is the sentimental apothegm of a great Frenchman. We have been the great producers of breadstuffs so far, and we are now adding this new cereal to our export list.

"Farmer" Dunn regulated the weather so satisfactorily during his long term as weather clerk in New York city that citizens of all degrees feel great forebodings at his resignation. One would think it was like Apollo giving up his reins of the sun to Phaeton. No matter. If the new man will turn on the rain tap, it will put out the fire.

Spanish sentiment has been represented as firmly set against formally asking for peace before at least one decided defeat had been inflicted on the Americans. Under such conditions, we fear, war would reach a chronic stage.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

New York's rulers are trying to dam the profanity that flows so freely in the streets of the metropolis, and a Plainfield Councilman has undertaken the same thing. Chronic "cussers" in these places are now learning to swear in Spanish.—Somerset Democrat.

In addition to the usual studies taught in the public schools of Plainfield the new art of mouthing a small stream of water from a distance will add, at the coming session, a new art, if it may be so called, to the curriculum, an art trenching upon jugglery. How the boys will enjoy it, trying to "stunt" each other in the graceful manner they will accomplish it, and as to the girls, well, we know how they throw and catch a ball and what gyrations they usually make, and the catching of aqua pura in the orifice of their facial adornment, and between two cherry red lips may become as fine an art as that of osculation by lovers when the old folks are out of the room. "The Sun do Move."—Dunellen Call.

The horses of Somerville and vicinity are just now passing through a transition period of education, and some of them are like children who revolt against school life. They seem to regard the trolley cars as some huge engines of destruction. Some of them try to be patient and simply stand and tremble. Others become vicious and run around in the street or break their tie straps. There have been very few casualties, however, and most of the horses are becoming educated up to the point of knowing that a trolley car was invented to save their race from the most trying labor that horseflesh has been called upon to endure. For years these noble beasts have been reared in the country only to be transported to cities where they have been required to drag cars over the hard pavements until they became sprung in the knees and sore of foot. Yet like perverse human kind, horses cannot recognize the blessings that come to them in disguise. The trolley will be a saving of labor to them. It has lifted them to a higher plane of living. Instead of regarding the cars with fear they should look upon them as friends. We trust the Somerset horses will soon become accustomed to the new conditions.—Somerville Unionist Gazette.

The annual talk about the tax rates in Newark, Jersey City, Plainfield, Elizabeth, Camden, etc., is now being heard, and some cities get the benefit of nominally low rates, while others seem to have very high rates. The facts are that these tax rates convey no information as to the comparative taxes in any of the cities of this State. They are utterly misleading for the simple reason that they give no accurate idea of what the taxes are upon property of the same real value in each of the cities. In some places a tax rate of $1.50 compels the owner of a 5,000 dollar property to pay more money for taxes than a rate of $2 00 compels a property owner to pay for property of exactly the same value in other localities. Why is this? Simply because of the unconstitutional and illegal and unjust system of valuing property for purposes of taxation. In one place a property really worth $5,000 is assessed at $3,000, in another at $2,500, and in another at $2,000 and under. Of what significance is a comparison of tax rates under such conditions. In the first instance a tax rate of $1.00 would compel a property owner to pay more money for taxes than a rate of $2.00 would compel where the assessment was less than one-half. Great injustice is thus done many places by comparative lists of tax rates, but this is the least of the countless injustices that have grown up around the unconstitutional methods now in operation of assessing property and levying taxes.—Elizabeth Journal.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Dunellen July 30—Last Thursday evening there was a regular meeting of the fire department. Nothing but routine business was considered.

One week from today there will be bowling on the green at the home of Christian Schepflin. On August 20th there will be a play for the club medal now held by Charles Schenck. On September 3d, Schepflin's Day will be celebrated, and it will also be ladies' day. On September 17th the Willis prize will be played for. Two prizes offered by Samuel Luckey will be played for on ladies' day.

Mrs. Winckler, who is a resident near Plainfield's sewage beds, is confined to the house with an attack of diphtheria. Dr. Whitford has sent an official notification of the fact to William Addis, health inspector in Plainfield. The friends of Mrs. Winckler claim that the beds in a great measure are responsible for her illness.

There will be a match shoot of the Central New Jersey Trap Shooting League on the Dunellen grounds this afternoon. There will be another shoot at Bound Brook on August 13th and another at Fanwood on August 27th.

Miss Mary and Elizabeth Martine, of Church street, have returned from Flemington, where they have been spending a week with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Wyckoff.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Now that the net work of trolley tracks, that is rapidly covering New Jersey, is including Plainfield in its meshes, the young people of the city will find a new pleasure that will be particularly enjoyable these warm summer afternoons. The present limits of the trolley system in this city preclude the possibility of holding a regular trolley party. Connection with the other lines in the vicinity will make these outings possible. Philadelphia, Brooklyn and many other cities have long been enjoying trolley parties with special cars, but it will be something entirely new for Plainfield.

A LAND OF NAPTHA.

Inflammable Nature of Everything at the Baku Petroleum Wells.

Probably there is no spot on earth where more highly inflammable matter lies exposed to such terrible conflagrations as that just reported from Baku than in the district lying just beyond that town on the shores of the Caspian. Everything seems saturated with petroleum; the air one breathes is laden with a greasy odor, and the waters of the bay are covered with an iridescent sheen which at night may be set on fire with most weird effect. Not only is black naphtha to be seen in monster fountains playing from the very earth, but white naphtha flows of itself in places, and a short way off are the natural gas vents over which the natives do their cooking without coal, and which once fed the sacred Zoroastrian fires. Everything round is saturated. No one objects to naphtha there, and the men even wash in it, using sand therewith, while all employed have a fixed allowance for fuel and light.

All around between the wells lie lakes of seething naphtha, which, when clear of sand and stones, will be pumped into iron reservoirs. The roads have naphtha streams by the sides, and naphtha pipes of all sizes cross and interlace in all directions until they are hardly passable. One rashly thrown match would set miles in a blaze, and the most stringest regulations are wisely enforced. But for them disasters would be terribly frequent.

A very different appearance is presented by the palpitating Black Town, where in gigantic furnaces the naphtha is distilled and churned and distilled again as benzine, kerosene and vaseline, and many valuable chemicals are one by one removed, till only the thick, black residue, of use for fuel, is left, and much of this is used to feed the furnaces themselves. Boilers so heated closely resemble those intended for coal and wood except that on the inside of the fire doors are stout jets, through which it is pumped the length of the firebox, forming bright tongues of heat-giving flames. Railways and steamers alike are so heated in Russia.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Court Opened On Time.

The Omaha World-Herald recalls a story of Judge Gaslin. Gaslin opened the spring term of court at Minden a number of years ago with the announcement that matters had to be pushed. He kept the lawyers jumping all day, but his remarks when adjourning court for the night awoke a protest.

"Court is adjourned until 7 o'clock to-morrow morning," said the judge.

John McPheely, who was then County Attorney, and had a number of cases to try, arose and protested against such an unseemly hour for convening court.

"Your honor, 7 o'clock is an inconvenient hour to open court. I would suggest 9 o'clock as more convenient."

"This court will convene to-morrow morning at 7 o'clock," shouted Gaslin. "You lawyers are not a bit better than the farmers, and they have to get up at 4 o'clock in the morning to pay the expenses of running this court. Court's adjourned till 7 o'clock."

And it opened on time the following morning.

Dogs Who Beg for Charity.

One of the English railways, the Great Western I think, has for some years past adopted a novel method of collecting money for the widows and orphans of men killed or dying in their service. One or more dogs, big, noble fellows, wearing a wide collar on which is fastened a money box with an inscription regarding their mission, go about collecting funds. They travel the whole length of the road and are at home at all its stations. This summer one of them put his head into the open door of our compartment while waiting at a station. At the station at Leamington, I came with surprise upon a very life like stuffed dog, sitting proudly upright, with a money box attached to his collar and at his feet a card bearing the following lines:

"Widows and Orphans, their case I deplore;
Oft in my life I have helped them before,
Old pitiless death took all but my skin,
So here is my box, please drop a coin in."

It would be interesting to know the story of the old fellow whose charitable works did not end with his life. —Hannah M. Barbour in Humane Advocate.

Reading Character from the Walk.

A Washington policeman says he can read character by the manner in which people walk. Energetic people walk rapidly and with firm steps; slovenly persons just slouch along; sentimental and sporty ones walk partly on their toes; sneaks shuffle their feet, and men of solid character put their heels down hard; proud men and women walk with a springy step and thieves do not stand straight on their feet.

Great Picture Buyer.

"What do you think of an artist who painted cobwebs on the ceiling so truthfully that the servant wore herself into an attack of nervous prostration trying to sweep them down." Hostess (a woman of experience)—"There may have been such an artist, but there never was such a servant."

She (gushingly)—"There are days when we seem more in unison with nature than at other times, when our hearts seem to beat in accord with the sublime harmony of the universe. Have you ever noticed it?" He—"Indeed I have. It is always that way with me on pay day."

OUR DEBT TO BUMBLE-BEES.

The Part These Busy Workers Play in the Fertilization of Flowers.

The work of the bumble bee in bringing about the cross fertilization of flowers is as important as that of the honey bee, and these two stand at the head of the line of insects useful in this respect. Each has its flower which it alone visits, but there are many flowers on neutral ground, visited by both. So we may say of the bumble bee, as of the honey bee, the more bumble bees the more seeds; the more seeds the more flowers; especially wild flowers, as the tall bell flower, touch-me-not, Solomon's seal, gentian, Dutchmen's breeches, and turtle head. But probably the most important work this insect does for agriculture is upon the fields of red clover. There is abundant proof that this plant will not produce seed without the co-operation of the bumble bee. It is impossible for the wind to bring about the fertilization of the seed, as it may do in the case of Indian corn, grain, and some forest trees. The tube of red clover blossoms too, is so long that other insects (including the honey bee) are not regular visitants.

Here is proof that this plant must have visits from the bumble bee. This insect is not a native of Australia, and red clover failed to produce seed there until bumble bees were imported. As soon as they became numerous the plant could be depended upon for seed. Again, the blossoms of the first crop of the "medium red clover" of our own country are just as perfect as those of the second crop, but there are too few bumble bees in the field, so early in the season, to produce fertilization; hence little or no seed in this crop. If bumble bees were sufficiently numerous there is no reason why much larger yields of clover seed might not be expected than at present.--B. H. Standish in St. Nicholas.

LIVING IN MANILA.

An Establishment Maintained at a Very Low Cost.

A correspondent of the New York Post says: It probably costs less to live well in Manila--during peaceful seasons--than in any other capital of the East or West. Take the case of my messmate and myself for instance. We had a good house, with three bedrooms, parlor and tiled floor dining room; a hallway, reading room, kitchen, boys' quarters and bath room, with tiled tub and shower. A small stable, garden and ten-foot iron fence to keep out the burglars, who used to grease themselves and prowl around naked at dead of night, seeking to steal ponies or even carriage lamps, completed our establishment. Our cook, to be ready for unexpected guests, served dinner each evening for four, and got but forty cents to provide enough raw material for six courses, including the firewood necessary. At the end of the month everything going into the general mess account--house rent ($15 a month), wages of three servants, food, drink, ice and light--was added up and divided by two. The result was astonishing, as $29 was the sum total of my monthly share. To live in such state and entertain one's friends for less than an American dollar a day absolutely spoils one for subsequent existence in this country, and it is no wonder that many a Britisher--returning from Manila to England via the states--has been so overwhelmed by his first laundry bill in San Francisco that he has taken a through train for New York and sailed by the first outgoing liner, without stopping even to see the bridges at Niagara or the winter garden at the Astoria.

Showed Off to Disadvantage.

A young organist living in Chicago was fortunate in securing permission to practice on the big organ in the Auditorium. One morning he sat at the higher keyboard, trifling with the music, improvising and playing odds and ends. An elderly man walked in and took a seat a few rows away from the musician. The young organist noticed him and was encouraged to "show off" and do a few tricks of playing for his audience. He rambled on for an hour and the elderly man sat there, apparently impressed.

The young man tired at last and was about to lock the organ, when the elderly man approached him and said in broken English that he wished to play for a few minutes.

"They don't allow anyone but an experienced organist to touch the instrument," said the young man loftily. With a little gesture, suggestive of meekness and humility, the stranger presented this card:

ALEXANDRE GUILMANT,
PARIS.

Then it was time for the young organist to swoon. He had missed the chance of his life. For an hour he had been entertaining the great master with home made drivel.--Chicago Record.

Couldn't Tell Her Anything.

An old gentleman speaking to a young lady, and commenting upon her freshness and good looks remarked: "Ah, my dear, may you long retain them. Yours is a happy period of life; you know nothing yet of the jealousies, the rivalries that beset the pathways of existence."

"Don't I, though," she interrupts. 'I want you to understand that I belong to a church choir."

Mrs. Strongmind—"Why don't you go to work?"

Weary Willie — "Please, mum, I made a solemn vow twenty years ago that I'd never do another stroke of work till women was paid the same wages as men."

Strange Divorce Customs.

Easy are the methods of settling domestic difficulties in Upper Burma. When a husband finds that his better half is not the unalloyed blessing he had been led to think, he calls into his house all the old men and women of his village and expresses his desire to divorce her, and a trial by candle is prosecuted.

The husband and the wife are each given a candle, which they light simultaneously at the order of the eldest person present and place in the middle of the floor. Then every one in the house sits around and watches to see which candle burns out first. If the wife's does so the husband has a right to divorce her, even against her will, and turn her and her relations out of his house without more ado.

If, on the other hand, the husband's candle burns out first, the wife has the option and right of either refusing a divorce or agreeing to it, and turning her husband and his relations out of the house, which, with all goods and chattels it contains, becomes her personal property.

In Cochin-China, when husband and wife find they can no longer agree they give a dinner, to which they invite their relations and the patriarch of the village. The latter, during the meal, takes the chopsticks of the pair and breaks them, and by his action they are legally divorced.

With a certain tribe of African savages, when a husband desires to be rid of his spouse—a fairly common occurrence—he takes her to the door of his hut or tent and strikes her across the back with three rushes three times, crying, in his savage tongue at each blow, "Wicked, naughty, bad," which constitutes the tribal form of divorce.

A husband in Madagascar may divorce his wife for the most absurdly trivial offence. All he has to do is to call his friends and relations to the door of his house, and in their presence give his wife a small coin and push her out, saying, "Madam, I thank you; go." An underdone dinner will amply justify him.

When divorce is mutually agreed upon by a Japanese pair, they wend their way to the temple where they are accustomed to worship, with a large scarf tying them together by the arms. Kneeling before the altar they bow three times, and having undone the scarf, they rise and depart by different doors, and by this formality become divorced.

Lovely Summer Modes.

Transparent linen batistes in pale tan, fawn, biscuit, and almond shades are used by fashionable modistes, who make them up over mauve, golden green, or cherry red silk, trimming them either with insertions and nets of Irish guipure lace or with narrow ruches of silk in rows. The sleeves on some of these gowns are very close to the arm its entire length, banded either with diagonal rows of insertion or ribbon the color of the foundation silk, and at the wrists and on the shoulders are pleated ruches of silk to match. Some of the round waists have tucked plastrons and epaulets beyond made of the batiste and bordered with insertion, ribbon in rows, or one narrow ruche.

Sachsen.

Dresden. Die hier veranstaltete Ausstellung der Deutschen Landwirthschaftsgesellschaft schließt mit einem Fehlbetrag von etwa 100,000 Mark ab. —Der Weinbau ist in Sachsen seit der in den Jahren 1838 bis 1842 vorgenommenen Landesvermessung fortwährend stark zurückgegangen. Damals fand man eine dem Weinbau eingeräumte Fläche von 1708 Hektar vor. Vor zehn Jahren wurden noch 1283 Hektar Weinberge angetroffen; heute berechnet sich die mit Wein bebaute Fläche nur auf 650 Hektar. Immerhin ergab die amtliche Statistik des Jahres 1895 noch 1435 Weinbaubetriebe, darunter jedoch 548 mit nur 20 bis zu 50 Ar. Die Gegend um Meißen und Dresden-Neustadt weist bei Weitem den größten Theil der mit Wein bestandenen Fläche auf.

Freiberg. Der Senat der königlichen Bergakademie hat mehrere russische Studenten von der Akademie verwiesen, weil er als erwiesen annahm, daß diese Herren sich an der sozialdemokratischen Bewegung in Sachsen betheiligten. Einigen anderen russischen Studenten ist die gleiche Maßregel angedroht worden, sofern sie weiter an politischen Umtrieben theilnähmen.

Leipzig. Der argentinische Vizekonsul Müller hierselbst ist vom Landgericht wegen Betrugs zu sieben Monaten Gefängniß und 1400 Mark Geldstrafe verurtheilt worden.

Plauen. Hier wurden 17 Personen, darunter auch ein Fabrikant verhaftet, die in umfangreiche Tülldiebstähle verwickelt sind. Ein „Verein gegen Fabrikdiebstähle," zu dem aus dem Chemnitzer Bezirk vor Jahren die Anregung gegeben wurde, ist bis heute nicht zu Stande gekommen.

Zwickau. Die hiesigen Tischlermeister haben die Forderung der Gesellen auf zehn Prozent Lohnerhöhung und neunstündige Arbeitszeit bewilligt.

Thüringische Staaten.

Gotha. Im hiesigen Krematorium wurden im Monat Juni 15 Leichen durch Feuer bestattet. Im ersten Halbjahre 1898 wurden 104 Feuerbestattungen vollzogen.

Koburg. Seit Anfang Juli ist das Konsulat der Ver. Staaten, das bisher in Sonneberg domizilirt war und dort sogar ein eigenes Gebäude besaß, hierher verlegt worden. In Sonneberg verbleibt nur eine Agentur, für die ein neuer Beamter aus Washington eingetroffen ist.

Salzungen. Eine jugendliche Rentenempfängerin hat die hiesige Stadt aufzuweisen, in einem 21jährigen Mädchen, dem eine jährliche Invalidenrente von 115 Mark 20 Pfennige bewilligt worden ist, nachdem es fünf Jahre versichert war und in dieser Zeit 18 Mark 20 Pfennige an Versicherungsbeiträgen entrichtet hat.

Freie Städte.

Hamburg. Die Ausfuhr Hamburgs nach den Ver. Staaten betrug im zweiten Quartal 1898 $5,714,069 gegen $4,629,197 im Vorjahr. Im Fiskaljahr 1897—98 betrug die Ausfuhr $9,243,389 gegen $16,143,675 im Vorjahr.—Der Arbeitgeber-Verband Hamburg-Altona erläßt einen Aufruf zur Schaffung eines Strikeabwehr-Fonds; zur Mitwirkung bei dessen Verwaltung hat die Handelskammer die Ernennung einer eigenen Kommission zugesagt; 56 angesehene Kaufleute haben den Aufruf durch ihre Unterschriften unterstützt.

Bremen. Beim Meisterschaftsrudern siegte Sommerfeld vom Danziger R.-V. gegen Dr. Schulze-Denhardt von der Hamburger Favorite-Harmonia; P. Sommerkamp vom Berliner R.-Kl. und F. Hartmann vom Frankfurter R.-Kl., der im Anfang des Rennens in günstigster Position lag, gaben das Rennen auf, da sie zu viel Wasser übernommen hatten. Die Zeit betrug 8 Minuten 50 Sekunden für Sommerfeld.

Lübeck. Die Gefahr eines Strikes der Bauhandwerker, welcher hier am 15. Juli beginnen sollte, falls die Arbeitgeber sich nicht bereit erklären würden, der Forderung der Gesellen—eine Erhöhung des Stundenlohnes—Folge zu leisten, wurde beseitigt. Die Arbeitnehmer haben ihre Forderungen zurückgezögen, nachdem ihnen von den Meistern eine Lohnerhöhung zum 1. April künftigen Jahres zugebilligt worden ist.

LIMIT OF VICTORIA'S POWER.

She Is an Autocrat, but There Is Much She Cannot Do.

Considerable as are the powers of the Queen, they are not unlimited. There are some very curious restrictions on the royal prerogative. The Queen cannot, for instance, communicate with her subjects as can the most menial of her servants; nor can she receive presents from her people save through officers of state or friends personally known to her majesty.

The Queen could sell or give away the royal navy or declare war with Russia; but she could not spend a single farthing of public money without the consent of Parliament. The Queen has no power over taxation, and could not create any new office with fees attached to it. Neither could she annex new fees to old offices. She could not increase the wages of one of her footmen, unless she did it out of her private funds or without exceeding the allowance made to her by Parliament.

A curious curtailment of the royal prerogative is effected by an act of Parliament passed in the reign of George III. This act deals with Sabbath breaking, and in it it is distinctly stated that the monarch cannot pardon offenders who have been convicted of a certain form of Sabbath breaking. Yet her majesty could pardon 99 per cent. of all the prisoners in the land.

Though no act of Parliament is complete until it has been signed by the Queen, her majesty is subject to the laws that she signs, and cannot issue a proclamation contrary to law.

Though the Queen could recall any subject from abroad, she cannot compel a subject to leave this country. This disability does not cease to operate even in time of war, and, though at such a time the Queen could call upon every able man to take up arms, she could not force a single civilian to leave the country, even to carry on a necessary war.

Though her decision is absolute after a prisoner has been sentenced, she could not interfere with the course of justice before the sentence has been passed, nor could she exert any influence over the judges. Neither could she interfere in a case of private as opposed to public wrong.

The Queen is the only person who cannot arrest a suspected felon. No action can be taken against her for breaking the law, and therefore she is precluded from making an arrest, as, supposing the suspected prisoner were innocent, no action for false imprisonment could be taken against her majesty. The law, indeed, assumes that the Queen can do no wrong, which seems about as absurd as the legal assumption that the Queen cannot be under age, and cannot die.

The Queen cannot exclude a member from Parliament after he has been duly elected, nor can she delegate the duty of signing laws to any one.

The Queen's power of disposing of territory in time of peace has been disputed. In time of war her majesty could hand over London to France to bring the war to an end, but it seems clear that in time of peace her majesty cannot subject any part of the empire to the sway of a foreign power.—London Tit-Bits.

WHAT IT COSTS TO FIGHT WARSHIPS

Nearly Half a Ton of Ammunition Used When a 13-Inch Gun is Fired.

If no men were lost, if no ships were destroyed or even damaged, it would cost $2,000,000 or $3,000,000 for amunition alone to fight a first-class battle with modern arms and projectiles. An ordinary allowance of ammunition for one of the big guns costs about as much as the gun itself. It takes nearly half a ton every time one of the big thirteen-inch guns is fired. There were 250 tons of powder on the Maine when she went down, and her magazines were only half filled. The big battleships and the first-class cruisers should never go into action without a supply of from 500 to 800 tons, or, say an average of 700 tons. There are eleven of these battleships, which together require 7,700 tons. Then there the sixteen second-rate ships, which ought to have 500 tons each in their magazines, or a total of 8,000 tons; forty-two third-rate ships, which would have at least 300 tons each, or a total of 12,600, and seven fourth-rate ships, which should have 200 tons each, or a total of 1,400 tons. Without counting the torpedo boats, it requires about 30,000 tons of powder to fill the magazines of our navy before it would be safe to send the ships into action.

The seacoast defenses, with their monstrous eight, ten and twelve-inch guns, require severtl times as much. The four-inch rapid-fire rifle requires sixteen pounds of powder to carry a projectile weighing thirty-three pounds four miles. The five-inch gun requires twenty-five pounds, the six-inch rifle fifty pounds, the eight-inch rifle 250 pounds, the ten-inch 500 pounds, and it costs $1,000 every time one of the thirteenth-inch rifles is fired. There are four of these guns each on the battleships Indiana, Iowa, Massachusetts and Oregon.—Cor. Chicago Record.

SEEING THE COMMODORE.

Short Chapter Out of the Experiences of a Newspaper Reporter.

"One night some twenty odd years ago, and when I had not been very long on the paper," said an old New York newspaper reporter, "I was sent up to ask Commodore Vanderbilt for some information on certain points relating to the New York Central railroad. The Commodore lived then in the fine old house in Washington Place, the old house in which he died. The servant that let me in took me into the parlor by a door that opened into the hall near the front of the room, and left me there. Presently the Commodore came in by a door opening into the hall near the rear of the room. He had on a rather old-fashioned suit of clothes, including a frock coat with pretty long skirts; he wore an old-fashion stand-up collar with high sideboards, that somehow seemed especially suited to him. He was a stately looking gentleman, with more of kindness than of austerity in his bearing, as he stood over there on the other side of the room looking at me and asking me what I wanted, but still his manner was perfectly emotionless, and I couldn' even have guessed whether he was going to tell me what I wanted to know or not, though I thought the chances were a shade against it. But he asked me to come up to his room, and he led the way himself.

"The Commodore's room was on the second floor, at the rear of the house; the door was opposite the head of the stairs. If it had been at the front of the house it would have been called a hall bedroom; but it was bigger than that, and I should think it was twelve or fourteen feet square. There was a fireplace on one side, and in the centr of the room there was a table-topped desk with papers lying about on it, and a broad, thin box of cigars. The room appeared to be a sort of personal office of the Commodore's.

"He sat down himself in a big comfortable chair by the side of the fireplace, and gave me a chair by the desk. He told me to open the box and take a cigar. I asked him the questions I had come to ask, and he gave me the desired information. Then he went on talking on his own account, in a calm, self-contained sort of way, about the Central road. It seemed as though his feeling for the road was one of affection. The four-tracking had just been begun, and the Commodore spoke particularly of that. He said that if he could live to see the Central four-tracked from New York to Buffalo he would be satisfied; that it would then be the greatest railroad in the world; and he spoke of other things about the road, speaking always in a way that was quiet and dignified, but at the same time as pleasant and agreeable as could be imagined.

"Everything that he said was of interest—some of it was of importance. I went back to the office and wrote out the interview. Next morning I had the great pleasure of reading it in print. It was a success, made so by the gracious, kindly old Commodore."

JUSTICE DUFFY'S JOKE.

An Exchange of Opinions as to His Exact Standing in Society.

Justice Duffy of Long Island City is apparently a worthy successor of New York's lamented Justice Duffy in the art of judicial jocoseness. Recently he officially indulged in a little pleasantry, with the result that Long Island City's exchequer was enhanced $15.

May Ferris, a sixteen-year-old bicyclist, caused the arrest of Philip Einsman of Astoria on Thursday, charging him with having thrown her from her wheel. Einsman was arraigned and found guilty, but Justice Duffy suspended sentence.

"This is an outrage'" exclaimed Miss Ferris's mother, who was in court. I insist on having that villain fined."

"Oh, very well, madam," responded the Justice; "always glad to oblige, you know. I will impose a fine of $5 on Einsman, but I will also impose a like fine upon your daughter for having ridden on the sidewalk."

"Oh, you villain! Oh, you brute!" shouted Mrs. Ferris. "You old"—

"Thank you, madam," interrupted the Justice, courteously, "I regret, however, that I am under the necessity of fining you $5 for contempt of court, and at the same time I will remit the fine now standing against Einsman."

"Hurrah!" shouted Einsman. "Judge, you're a peach!"

"Indeed?" said the Justice, elevating his eyebrows. "Well, under those circumstances I will be compelled to fine you $5 for contempt of court."

A Toad's Coat of Meal.

A good story is told of a toad which noticed that swarms of flies were attracted by the sour meal left in the saucer after the chickens in a certain farm-yard were done feeding. Every day, toward evening, he makes his appearance in the yard, hops to the saucer, climbs in and rolls over and over until he is covered with meal and then lies still to await his prey. He does not nave long to wait, for the flies attracted by the smell of the meal, soon swarm around the tricky toad, and whenever one passes within two inches of his nose his tongue darts out and the fly disappears. His plan has worked so well that he has now taken it up as a regular business.

The Explanation.

Tender'oot—I don't understand the epitaph on this tombstone. It says: "He Talked Himself to Death." How's that?

Bronco Pete—That's right. He called Alkali Ike a liar.—Chicago Tribune.

THE INHERITANCE.

BY EBEN E. REXFORD.

There were two Elizabeth Stetsons. One was commonly spoken of as "the old maid," or "old maid Stetson," and the other as Lizzie. Lizzie was a girl of eighteen, pretty and pleasant, and a niece of Miss Elizabeth's.

Miss Elizabeth owned a little farm on the outskirts of the village of Stillwater, and her niece lived with her.

Now Lizzie, being a very bright, attractive girl, had plenty of would-be suitors. But only two of them found much favor with her. One was John Holbrook, the principal of the village school, a young man of unusual ability, who was trying to earn enough to fit himself for a professorship in college. The other was Rodney Dane, a young man lately from the city, who seemed to have taken up his abode with some relatives in Stillwater. He was a showy, brilliant fellow, in a way, and had the advantage over Stillwater young men because he had more familiarity with social life as it exists in large places. He outshone them at all the village gatherings, and made them feel awkward, and lacking sadly in all the graces of politeness and good breeding, for which they hated him most cordially.

"I suppose you know all about old maid Stetson's streak of luck," said a friend to Dane, one day. "I presume you heard of it right away after it happened, as you're so intimate there."

"I haven't heard anything," answered Dane. "What is it?"

"A brother that went to California years ago has died and left her all his money. I haven't seen anything about it in the paper, but Joe Reed told me he had."

"How much money had he?" asked Dane.

"Twenty thousand dollars," was the reply.

"Not a great deal," said Dane, carelessly, "but then, it's worth having."

"I should say so," responded the other. "If the niece had only been the lucky party—eh, Dane!" and the young man laughed as he slapped the other on the shoulder. "But it's all right as it is: one man ought not to have all the good things, and Lizzie Stetson's a fortune in herself."

Dane hunted up Joe Reed. Yes, Reed had read about Miss Elizabeth's legacy in a Greenbush paper. It seems that her brother had lived in Greenbush. No one in Stillwater knew anything about him.

He made other inquiries, and satisfied himself that the rumor was well founded. Miss Elizabeth had been to visit a city lawyer recently, and several legal-looking documents had come to her through the post-office lately.

"She's proving her claim to the property, doubtless," thought Dane. "They're a close-mouthed set, these Stetsons, where property is concerned. They don't let on to me about it. But it's just as well they don't, for they can't say it's the money I'm after if I'm not supposed to know anything about it. I've a good mind to transfer my attentions to the old lady." He stopped and thought a moment. "I will!" he declared impulsively. "I haven't committed myself in any way to the girl. I'd like her and the money, too, but if I can't have both I'd prefer the money, even if I have to take the old maid to get it."

So it came about that Rodney Dane became less attentive to Lizzie, by degrees, and showed a disposition to cultivate the society of her aunt. And Miss Elizabeth, realizing that her matrimonial chances were slim, was disposed to look with favor upon his advances. If she let the opportunity slip by without taking advantage of it, she would in all probability never have another. She had long ago given up all hope of finding a husband. Now it really seemed as if fate had something to do with sending her a suitor—and such an attractive one, too—and she felt as if it would be flying in the face of Providence not to accept the chance held out to her. It was now, or never.

"I know it isn't me that he's after so much as it is my property," she told herself. "But then, if I marry him I'll have a husband and I'll have the property, too, and I'll see that I keep it. If he thinks he's going to have the management of it, he's mistaken, but it won't do any harm to let him think so for a time. I'll explain that to him after I'm sure of him."

When Lizzie saw the turn affairs were taking she was naturally surprised, and a good deal indignant. She had cared nothing for Dane. The young man who imagined she was playing him off against Holbrook for the sake of flirtation had been correct in his opinion. But it roused her resentment to have him transfer his attentions so coolly to her aunt, because persons would be sure to say that he had been amusing himself at her expense.

"What's this I hear about Dane marrying your aunt?" asked Holbrook, one evening. "There isn't any truth in the rumor, is there?"

"I'm afraid there is," answered Lizzie, flushing up indignantly. "He comes to see her every day, and she's got so she behaves like a girl of sweet sixteen. I—I'm disgusted! I know what he wants—it's her property. But he won't get it. I know Aunt Elizabeth too well to believe that, but she'll let him think so, and take him if she can get him. I believe I shall try to get a place in some store in the city. Of course I wouldn't think of staying here after he came here to live, as I know he will."

"I don't think you'd like working in a store," said John. "In fact, I know you wouldn't. I've a plan—in fact it's one I've had in mind for a long time, but it hasn't seemed advisable to say anything about it until now. I'll explain it to you."

John Holbrook's plan was one that seemed to meet with the approval of Lizzie, and they sat and talked it over until the clock struck midnight. When they parted, the robin whose nest was in the old cherry tree close by the porch, heard a sound that was suspiciously like a kiss, and I presume she thought to herself that "they had come to an understanding." Which was the case.

The next day Lizzie went to her aunt and said,—

"I'm going to marry John Holbrook."

"I'm glad of it," said her aunt. "John's a good fellow. Then she tried to blush, and only succeeded in looking foolish, but finally she managed to say, "And I'm going to get married, too. Mr. Dane proposed to me last night, and I accepted him."

"I—I'm sure I hope you'll be happy," said Lizzie.

"I am happy," said Aunt Elizabeth, with a sigh and a simper. "Mr. Dane is—is somewhat younger than I am, but true affection overlooks a slight disparity of years."

Lizzie wanted to say "Fiddlesticks!" but she thought it wise to say nothing, and she got away by herself as soon as she could, to laugh over the idea of "true affection" between her aunt and Rodney Dane.

Two or three days after that she called on some friends in the village, and there she heard for the first time of the Stetson legacy of twenty thousand dollars.

She went home and told the story to Miss Elizabeth.

"Don't you see that this accounts for Mr. Dane's sudden discovery of—well, regard, for you?" she said. "I understand it all, now. It puzzled me to account for his behavior, but this makes it all plain."

"That's as much as to say that you wondered what he could see about me to fancy," said Miss Elizabeth, loftily.

"But surely you aren't going to let him think you have fallen heir to twenty thousand dollars!" said Lizzie.

"That's nothing to me," said Miss Elizabeth. "I never told him so. If he has that idea I'm not responsible for it, and if he doesn't say anything about it to me I certainly shall not to him."

"Yes, but when it's too late," said Lizzie.

"Too late for what?" demanded Miss Elizabeth, angrily. "Oh, I think I begin to understand. You don't want me to get married, I suppose. I think that's very ungrateful, Elizabeth Stetson, after I've gone and deeded you that house and lot in the village," and her aunt began to cry.

"What I meant was, that I thought it would be better to undeceive Mr. Dane about matters and things before marriage, rather than let him go on with the belief that he understood them, and take the chances of what might happen when he finds out his mistake," said Lizzie. "I don't want your property. I wouldn't accept the house and lot if I didn't feel that it really belonged to me. You've had enough of mother's property to fully pay you for it."

Then she walked away and left her aunt to her own sweet meditations.

* * * * *

Rodney Dane and Miss Elizabeth were married. So were John Holbrook and Lizzie. They went to housekeeping by themselves, at once, and the man who had married a womn nearly old enough to be his mother took up his abode in the home of her who could never again be called "old maid Stetson."

"How have you invested your legacy?" he asked one day, a week or two after they were married.

"What legacy?" asked his wife.

"Why—the twenty thousand dollars your brother in California left you," he explained.

"I never had any brother in California," answered she, "and no one ever left me twenty thousand dollars."

Rodney Dane's face was pale as death. He stared at her as if he believed she were trying to deceive him.

"Do you mean to say that there was no truth in that story?" he cried.

"I suppose you refer to the rumor that I had had money left me," she answered. "All I ever heard about it is what Lizzie told me. I had a cousin who went to California years ago, from Greenbush, and he had a sister Elizabeth. Possibly he died and left her some money. I don't know anything about it. But if any one has left me any money I haven't heard of it."

Rodney Dane ground out an oath through his set teeth.

"I wouldn't do that if I were you," said his wife. "It might give people the impression, if they knew of it, that you married me for the sake of the twenty thousand dollars you thought I had fallen heir to."

"I did!" he cried. "What else would I marry you for?"

"For a living, perhaps," responded his wife. "That's about all you'll be likely to realize from it, as long as I live."

She spoke truly. Rodney Dane, too lazy to work, too poor to support himself, has settled down into a condition of dependence, and lets his wife—whom he hates, but tolerates, since it is a matter of food and clothing with him—take care of him. And she—she has the satisfaction of knowing that she is no longer known as "old maid Stetson." But Lizzie, happy Lizzie, thinks her aunt paid a dear price for the privilege of being called Mrs. Dane.

A Swiss firm has brought out a ribbon-saw worked by electricity which is able to cut logs over a yard thick. The electric motor is of six horse-power, and the saw runs at a speed of more than 100ft. per second. The saw itself can travel along a track and cut the logs from end to end as it goes.

THE MAN WHO HADN'T TIME.

He never had time to play,
He never had time to rest,
But he worked away and thought of a day
When what he had done would attest
The usefulness of his life,
His worth as a man among men;
Then he would quit the strife—
He would rest on his laurels then.

As a bondman chained he slaved,
Ever looking ahead;
As a miser he hoarded and saved,
Grudging his daily bread!
Beyond was a happy day—
Nearer and nearer it drew—
When his work should be put away
And cares should be banished, too!

At last, upon a day,
When the sun was low in the west,
He put his work away,
And sat him down to rest.
But where was the dreamed-of bliss?
And why was it now denied?
Things seemed to be going amiss—
So he brooded awhile and died.

A PAIR OF SINNERS.

BY ST. JOHN ADCOCK.

She was the only daughter of a draper who had once been eminent and was now retired; he was a young and prosperous barrister. Her manners and habits of thought were, perhaps, overrefined and affected; she was of a morbidly poetical temperament, and looked at life always through a prism of sentiment. He was unimaginative and practical.

Naturally, then, when they met they loved; and she was too romantic and he too matter-of-fact to believe in a long engagement.

They had been two months married, and but just returned from the honeymoon, were seated cozily by the fire one wild, wintry evening, when Mabel, in a languishing mood of sentimental melancholy, unburdened herself of a tardy confession.

It had really never occurred to her during the rapture of their short engagement, but once or twice before since their marriage it had risen to her lips, but, fearing it might make a note of discord in the harmony of their wedded lives, she had left it unspoken. It was a trifle, no doubt; but hers was a disposition that magnified trifles. She found a subtle joy in grief, as do all who are surfeited with happiness, and, under such circumstances, the smallness of the grief is no disadvantage.

"Are you sure, Clarence," she asked him, sighing, "that you really love me?"

"Absolutely, dearest."

"And you have never loved any one but me?"

"Never—never—never!"

"And you will love me always?"

"Forever."

He yawned and looked at his watch. They were half expecting a visitor.

"Suppose I had a secret in my life which I had never revealed to you?"

She regarded him yearningly.

"What sort of secret?"

"I always used to say, dear, that I had told you all about myself—everything; that I was keeping nothing back from you. I am so sorry!" Her eyes grew misty with tears. "I did not intend to deceive you. There is one—only one—event of my life I have never mentioned to you. I had forgotten it until lately.

"Well—and what is it?" he interrupted, a little irritably.

She sank down on the rug beside him in an attitude of supplication, and clasped her arms about his knees.

"Don't look at me so coldly, Clarence," she pleaded. "Don't speak so harshly. Say you will forgive me, dearest. I know there should be no secrets between us, but it is such a little, little secret, and I never meant to—"

"No—no. Well—let me know what it is."

"It overwhelmed me with shame. Oh, words cannot tell how deeply it humiliated me."

"My dear child, do calm yourself." He laughed, but felt vaguely uneasy. "It can't have been anything so very awful."

"I will tell you, Clarence."

She dried her eyes, and, reaching up, laid a hand upon his shoulder caressingly.

"Did you know, dear, that I once used to write poetry?"

"Well, many persons do that. It may be foolish, but it is not wicked."

"I wrote a great deal of it. My sole ambition then was to be a poetess. Much of what I wrote was love poetry—"

"Addressed, I presume, to the heartless man you just referred to?"

"No, dear. It was addressed to quite imaginary persons."

"Well, well! Yes?"

"And about six years ago, dear, I collected all my poems into a volume and published them."

"And the heartless man was the publisher?"

"No. The publisher was exceedingly kind. He thought very highly of my work—"

"Never mind the publisher. I am anxious to get to that heartless man."

"The book was published, and I saw only one review of it, and that—it was in a paper called The Writer—Oh, Clarence, it was cruel—cruel!"

"If that is all—"

"All! It humiliates me to think of it even now. I remember every harrowing word of it, but I cannot—cannot bring myself to repeat them."

"Don't try to. My dear girl, why on earth should you upset yourself like this over a trivial matter that happened and was forgotten six years ago by everybody but yourself?"

"But think how I suffered! The publicity—the disgrace! 'These poems,' he wrote—oh, do not ask me what he said!"

"I assure you, I won't."

"For months after I avoided all who knew me. Such contempt—such ridicule as he poured upon me in that review! If there is any man I hate—yes, hate, Clarence!—it is he."

"And yet he may be quite a harmless, inoffensive sort of ass, if we only knew him."

"I withdrew the book instantly and burnt the entire edition."

"If all authors accepted their critics' verdict in the same spirit, that man who wrote about the hundred best authors would have had to fix his total at fifty."

"I felt as if all the world were laughing at me."

She shuddered at the recollection of it.

"By Jove! Of course, the best of critics are not angels, but yours must have been a—"

"A heartless, heartless man!"

"If it had been a man's book—"

"He may not have known I was a woman."

"You are too severe. No reviewer criticises a book till he has read the title page."

"But I did not use my own name. I wanted to see if they would mistake my work for that of a man. I called it 'Heart Longings, by Harold Ranson; but all my friends knew, so that really made no difference."

"Not a bit."

He had grown suddenly thoughtful, and spoke absently.

"You wil lforgive me, darling—won't you?—for deceiving you?"

"Deceiving me?" he asked.

"Well, for seeming not to confide in you unreservedly?"

Taking the childish, pretty face between his hands, he gazed down into her dreamy blue eyes, and laughed softly to himself.

"I—don't—know," he said.

"But—it was nothing actually wrong, Clarence," she cried indignantly; then, melting again, "I know, dear, I used to say all along that I had concealed nothing from you. I had told you everything—"

"I used to say the same to you, didn't I?"

"Yes."

"Well, coming to think of it, I remember I have a secret which I have never disclosed to you. So, after all, we are each as bad as the other."

She started, and scanned his features eagerly.

"You? A secret, Clarence?"

"Only a little one—like yours."

"But mine was no secret. I had forgotten it," she protested. "Besides, mine was nothing for which you could blame me!"

"I wish I could say that of mine."

"Clarence!" she sobbed, "you have been deceiving me!"

"No; I had forgotten about it."

"You always said," she faltered, her lips quivering, "you never loved any girl until you met me."

"Now, I want you to make me a promise: If I forgive you, you will forgive me?"

She hesitated.

"Tell me, first, all about it."

"Do you promise?" he insisted.

"Oh, Clarence, you can never be the same to me again! I do hope it is nothing dreadful. What can it be? I—I—"

"Do—you—"

"Yes, yes, dear. I promise!" she said desperately. "Whatever it is, I love you, and I must forgive you."

"You won't hate me?"

"I could not."

She pressed her handkerchief to her eyes.

"I won't keep you in suspense," said he. "We have both been sinners, and I was the worst of the two. I must tell you, then. Before I was a successful barrister I was a good-for-nothing young scoundrel with a very good opinion of myself and a very bad one of everybody else. I was a wicked young dog and did several scandalous things that I am ashamed of now."

She caught her breath and waited in an agony of expectation. He seemed very serious, and yet a baffing smile was flickering round the corners of his mouth.

"They were all of the same description, but I am sorry on account of one in particular."

"And that?"

"Well, being hard up, I used to earn old guineas in all manner of odd ways. I was a flippant, self-satisfied brute, and—" he paused, and putting an arm about her, drew her closer to him. "I have a heart now—you know I have, sweetheart, don't you? But once upon a time—you have promised to forgive me, and not to hate me!—in the days when you published your book, I was—"

"You—you, were?"

"The heartless man who reviewed it!"—St. Paul's.

"How are you getting along with your new servant girl?" asked the caller.

"Our new servant girl?" replied the hostess, with some indignation in her voice. "Why, she has been with us for four days!"

The lawyers and physicians of Perth Amboy have made an agreement to play a game of baseball for the benefit of the Red Cross August 11th. The game is being arranged by Haddon Ivins, and will be played on the enclosed grounds.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Next Saturday afternoon Kenyon's postponed race meet will be held on Maltby's track.

New Brunswick is talking about another race meet for Labor Day. Application has been made for the sanction.

Manager Thomas A. Cuming, of the Eldridge Bicycle Company, went to Brooklyn last night on a short business trip.

The entries for Harry K. Lister's road race close Monday. The race will take place Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. Lister has already a goodly number of entries and is expecting many more during the next three days before they close. Besides the local riders who are well represented, there will be a number of starters from the surrounding towns.

GOLF.

James Scott, the New York jeweler, who resides in this city, is making a pin for the members of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club. The design is a flag, modeled after that of the club, in blue and white enamel.

There are a number of new applications for membership in the Park Golf Club which will soon be acted upon. The membership in that club is rapidly filling and there will be a large number of golfers in the ranks when the links are opened in the fall.

ROD AND GUN.

R. H. McCullough and son, of Steiner place, and Mr. Hoag, of Buffalo, have returned from Perth Amboy where they have been on a fishing excursion. The fish were biting well, and each brought home a good mess.

THEATRICAL.

Current Dramatic Attractions That Plainfielders Can Witness.

This evening will see the close of the opening week's stand of the Sullivan's Troubadours in Music Hall. The Troubadors also marked the opening of the theatrical season in Plainfield. While the attendance has not been as large as the management might wish, there have been fair houses on each occasion and several time the hall was filled. The Troubadours have made a good impression in Plainfield. It was something new in the line of the popular-price repertoire company and found favor in the eyes of the theatre-going public. The variety, the absence of delay, and the shortness of each turn which precludes the possibility of anyone getting tired of anything, have all combined to add to the popularity of these enterprising entertainers. Tonight, the Troubadours will end their stay in Plainfield. Besides the usual features, Mr. Sullivan and Miss Lecelles will present "Oliver Twist," a sketch taken from the drama of that name and filled with dramatic interest that never wanes until the curtain falls. Mr. Sullivan has shown himself to be an actor of great power and ability, and the excellent support he has received from the other members of the company enables them to present the various sketches in as satisfactory a fashion as any of the higher-priced companies.

Haverly's Minstrels.

J. H. Haverly's American-European minstrels will appear at Music Hall Thursday next, presenting a magnificent entertainment—that is what is promised, and Haverly never disappoints. The old reliable and established trade-mark of Haverly's Minstrels will never die out, for he is to minstrelsy what Barnum was to the circus—the one event the public eagerly await and always attend. However, there is much more than the name of Haverly. There is with the company such names as Billy Rice, Frank Cushman, John H. Blackford, Neil O'Brien, Buck Sheffer, E. H. Bogert, George Blakely, Master Martin, George W. Lewis, Billy Lyons, John Daly, Wm. Riley, Eddie LaBarre, H. C. LaBarre, Fred A. Johnson, Wm. Eunice, Joseph M. Norcross, Charles Whyte, John W. Early, Joseph D. Green, Thomas Woods, Gustave Vernon, Charles E. Foreman, Ole Peterson, the Nichols Sisters, and many other artists, all of whom have proud records in the art of minstrelsy. Nothing more can be said in praise of the "American-Europeans" that has not already been said, for the great Haverly show is a permanent attraction, whose past reputation is a guarantee for the future.

JUDGE FINED WITNESS.

W. J. NELSON DISREGARDED A SUBPŒNA FOR FRITZ TRIAL.

Came to Court Half An Hour Late and Judge Fined Him $2—First Time Done in the City Court in Plainfield.

For the first time during the administration of City Judge DeMeza in his present capacity, a witness was fined this morning for failing to obey a subpœna and appearing in court at the appointed time to give testimony in a case to be tried.

The offending witness was William J. Nelson, the well driver, of West Front street, and his disregard for that little slip of paper called a "subpœna," cost him a $2 bill.

Nelson was standing near Councilman Walter L. Hetfield and Adam Fritz last week, when the latter made use of the profane language for which he was fined $3 in the City Court this morning. When Mr. Hetfield made the charge against Adam Frttz he subpœnaed Nelson as a witness. The subpœna called for Nelson's presence at the station house this morning at 9 o'clock, but he failed to be present.

Had Fritz not pleaded guilty, the case would have gone over for a week. At 9-30 o'clock Nelson came rushing into the judge's office explaining that he had been down to the station-house, and found no one there. This was no excuse, so said the Judge, and ordered Nelson to pay a fine of $2 or go to jail for ten days. He paid the fine.

A warrant had been issued for Nelson's arrest, and the officer was about to go out in search of him when he made his appearance.

This is a warning to delinquent witnesses who are apt to think that the penalty attached to a subpoena for not obeying it is latent, and only put there "for fun."

He Didn't Return.

There is an old story told about a bridegroom, who, a couple of hundred years ago, took his bride to church, but as the party were arranging themselves at the altar he remarked he had forgotten something. He begged to be excused for a few minutes. He went out of the church, and from that day to this has never been heard of. The bride had to return home unmarried.

Little Men Were Handy in 1861.

"We fellows were enlisted down on the Penobscot," said Mr. D. B. Cressey of Lewiston, "and there were 25 of us boys who were too small to do the work, so the enlisting officer said.

"We went down to Augusta and were thrown out, while a lot of heavy wood choppers and farmers were put in our places.

Governor Robie, who was paymaster then, got us back. And, do you know, we made better soldiers than all those heavy fellows, because we could get there. When night came we were always the first in camp, while the fellows who had the meat to lug around were coming in all night long. Well we were down in Louisiana one time and a raid into the enemy's country was proposed. It was to be made with cavalry and they went through the regiments picking out the smallest men to make the raid. There were 1,800 of us and not a man weighed over 130 pounds. It was a queer looking crowd but it got there, for the men did not tire the horses out and at night they were as fresh as could be expected. I think the light men make the best soldiers in the long run, for many branches of army life."—Lewiston, Me., Journal.

Happy Korean Lovers.

The determination of the King of Korea to marry again has caused great rejoicing, as it is not considered polite for anybody of social standing in the kingdom to marry while the king is single. Consequently, the fidelity of that monarch to the memory of his murdered consort has been making many hearts ache, and the interruption of love's young dream has threatened serious political results, for even the astute and autocratic politicians of the Orient find they have to reckon with the primitive complications of human nature, and that these are times when even a king of sacred dynasty can assume too much responsibility in directing other people's actions.—Baltimore American.

"I want a gentle horse for my wife to drive," said the prospective purchaser. "Can you recommend this one?"

"Yes, indeed!" replied the owner; "there is not a safer horse for a lady to be found anywhere, and there is but one thing he's afraid of."

"And what is that?" asked the other.

"He is awfully afraid that some one will say 'whoa' to him and he won't hear it," replied the conscientious owner.—Chicago News.

STREET GAMIN IN REAL LIFE.

Not So Noble in Character as the Story Writers Picture Him.

"I have read a good many stories," said the city man, "about the honest newsboy who chases a man three blocks to return the five dollar gold piece given in mistake for a nickel; the sympathetic bootblack who protects the widow's son, or the heroic street gamin who gets run over by a dray while rescuing another boy, and murmurs, 'Is Jimmy all right?' and then dies. I have come to the conclusion that these stories are written by girls fresh from school, or refined old maids who live in a village, and they are read by men who thoughtfully stick the tongue into the cheek while reading. Yet there are men who read and believe.

"I saw one of this class the other day who went to the rescue of a bootblack who was trying to fix his broken box.

"'My lad,' said the good man—they always call them lads in these stories—'you are in trouble; let me assist you.'

"Then he knelt down on the side walk in his good clothes, used a half brick for a hammer, raked up some twine from his pocket, and after fifteen minutes' hard work, made a creditable job. Meanwhile about thirty street boys gathered around. One slipped a piece of old iron into his pocket, the grateful bootblack with a bit of chalk decorated his back with a hideous caricature, his hat was knocked into the gutter as he arose, and one of the boys accused him of stealing a 'dabber.'

"The man flushed with natural indignation, and immediately there arose a whoop of derision, and as he strode away he was guyed by the whole crowd for two blocks. While in this frame of mind it would have done him good to have interviewed some of the ladies who write the picturesque tales about the imaginary street boys."—Chicago Times Herald.

The One Chinaman in the Union Army.

The enlistment of a Chinaman in the volunteer army in California, recalls the fact that there was but one Celestial in the War of the Rebellion. His Chinese name is unknown, but the name under which he enlisted was Thomas Sylvanus. He was born in Baltimore about eighteen years before the outbreak of the war. When only a child he was taken to Pittsburg, where he acted as a servant for a wealthy family in that city. When the war broke out Thomas ran away and enlisted in the army. He served Uncle Sam until the close of the war, shortly after which he turned up in Indiana, Pa., where he resided until his death, which occurred a few years ago.

While in the service of the United States, Sylvanus contracted a disease of the eyes from which he went almost blind. In 1880 he applied for and was granted a pension of $12 per month. He also secured several hundred dollars back pension. An examination of the records discloses the fact that Sylvanus was the only Chinaman in the late war, and consequently the only one of his race who drew a pension. At last accounts his widow and children were still living in Indiana, Pa.—Washington Post.

Took the Colonel at His Word.

At Camp Thomas, Chickamauga, soon after Col. Andy Burt was promoted to the Colonelcy of the Twenty-fifth Colored Regiment, he undertook to exercise his troops in more ways than one. He informed them that they would have to play ball an hour each day in order to get accustomed to the southern sun.

"Now," said the Colonel, "you boys come out and we will take a turn at ball playing. I'm going to play with you. I'm not Colonel Burt while playing, but simply Andy Burt. Now, play ball."

It soon came the Colonel's time at the bat, and with a vicious swipe he drove the ball hard past second for three bags. A large, greasy, black soldier was doing the coaching act, and yelled, as the Colonel made a dive for first, "Run, Andy; run, you tallow-faced, knock-kneed, dabergasted—— get your three bags."

The Colonel stopped at first, turning on his heel, returned to the home plate, donning his straps, remarked: "I'm Col. Burt from this time on until further orders."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Dangerous Fun.

R. Ganthony, in Random Recollections, relates this experience of an actress in Africa:

One of the young ladies of the company—who, by the way, never seem to understand that black people are men—thought it great fun to go to a Kaffir's kraal, peep in, and kiss her hand to the chief inside. He immediately came out to buy her, and was very much in earnest about it.

"No, thank you, I am not up for auction to-day."

"Three oxen."

"Really very good of you, but—"

"Four oxen."

"No thanks, I am not for sale."

"Five oxen."

"No, let me go."

He let her go with a Zulu oath, and her friends, who had missed her, congratulated her on her safe return—which they had reason to do.

Mr. Magginly from Canton.

Many unjust things have been said of President McKinley, but it remained for a Madrid paper with unconscious humor, to perpetrate the following: "It will no doubt surprise our readers to learn that the Yankee President Magginly is a naturalized Chinaman, having been born in Canton."—Buffalo Times.
